BRIDGE FALLS; THREE KILLED AND SIX HURT

Span Thrown to Monocacy River With Weight of Auto Truck.

WORKERS DROWNED UNDER WRECK MASS

Injured Are Pulled From Current and Rushed to Hospital.

FAMILY IN MACHINE HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Driver Halts Car on Brink as Structure Crashes Into Waters.

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., June 19.—Three men were killed and six injured when the bridge over the Monocacy River, on the Washington pike, 3 miles south of here, collapsed this afternoon. The men, iron workers, were pinned beneath the wreckage and were drowned.

The injured were pulled from the swift current and rushed to the Frederick City Hospital.

The known dead are James Gue, 30, Frederick; Edgar Lang, 30, Savage, and D. C. Bortner, address unknown.

The injured are: Elias B. Ramsburgh, jr., Frederick, inspector, leg and hip reported broken; Edgar Cook, Falling Water, W. Va.; Richard Coffman, Savage; Robert Long, Baltimore; Edgar Williams, 135 South Elwood street, Baltimore, and Birger Ludwigen, 1518 Patapsco street, Baltimore.

The men injured were employed on the work of repairing the structure, which crosses the river at Frederick Junction.

Hurled to Sudden Death.

Those killed were hurled to death without warning when the 100-foot span on which they were at work tore loose from its moorings and plunged with a crash into the swollen waters below. A stone truck had just entered it and went down with the span. It was believed that the vibration of the truck moving slowly on the bridge temporarily weakened because of the repairs, caused the disaster. Richard Morgan, Boonsboro, driver of the truck, was uninjured, the east end of the span, on which he had entered, being supported by the long beams.

The north end of the span, where the men were working, dropped precipitately, and they were thrown into the water, some, however, escaping the weight of the falling mass.

A. C. Smith, foreman of the welders, himself injured, helped in pulling his companions from the waters. Aid was brought by people who rushed to the scene.

Family Misses Death.

D. E. Williams, Punxsutawney, Pa., about to enter the bridge in a car with his family, missed possible death by inches. Seeing the bridge waver when a few yards away, he shouted to his son, Horace, 20, at the wheel, "Stop! That bridge is going to fall." The driver applied his emergency brake, and as the car skidded to the bridge end, stopped, balanced on the edge, the front of the car suspended in the air.

Had the machine gone six inches farther, it would have gone down on top of the fallen wreckage, 20 feet below. As the elder Williams, his wife, son Horace, and their daughter, Miriam, 13, crept from the car it hung across the brink of the stone foundations, pointed to the river.

The accident occurred at 2 o'clock. The crew of men was working for T. A. Ward, a contractor of Baltimore, who has been engaged for two weeks in repair of the bridge. New flooring had been laid at the west side and the men had transfered their work to the east. They had left the new floor and were on the side of the

Heavy Rains Flood FloridaCommunity

River Rises to Four Feet Over Streets of Town; Crops Damaged.

Fort Myers, Fla., June 19 (A.P.).—Flood waters from the swollen Caloosahatchee River were rising at La Belle, Hendry County seat, tonight. The town already was inundated to a depth of from 2 to 4 feet in all streets.

Residents of the town were virtually marooned and boats were being used for transportation into and about the town. Train service has been disrupted for 48 hours and mail was brought by boat from Denaud, a nearby town. The rain had stopped late today after falling steadily since Sunday.

Except for washed-out crops and some loss to home owners, whose furniture had not been moved, there had been no serious damage in the La Belle area up to tonight. The city was well stocked with food and other supplies.

111,270 in Detroit Ask Mayor Recall

Petition Forces City Hall to Recognize Ouster Movement.

Detroit, Mich., June 19 (A.P.).—The city hall was forced to take official notice of the movement to recall Mayor Charles Bowles today. Leaders of the movement filed petitions bearing the signatures of 111,270 Detroiters.

The petitions were filed with Richard W. Reading, city clerk, by Walter B. Cary, leader of the recall movement. Only 90,000 names were necessary to insure the recall. The city clerk is required to call the election after verifying the signatures.

The filing of the petitions today marked the end of a campaign which stated a month ago in the uproar which followed Mayor Bowles' dismissal of Police Commissioner Harold H. Emmons after the latter had made several spectacular raids on nandbooks and gambling houses while Bowles was attending the Kentucky Derby.

REED SAYS TREATY CUTS NAVAL RIVALRY

Pennsylvanian Replies to Johnson Speech Over Radio Hook-Up.

POINTS PACT BENEFITS

(Associated Press.)

The London naval treaty was advocated last night by Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, as an agreement removing nava' competition and promoting international friendship.

The Pennsylvanian, who was a member of the American delegation to the London parley, spoke over a Nation-wide radio hook-up of the National Broadcasting Co., and directed his speech in answer to one made Wednesday night over the air by Senator Johnson (Republican), California.

After a detailed analysis of the treaty now before the Senate, Senator Reed summed up the agreement as follows:

"It removes competition in naval construction among the three leading naval powers in the world, and it does so in every category of ship. It gives all three countries a holiday from battleship building during the next seven years and saves the taxpayers of the United States an outlay of $400,000,000 on replacement of battleships alone.

"It allows peoples of these three great nations to rest secure in knowledge that no one of the three can be attacked in its home waters by any navy on earth. It makes it plain to all the world that none of the three countries is designing war upon either of the others. It promotes to an important degree the international friendship that we all desire.

"It is opposed in each of the three countries by the big navy party of that country. The same things that were said to you by Senator Johnson last night are being said in London by Admiral Jellicoe, Lord Bridgeman and Mr. Winston Churchill. The same things are being said in Tokyo by Admiral Kato and his colleagues. In each of the three countries the same clamor is arising, but in each of the three I am confident that common sense will prevail and that the treaty will be ratified."

Accusing Senator Johnson of "denouncing but not describing" the treaty, Senator Reed took up the various provisions of the pact. He gave particular emphasis to the cruiser provision which limits the American Navy to eighteen 8-inch gun cruisers and eighteen 6-inch gun cruisers.

"You have doubtless heard it said many times that this treaty forces us to build the kind of ships that Great Britain wants and not the kind that we want, and leaves her free to build the kind of ships that

HOWELL URGES GAS RATES CUT IN SENATE BILL

Substitute for Measure Already Reported Introduced.

FIXED METER CHARGE WOULD BE ABOLISHED

Nebraskan Proposes to Have Minimum Cost of 60 Cents.

PROPOSAL IS SIMILAR TO ELECTRIC SYSTEM

Otherwise Reductions Like Those Company Seeks Are Provided.

A bill to reduce the cost of gas to smaller consumers in the District was introduced yesterday by Senator Robert B. Howell (Republican), of Nebraska. The bill is a substitute for the one, already reported, which authorizes a merger between the Washington Gas Light Co. and the Georgetown Gas Light Co.

Senator Howell said he would insist upon acceptance of the substitute measure.

The new bill would block the original proposal of the gas company to exact a fixed meter charge of 60 cents a month.

New Howell Proposal.

Under the original company plan, consumers would get no gas for this 60 cents, which would be charged in addition to the charge for the gas consumed.

Senator Howell substituted for this fixed charge a "minimum" charge of 60 cents a month. The difference between the two is this: Under the company plan, the consumer would pay 60 cents simply for the use of the meter, whereas under the Howell plan he could get 60 cents worth of gas.

The consumer, however, would have to pay a minimum of 60 cents whether he used that much worth of gas or not.

Average Bills Calculated.

The average domestic gas consumption is 3,400 cubic feet a month, for which he now pays at the rate of $1 a thousand cubic feet. Thus the average domestic gas bill is $3.40 a month.

Under the new rate schedule proposed by those behind the merger of the two companies, the amount actually paid for gas by the average domestic consumer would be $2.80.

If a fixed meter charge of 60 cents were added, however, the bill the consumer would receive would be $3.40, the same amount he is now paying.

Effect of Proposal.

Thus the Howell bill would mean an actual reduction of 60 cents a month in the average gas bill. The new minimum charge plans is the same as that followed by the electric light company.

Except for the change with regard to the meter charge, the bill yesterday provides for the same rate reduction plan as was suggested by the gas company to the Public Utilities Commission.

The new bill allows the company to charge $1.50 for reconnecting service which has been disconnected, but with the proviso that the reconnection is for the same customer on the same premises and within six months.

Other Features Dropped.

DISTRICT BILL'S FATE TAKEN UP BY PRESIDENT

Hoover Calls on Senator Bingham for Facts on Money Crisis.

EXECUTIVE LISTENS; MAKES NO COMMENT

HINT OF COMPROMISE FROM HOUSE AWAITED

Little Hope Seen in Holding Conference Otherwise, View in Senate.

President Hoover took a hand yesterday in congressional fight over the $44,000,000 District appropriation bill, thereby raising that controversy to a stage of national importance.

The President summoned to the White House the chief Senate conferee on the bill, Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), of Connecticut, and received from him first hand information as to the cause of the Senate and House deadlock.

Senator Bingham told the President that he and the other four Senate conferees believe that a fair Federal contribution toward the cost of running the city should be $12,000,000.

The House, he explained, insisted that the contribution be continued at $9,000,000.

Hoover Withholds Comment.

However, he pointed out, whereas the senators have agreed to compromise, to accept a figure somewhere between $12,000,000 and $9,000,000, the representatives have refused to budge from the latter figure.

The President listened to Senator Bingham's arguments in favor of a larger Federal contribution, and also asked a number of questions. In the end, however, he made no comment.

Meanwhile, in the House, Representative Robert G. Simmons (Republican), of Nebraska, the chief House conferee on the bill, was putting the measure in a position so that it could again become the subject of a Senate and House conference.

On the motion of Mr. Simmons, the House voted 124 to 4 to further disagree to the Senate amendments to the bill. This action paved the way for the Senate to ask for a further conference on the bill.

Quick Action Not Expected.

There was no prospect of an immediate conference yesterday, however. Questioned as to when he was going to ask for another conference, Senator Bingham said:

"Not until the House conferees give us some intimation that they are

BYRD ENTRAINS FOR CAPITAL AFTER NEW YORK WELCOME FROM AIR, LAND AND OCEAN

Amid a storm of ticker tape, the din of whistles and cheers, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd yesterday was accorded a tumultuous ovation by New York City, rivaled only by the Lindbergh welcome. Here the noted explorer is waving an acknowledgement to greetings as he moved up lower Broadway from the Battery to City Hall.

Acclaim Lasts Until Admiral Leaves for Washington to Be Received by Hoover.

New York, June 19 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Richard Evelyn Byrd, a slight and quiet gentleman from Virginia, whom the City of New York had honored once for flying across the North Pole, and again for flying the Atlantic, came back today from sixteen months in the Antarctic, and a flight to the South Pole, to his third—and loudest and largest—ceremonial welcome.

It started far down the harbor at 10 o'clock this morning, and it ended at midnight, when he and the 74 men who went with him to the world's underside entrained for Washington to be received by President Hoover and thanked by him for the discovery, exploration and aerial mapping of 125,000 square miles of an icy continent, rich enough in coal to fuel the world.

It was a hot and noisy homecoming, a day of screaming boat whistles and cannon salutes and marching military and drifting awiris of ticker tape and telephone-book tatters and speeches and medals and handshakings and, grudgingly inserted between gaudy formalities, the reuniting of long-absent men with their families.

Demonstration Not Hysterical.

It had none of the hysteria of the Lindbergh homecoming (and it will be long before there is such another), for Byrd, the unobtrusive, smiling little Navy officer in whose slight frame is housed the spirit of the men who opened up the roads to the ends of the earth, was not one over whom the cordial, smiling sightseers, the loitering noon-tide watchers, the patient thousands who lined the streets could grow fiercely emotional.

The close contact his expedition had maintained by radio throughout its long stay in Antarctica, the months that had elapsed since his great dash by plane to the South Pole, militated against there being any wild display of feeling.

But it was a hot and stirring day, and close upon 100,000 persons waited at the curbs to watch and to cheer him, and their greeting was honestly admiring and friendly from old acquaintance with the man and his deeds.

Los Angeles Flies Overhead.

And he, even though it was not new to him, even though he privately was eager to get away to the quiet of his hotel suite to join his wife and his mother and his brothers, and the three children who have grown inches taller and pounds heavier in his almost two years absence, even though he was still the responsible commander of a venture which had cost $800,000 and was faced with the obligation of discharging a deficit of $100,000, was excited and happy at this greeting from a city which has sent him off on his three great adventures.

Nor was it New York alone which was doing him honor.

Among the hundred vessels which paraded up the harbor in cacophonous disorder were ships of the Navy and the Coast Guard.

Overhead the Navy dirigible Los Angeles moved serenely, with three blimps frisking beside her and a score of Army planes droning in swift formation another quarter-mile higher.

On the Macom, beside Grover Whalen, the city's greeter, stood Gov. John

With the laurels of two poles adorning his adventurous brow, and the echoes of a riotous New York reception ringing in his ears, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd and his fellow explorers will arrive in Washington this morning at 9 o'clock, to receive plaudits of the Capital, congratulations of President Hoover, and the special gold medal of the National Geographic Society.

Anticipating crowds as large and as enthusiastic as those which greeted Lindbergh's first appearance here, police authorities will send a strong escort to greet the "Byrd special," and parking will be restricted on certain streets through which the party of 80 will pass on their way to the Willard Hotel.

The explorers will greet President Hoover twice during the day—first at 12:30 o'clock, at a White House reception, and again at 8:30 o'clock at the Washington Auditorium, where the President will present the National Geographic Society's medal.

From the White House the Byrd party will return to the Willard for a luncheon to be given at 1:30 o'clock by the National Geographic Society, under whose auspices the entire day's program has been arranged. After the luncheon, Admiral Byrd will call

Drastic Shake-Up Due In Tariff Commission

Dennis Only Member Held Virtually Sure to Retain Post, but Smoot Pressure May Save Chairman Brossard.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Two and possibly three members of the Tariff Commission are slated to go, it is believed, in the reorganization of that body which President Hoover intends to effect.

At his request he was given authority in the tariff just enacted to bring about this reorganization within 30 days. The understanding has been that he intended to place outstanding economists on it with a view to making a highly scientific body. It is because of this plan, it is understood, that he has laid such stress upon the flexible power of the tariff by which he is permitted to raise or lower rates as much as 50 per cent upon recommendation of the commission.

It is no secret that in the eight years in which it has been operating the commission has given satisfaction neither to Republicans nor Democrats, and the latter together with the Progressives have been hooting at the idea that the flexible provision and the commission will function any better in the future. They make such remarks as "It would take 700 years" for the commission greatly to alter the tariff that has just been enacted.

Mr. Hoover is said, however, to have some very definite ideas about what can be made of the commission and to be planning to put them into effect.

The only member of the commission at present who is looked upon as virtually sure to be reappointed is Alfred P. Dennis, Maryland Democrat. He and Mr. Hoover have been friends for a long time. He was with Mr. Hoover in the Department of Commerce and is generally understood to have been named to the commission by President Coolidge at Mr. Hoover's instance. In the making of the Fordney-McCumber bill he was looked upon on the Hill as reflecting Mr. Hoover's views.

Then it is considered quite likely that Chairman Edgar B. Brossard will be renamed, not necessarily because Mr. Hoover is enamored of him but Senator Smoot is. It would just about break the senator's heart, in fact, were Mr. Brossard not renamed.

There are indications that considerable senatorial pressure, mostly from the Old Guard, will be brought to bear for Thomas O. Marvin (Republican), of Massachusetts. But there is a serious question as to whether he will be renamed.

The other three, Sherman J. Lowell (Republican), of New York; Lincoln Dixon (Democrat), of Indiana, and Frank Clark (Democrat), of Florida, it is believed, will retire. Representative Garner, minority leader of the House, has taken the stand, however, that all three Democrats should be renamed. It is not believed he will have his way. If he should, there would hardly be any way in which the President could bring about the reorganization he desires.

Some senators think, however, that perhaps the President might not try to bring about the organization

Senate's Dial Phone War Simmering Down Quietly

Tydings Plan to Make Use of System Optional May End Hostilities.

The revolt against the dial telephones almost died out in the Senate yesterday, and it looks now as if the "roll your own" instruments will remain after all. At least, it looks as if a great many of them will remain.

Under a resolution put through by Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia, 29 days ago, the new-style telephones are scheduled to be removed from the Senate side of the Capitol tomorrow.

Yesterday, Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, sought to put through a substitute resolution. Under its terms, the matter would be made optional: Those senators who wanted the dials out could have them

Representative Sol Bloom (Democrat), of New York, who ballyhooed the Chicago World's Fair into a success, and who now is a director of the George Washington Bicentennial, was taken to task in the House yesterday for his method of advertising the latter event.

Walking to the center of the floor, Representative Taber (Republican), of New York, exhibited an automobile tire cover, a black, glossy thing bearing what one member said was a "caricature" of George Washington, and beneath it the word, "Bicentennial."

Garland Pollard, who last year succeeded the explorer's brother, Harry Flood Byrd, as governor of his home State.

And drawn up in front of the white-pillared stand erected over the steps of City Hall were the Richmond Blues, the famous regiment of light infantry from the capital city of his State, brave in their dark blue uniforms and their white plumed patent leather shakos.

Yet, though others were permitted to join New York in giving the Navy's youngest rear admiral greeting, it was primarily New York's show, a great civic festival, and everything had been so ordered to make it unmatchable.

Colorful Harbor Parade.

It was, of course, conventional and ritualistic, a familiar program from the transfer of the admiral and his officers from the City of New York to the puffy little Macom down the bay, through the landing at the Battery and the ticker-tape snow in Broadway, to the speech-making and medal-presenting at City Hall.

But it was, nevertheless, different in some ways from the standarized ceremony these welcomes have become and surpassed all those of the past two years in its size and its feeling.

The parade of shipping up through the harbor was one thing that set it apart; destroyers and tugs and yachts and motorboats, excursion steamers with bands playing, and ferry boats slowed down to a crawl that the hordes of passengers might hang over the rail. Every boat contributed to the din, from the little electric horns of the motorboats to the deep steam whistles of the ferries and the wild scream of the yacht and destroyers' sirens.

Crew Members Neglected.

It had been planned as an orderly double column, a mile or more long, but in the good-natured jostling for position it became a jumble, a herd rather than a flotilla, with busy little tugs elbowing trim, flag-decked yachts for position and motorboats frolicking at the edges.

And far behind, farther and farther behind as the procession advanced toward the Battery, trudged the ice-scarred ships of the expedition, the City of New York and the Eleanor Bolling. No one paid them any attention, and that was the only thing that marred the happiness of the occasion, for on those vessels were men, sailors and engine-room men whose names meant nothing to the welcomers but who had done their work well, and they had been promised that they would meet their families down the bay and the promise had not been kept.

While the rear admiral, in his crisp whites and his new epaulettes, was shaking hands with Grover Whalen and Gov. Pollard, and his mother, Mrs. Eleanor Bolling Byrd, was kissing him and telling him, fondly, that he'd be chloroformed by his family if he dared think of another venture, the men of the two ships had to wait hungrily, and wave at the wives and children and mothers on the steamer Riverside because, by some miscalculation, the Riverside was too overloaded to permit bringing any more passengers aboard.

Reunion With Mrs. Byrd.

But at the Battery, before they were loaded into cars to ride the short half-mile to City Hall, they did see their families briefly, and afterward they joined them and spent the afternoon with them while their officers had to go through a formal luncheon.

Mrs. Marie Byrd, the explorer's wife, was at the Battery to greet him, instead of on the Macom, for she had spent the night at sea in a tug, hoping the rough sea would quiet down so that she might be put aboard the City of New York. She returned exhausted and disappointed at daybreak to the Hotel Biltmore. She had her son, 9-year-old Dick, jr., with her, and two little nieces, but her own two small daughters she had left behind at the hotel.

The meeting of the adventurer and the wife who has seen him start off three times in the last four years to risk his life was quiet and brief; it had to end after but a few minutes, that Admiral Byrd might start on the ride to City Hall.

Motley Broadway Crowd.

The troops, 2,500 soldiers and sailors and marines and National Guardsmen, regiments of Boy Scouts, and the Richmond Blues, and the Sons of the American Revolution, had started marching up the hot street half an hour earlier and the admiral's car, moving slowly behind the column, did not reach City Hall until just before 12:30.

Broadway was lined with the lunch-time crowds and with the inexplicable collection of sightseers, wispy old ladies, and perspiring men with little American flags in their fists, and schoolboys and housewives. Down from the tall buildings drifted the usual litter of ticker tape and scraps of telephone-directory pages, but only 70 tons of it, the street cleaners discovered afterward, to the 1,800 tons which carpeted and covered Lindbergh's progress up the same path.

Once City Hall was reached, the familiar rites were performed before the microphones and the 5,000 friends of the administration who jammed the bunting-trimmed grandstands.

Mayor Walker's Greeting.

Mr. Whalen introduced Admiral Byrd and Bernt Balchen, his chief pilot, and Harold I. June and the other members of the flight over the pole to Mayor Walker and the other officials gathered there.

The mayor responded with a sincere eulogy of the adventurer and his men which was both more brief and less graceful than his usual public remarks; it was "a great scientific accomplishment," but even greater for the humanitarian skill with which it was directed by "one of the finest humans ever born into this world throughout its entire history."

Admiral Byrd, with the gold medal of the city gleaming on his breast, thanked the city for himself and his men. It was good to be home, he said, and he was deeply touched that for a third time the city was doing him honor.

Chancellor Elmer E. Brown, of New York University, conferred on the admiral an honorary degree of doctor of engineering, and hung the hood of the doctorate over his slender shoulders.

Mayor Walker presented a bouquet to shy little Mrs. Byrd. George A. Ryan, president of the Board of Education, introduced a schoolboy who gave the admiral a medal of the Public Schools Athletic League for "achievement through fitness." The mayor presented medals to each of the 74 men, while Hector Fuller read the names to the crowd. The mayor presented the admiral with a portrait by J. J. Muller showing him in his fur parka against a background of Antarctic ice and snow.

The young explorer spoke simply of his two years at the bottom of the earth and went out of his way to share the honors of the day, the scientific results, with his men. Bernt Balchen sat at the speakers' table and received an ovation second only to his chief's. Harold June, his co-pilot over the pole; Capt. Gustave Brown, of the Eleanor Bolling, and Charles J. McGuinness, second in her command and the comedian of the expedition; Larry Guild, of the ice party, and William Vander Veer and Joseph Rucker, movie photographers on the trip, were introduced by Admiral Byrd and applauded by the diners. Russell Owen, New York Times chronicler of the expedition, acknowledged another round of applause. Every one came in for his share of credit.

Maj. Gen. Hanson E. Ely, commander of the Second Corps Area, greeted Byrd for the Army and said that, despite a general absence of jealousy between the two branches of the service, the Army is really jealous of Byrd, that he belongs to the Navy instead.

VIRGINIA WELCOMES EXPLORER AT DINNER

Flattered by Reception of Friends From State, Admiral Byrd Says.

HAPPY TO RETURN HOME

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, June 19. — The warm heart of the United States greeted Rear Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd, of Virginia, in this city today when he returned from 22 months in the icy Antarctic wastes. It was the third greeting Byrd had received at the hands of this callous community; it was the greatest reception accorded any explorer in the history of the Nation.

At a dinner held in his honor tonight at the Hotel Astor, where gathered dignitaries from Virginia and New York, Admiral Byrd was asked if he had any special message for his fellow citizens of his native State, to be given through The Post.

"Have I?" he queried; "have I?" and he emphasized that latter "have."

"Let me merely say this: I am utterly happy to be home; I look forward only to that moment when I may return to my native State. I am more than pleased, actually flattered, that such a large delegation from Virginia greeted me. Gov. Pollard and his delegation were a sight for homesick eyes. They brought a breath of the hills and plains of home."

Guests assigned to boxes in the huge ballroom of the Astor included Amiral Byrd's family and friends—Mrs. Richard '. Byrd, Richard Byrd, jr., Mrs. Harry F. Byrd, Mrs. Eleanor Bolling Byrd, Miss Margaret Byrd, Miss Westwood Byrd, jr., Frank Hack, Mrs. Frank Hack, Harry Frost, Mrs. Harry Frost, Stewart Bryan, Edmond Hunter, William Lawton, Col. Bryan Conrad, Col. J. W. Flood, William T. Reed and Mrs. William T. Reed, Richmond, Va.

The official Virginia delegation included Gov. Pollard, Lieut. Gov. James H. Price, St. Clair Brown, of the House of Delegates; State Senator R. S. Wright, Daniel L. Porter and Joseph F. Denny.

As Admiral Byrd stepped upon the dais in the hotel ballroom, and, with Gov. Pollard as spokesman, voiced the sentiment of their State when they declared:

"Virginia, proud of your attainment, bows in a welcome of open arms."

Charles R. Lamb, director, the Merchants Association of New York; Joseph S. Denny, House of Delegates, of Virginia; Dean Smith, flight division, Byrd expedition; Capt. H. H. Railey, aid to Admiral Byrd; Bernt Balchen, flight division, Byrd expedition; J. Crawford McCreery, director, the Merchants Association of New York; Capt. Ashley C. McKinley, flight division, Byrd expedition; James H. Price, Lieutenant Governor of Virginia.

Maj. Gen. Hanson E. Ely, United States Army, commanding Second Corps Area; Arthur Lehman, director, the Merchants Association of New York; Henry Hesterberg, president of the Borough of Brooklyn; Col. Michael Friedsam, director, the Merchants Association of New York; Grover A. Whalen, chairman, mayor's committee on receptions; Lewis E. Pierson, director, the Merchants Association of New York; Harry F. Byrd, former Governor of Virginia; William Fellowes Morgan, director, the Merchants Association of New York; Lawrence M. FLIER GREETS MOTHER ON RETURN FROM POLE

Sidelights of Reception Given Byrd in New York

New York, June 19 (A.P.).—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd will make no more expeditions to the ends of the earth if his mother has anything to say about it.

Throwing her arms around his neck as they met on the deck of the Macom at Quarantine she told him: "The next time you start on an expedition some one ought to chloroform you."

The admiral smiled

Prisoners in the old gray Tombs Prison on Center street waved through the bars as Admiral Byrd passed up Lafayette street. The admiral stood in his car and waved back. His gaze did not leave the institution until his car was well past.

Louis Wiley, newspaperman and president of the National Geographic Society, likened Byrd to Ulysses, in an address at the Advertising Club luncheon.

"It's lucky my companions and I did not land as did Ulysses or I'm afraid Grover Whalen wouldn't have accepted us," Admiral Byrd said in reply.

Ulysses, he recalled, got back home in his birthday clothes, washed up on the beach after a wreck.

Bernt Balchen, the shy Norwegian pilot of the airplane Floyd Bennett in the flight over the South Pole, is handy with his fists. Byrd disclosed that Balchen was the champion boxer of Little America. "I wish we'd had you down there, so somebody could have whipped Bernt," the admiral told James J. Corbett, former heavyweight champion and one of his welcomers.

"Pa," the 69-year-old Negro attached to the Richmond Blues, was tired. He'd marched all the way up Broadway from Battery Park to City Hall and it had been a long, hot way. So he lay down and went to sleep on City Hall steps as soon as "Massa Dick" had finished speaking.

Igloo, Admiral Byrd's little white and black fox terrier, didn't see much of the reception. He got so excited when he saw his master was going off without him that he had to be taken below decks on the City of New York and locked up.

Van Lear Black, Baltimore publisher who has flown more than 200,000 miles in different parts of the world, flew here from Buffalo last night for the Byrd reception, and got his most thrilling ride. That superlative he applied to his police-escorted dash through city traffic from City Hall to his hotel.

The biggest day for Paul Siple, Erie, Pa., Boy Scout member of the Byrd party, is yet to come. June 28 has been declared a civic holiday in Erie, when he is to be welcomed home by his home town.

DETROIT KIDNAPING CHIEF BETRAYS SIX

Warrants for Six Alleged Laman Gangsters Issued After Confession.

FIVE AMATEURS SOUGHT

Detroit, Mich., June 19 (A.P.).—Warrants were issued today for six alleged members of the Joseph (Lega) Laman gang of kidnapers and murderers following Laman's confession in which he told of the gang's activities over a period of almost ten years.

Five young men and a young woman, alleged members of another gang which planned to go into the kidnaping racket, also had warrants issued against them charging conspiracy to kidnap.

Laman's confession named Harry Hallisey, Ben Rubenstein, Stanley de Long, Joe O'Reardon, Jerry Mulane and Roy Cornelious. The first three are held here, O'Reardon and Mulane are sought by police, and Carnelious is in the Federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kans.

Viewed as Amateurs.

The young woman, Frances Poloski, and her five companions, Morris Kahan, Hyman Case, Harry Metzger, Gidio Gowatch, and Frank Verzi, are considered "amateurs" by police, who say they plotted to kidnap Max Kerner, Detroit amusement park operator, and hold him for ransom.

Laman was a principal figure in the kidnaping and murder of David Cass last summer. He and Harry Andrews are serving terms of 30 to 40 years in the Michigan State prison at Jackson for the kidnaping of Fred Begeman, retired Wyandotte bootlegger. Edward Wiles and Frank Hohfer are serving life terms for the murder of Cass. Police announced today that Laman's confession was corroborated by statements from Andrews and De Long. They involved all the alleged members of the gang for whom warrants were issued today.

Cohen Kidnaping Charged.

The specific charge in the warrants is kidnaping Reuben J. Cohen, who was abducted August 2, 1928, and released after $7,100 ransom was paid.

Police have information that some members of the Laman gang took part in the kidnaping of 5-year-old Jackie Thompson, son of Henry Thompson, Detroit real estate dealer. Jackie was kidnaped last September, held for three weeks and rescued by police after his father paid $27,000 ransom. James Fernando, Detroit used car dealer, is serving a 30 to 60 year sentence for kidnaping the Thompson boy. A long list of kidnapings and slaying is laid to the Laman gang by police.

MAD KILLER SOUGHT FOR TWO MURDERS

Escaped Maniac, With Plot Hallucination, Believed Seen in Queens.

SLAYS GIRLS' ESCORTS

New York, June 19 (A.P.).—Hoping to solve soon the maniacal killing of two men in Queens within a week, forces of law in New York and its environs tonight were organized in a hunt for a murderously insane man who escaped a month ago from the Kings Park Asylum, at East Islip, Long Island. He is Joseph Ustica, slayer of William Gilbride, Brooklyn contractor, in Freeport, Long Island, in 1928.

Hope of an early capture of the insane slayer was raised today by the story of Edward Miller, 15-year-old boy, that he probably had seen the slayer immediately after the murder of Noel Sowley, whose body was found in his auto in a lonely road near Creedmore Monday night. The boy told the police a man came out of the bushes, as he rode his bicycle close by the scene of the murder, and told him that if he looked sharp as he went along he would see an automobile parked on the side of the road.

This man, mentioned first as only a casual picker of dandelions, may be the killer, police now believe. Police sent for Miller as soon as it was discovered that Ustica was at large.

The same man who slew Sowley is also believed to be responsible for the killing of Joseph Mozynski, of College Point, Queens, a week ago yesterday.

Ustica suffered under delusions that his mission was to recover certain mysterious documents and to protect women.

Letters to newspapers purporting to come from the slayer of Sowley and Mozynski have referred vaguely to missing papers of great value, and after each murder the killer escorted to the nearest transportation line the young woman found in the parked car with his victim along an isolated lane in a thinly settled section of Queens.

Police today scoured by-paths along the Boston road in the Bronx after a letter to a newspaper had said the body of the third victim would be found there. Search failed to reveal a body.

Events of the War 13 Years Ago Today

June 20, 1917.

German submarines sank 32 British vessels, of which 27 were of more than 1,600 tons, during the past week.

Canadian troops captured many German trenches near Reservoir Hill, in the Lens area.

President Wilson set June 23 to 30 as the week of enlistment for 70,000 recruits to the regular Army.

German and Austro-Hungarian consulates at Geneva were stoned by angry mobs.

Man Who Forged Checks In Jail Adjudged Insane

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., June 19.—Allen E. Via, of Browns Cove, Albemarle County, who forged three checks while confined in the Rockingham County Jail serving a six-month sentence for fighting and incendiarism, was adjudged insane today by a commisson.

For the past two weeks Via has been acting peculiarly. He would yell that his dead brother-in-law, whom he shot in a row, was trying to kill him. He is being held in jail for observation pending his confinement at Marion Insane Asylum.

DEFENSE OF FRANCE JUMPS $39,000,000

Sum Added to Appropriation in Budget as Reply to Italian Activity.

SOCIALISTS WANT DATA

Paris, June 19 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The present French government will ask Parliament for $39,000,000 for the army and navy beyond the credits provided in the national budget, it has been decided between Prime Minister Andre Tardieu and the ministries affected. That the sum is needed because of Italy's unfriendly attitude is the immediate interpretation placed by the public and by many newspapers on this news.

The projected new credits served as a point of concentration today for the liberal and radical opposition in the Chamber of Deputies which decided not to permit the matter even to reach the Chamber from the finance commission without investigation.

Leon Blum, Socialist leader, prepared a motion for appointment of a parliamentary commission to examine into the state of the French army and navy and this country's frontier defenses, but he did not present it today when Tardieu proposed to place before the finance commission tomorrow all the information it wants.

Huge Expense Charged.

Efforts are being made on one hand to explain away the proposed extra credits and on the other to point out that $39,000,000 is a mere beginning and to accuse the government of preparing to spend $195,000,000 to $224,000,000 on new armaments.

Tardieu's efforts to obtain the finance commission's consent to the new credits are based upon the lowness of military stocks, depleted by the warfare against the Riffs and never since replenished, but demand for the money, coming at this time with public discussion on every side of what is characterized as the hostility of Italian Fascists toward France, the government's plans are seen as directed against Italy. For the first time several French newspapers write almost openly about preparations for defense against Italy. Lifting the veil on these defensive measures the Paris Midi says:

"It has been commented with some passion that since Mussolini's recent speeches there are rumors circulating of important works of defense and hasty replenishing of stocks which have been actively pursued these recent weeks on our Alpine front and in northern Africa."

Time for Action.

L'Intransigeant, explaining the need for credits, says, normally it would be unnecessary to have large quantities of war supplies. "But when there is inquietude or tension of some sort the first duty is to reestablish stocks. If used up they ought to be replenished hastily. This is the present case."

It is commented in political circles that both the French and Italian sea and air forces are in state of constant activity in the Mediterranean, which, however, is attributed merely to summer maneuvers. The air squadrons are often approaching the neighboring shore, a recent case being that of an Italian squadron which circled close to Toulon, causing some local comment.

CAPITAL WELCOMES ADMIRAL BYRD TODAY

on Secretary of the Navy Adams, to discuss informally his polar findings, and possibly refer to his future Navy work.

Following his conference with Secretary Adams, Admiral Byrd and his command will motor to Arlington Cemetery, to lay wreaths on the graves of Admiral Robert E. Peary, discoverer of the North Pole; Admiral Charles Wilkes, noted Antarctic explorer, and Floyd Bennett, who piloted Admiral Byrd over the North Pole last year.

In the late afternoon members of the expedition will be free to enjoy the sights of the city, or to get some of the rest that has been denied them since their ship docked in New York yesterday.

Motion Pictures of Expedition.

The high light of the day's round of ceremonies will be the medal presentation and moving picture exhibition at the auditorium tonight for which more than 15,000 seat applications have been necessarily refused. The society's local membership exceeds the seating capacity of the hugh hall, and seats were allotted strictly in the order of application receipts.

In addition to unprecedented demand for seats on the part of Washington members, the society was yesterday deluged with telephone requests from members in Boston, New York, Pittsburgh and other cities.

Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, the society's president, will conduct the meeting and the presentation address will be delivered by President Hoover. The program will be broadcast over the coast-to-coast hook-up of the National Broadcasting Co.

In an address of acceptance, Admiral Byrd will summarize his scientific discoveries and discuss his command's long stay on the ice flats of the South Pole.

Following his address, motion pictures taken by the expedition will be exhibited for the first time.

Richmond Next Stop.

Admiral Byrd is expected to leave tonight for a reception at Richmond, Va., tomorrow, while members of his party will return to New York on a special train leaving at midnight.

Among others accompanying the group to Washington are Admiral Byrd's wife and his mother, Mrs. Eleanor Bolling Byrd; his brother, former Gov. Harry Byrd of Virginia; the former governor's children, Harry, jr., and Miss Westwood Byrd, and Capt. Tom Byrd, another brother.

Paul Siple, the Boy Scout member of the Byrd party, will be greeted at the station by Washington Boy Scouts, and will speak tomorrow morning in the Central High School Auditorium at 11 o'clock.

The following route will be followed from the station to the Willard Hotel:

East across east plaza of the Union Station to Delaware avenue; south on Delaware avenue to Capitol Grounds; south across east front of the Capitol to south roadway of Capitol; west on south roadway to First street southwest; north on First street to Peace Monument; around Peace Monument to north side of Pennsylvania avenue; west on Pennsylvania avenue to Fifteenth street; north on Fifteenth to F street; east on F street to Willard Hotel.

Wheat Crop in Page Reduced One-Fourth

Special to The Washington Post.

Luray, Va., June 19.—Reports from threshermen and wheat growers in the four districts of Page County—Shenandoah, Marksville, Luray and Springfield—show that only three-fourths of a crop will be harvested this year. Springfield and Luray districts show a slightly better wheat yield than the other two districts, the outlook in Marksville district being about 5 per cent better than in Shenandoah district. The barley crop will not be more than 60 per cent of an average yield, while the oat and hay crops are almost a total failure.

PACKING FIRMS GAIN $14,000,000 REFUND

Decision by Court of Claims Gives Tax Surplus Back to Companies.

THREE POINTS DECIDED

(Associated Press.)

Tax refunds amounting to more than $14,000,000 to packing companies and related concerns throughout the country were announced yesterday by the Internal Revenue Bureau, as a result of a decision by the Court of Claims last March in a suit brought by Swift & Co.

The refunds included: Swift & Co., Chicago, $4,164,034 refund, $2,760,567 interest; Libby, McNeill & Libby and affiliated companies, Chicago, $2,325,365 refund, $1,388,792 interest; Plankinton Co., Milwaukee, Wis., $934,969 refund, $608,828 interest; Swift & Co., Chicago, refund $41,841, interest $27,073; Omaha Packing Co., Chicago, refund, $506,643, interest $329,965.

Involved in the Swift suit, based on its net returns for 1918, was whether the tax returns should be made on a fiscal or calendar year basis. The Government contended the returns should be made on the fiscal year, but the court sustained the packers' contention that the returns should be paid on the calendar year.

Another question was whether the so-called net loss provision in the 1918 revenue act was applicable to Swift & Co. The court decided it was. This provision, made to take care of losses suffered in the depletion period after the war, provided that if a taxpayer suffered a net loss in 1919 he could deduct it in his return for 1918.

In the Swift & Co. cases there were a large number of consolidated corporations in 1918, which broke up into separate units the next year, and the court decided that the provision could be applied to their returns also.

House Committee Told of Military Training Given in U. S. for Revolution.

ATHEIST WORK SPREADS

(Associated Press.)

Having laid the groundwork for its inquiry into Communist activities at hearings ended yesterday, the special House Communist committee announced it would meet in New York July 15 to hear representatives of the Amtorg Trading Corporation, official Soviet commercial agency.

Three weeks of hearings were brought to a close yesterday after Mrs. Mary Sherman Walker, of Seattle, Wash., said the Communists were training American school children in street fighting, military tactics and in propagandizing work to prepare them to lead a revolution.

Under questioning by Representative Bachmann (Republican), West Virginia, Mrs. Walker, chairman of the national defense committee of the Daughters of the American Revolution, said that from the 64 exhibits she presented to the committee there could be no doubt the movement was on the increase in this country.

Children's games such as "hide and seek," she said, had been changed to "hunt the capitalist" and "find ammunition" and songs of vicious language had been set to the tune of "Onward Christian Soldiers."

Byrd Expedition Cost $800,000

$100,000 Deficit Expected to Be Taken Care Of by Explorers' Friends.

New York, June 19 (A.P.).—The entire cost of the Byrd Antarctic expedition was not more than $800,000, Capt. H. H. Railey, the rear admiral's personal representative, estimated today.

He said this figure compares favorably with the cost of similar expeditions in the past. The Scott South Pole expedition cost about $600,000, he said.

Approximately $100,000 remains to be paid. However, no further public subscription will be asked. It is expected that all money needed to square the debts of the expedition will be supplied privately by friends of the explorers.

Sailors Try to Battle Way Off Ship; 3 Held

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, June 19 (A.P.).—A concerted move by nine sailors of the Greek steamer Frangoula B. Golandris to desert resulted last night in a battle of an hour with the ship's officers, and today three of the sailors were under arrest and the six others were sought.

Baltimore police were told by Capt. Stanadio Ploemis, commander of the vessel, that the nine started to leave the ship while it was in charge of the first officer. When he objected and other officers came to his aid, the battle took place. The Golandris arrived at its Canton pier at a distant section of the harbor, two days ago with a cargo of manganese ore from Russia.

Bond Issue Voted For Orange Sewer

Result Expected to Effect Growth of Town in Industrial Way.

Special to The Washington Post.

Orange, Va., June 19.—Orange today voted almost unanimously for a bond issue of $150,000 for sewerage and improvements to the present water system. The vote was 166 for to 2 against the issue.

The result will, it is believed, have great effect on the industrial growth of the town.

While a number of towns in Piedmont Virginia have decreased in population since the 1920 census, the town of Orange has increased approximately 300. The town has two splendid financial institutions with combined resources in excess of $3,000,000, three large hotels and eight large manufacturing plants. These plants give employment to hundreds of persons.

Police Seek C. R. Green As Mother Lies Dying

Washington police last night received a letter asking them to locate Clifton R. Green, who checked out of the Naval Hospital here on the 11th of this month, and notify him that his mother is dying in Richmond, Va.

The letter was signed by Mrs. Olive St. John, of 719 Mosby street, Richmond, who is a sister of Green's. At the address given by Green at the hospital he was not known, police reported.

LABOR HEAD CALLS CONGRESS FAILURE

(Associated Press.)

The present Congress was termed an "absolute failure so far as dealing constructively with the problem of unemployment" is concerned in a statement issued last night by William Green, president of hte American Federation of Labor.

Green said the federation was "deeply disappointed" over the House judiciary committee action in voting to refer the Wagner employment agency bill to a subcommittee.

"We construe such action," he said, "as an expression of hostility and opposition to this proposed measure." He also expressed regret at the committee's amendments to the Wagner bill for long range planning of public works, terming the amendment "highly objectionable to labor."

"It is amazing indeed," he continued, "that Congress, meeting at a time when the Nation is suffering from the effects of a long continued period of unemployment, would fail under such circumstances to do something constructive which in effect would be a partial remedy for the distressing situation."

He said failure now expected of passage of the Wagner bills resulted in a total absence of legislation on unemployment at this session.

"This is especially tragic when we take into consideration the fact that Congress has been in session for almost one year during a period of unemployment that has been serious in its effects and widespread in its application."

HOOVER CONFERS ON BILL IMPASSE

willing to enter into a reasonable compromise."

To enter into a conference without some such intimation, Senator Bingham said, would simply be to go back to where the conferees were when they broke up in a hopeless deadlock.

When Mr. Simmons was asked if he were prepared to enter into a reasonble compromise, he reiterated the statement that he has been making over and over again—namely, that the senators have produced no facts to warrant a compromise.

Not Summoned Yet.

So far, Mr. Simmons has not been summoned to the White House.

The man who will take over Mr. Simmons' job of handling the District bill, Representative Holaday (Republican), Illinois, evidently expects that there will be another fight over the measure next year.

He announced yesterday that if he has his way the House will recommend a Federal contribution of $6,000,000. Then, he said, if the Senate again asks for a Federal contribution of $12,000,000, the two houses can compromise by agreeing on $9,000,000.

SENATE COMPLETES INQUIRY INTO ACTIVITIES OF CANNON

sition of $65,300 contributed to him for the 1928 anti-Smith campaign by E. C. Jameson, a New York capitalist. But he added:

"As to the $65,300, he stands in an unenviable position and he can answer for himself. I will not."

Going into the source of the money Senator Caraway said he did not believe it belonged to Jameson.

"I think he was passing out money of the Republican national committee in order to fight Al Smith on religious and other grounds, and I did not want to be connected with it. I may be mistaken about that.

Bishop Cannon was brought to Jameson by Bascom Slemp (Republican national committeeman for Virginia), who was very much interested, of course, in Republican success."

Chairman Caraway presented as a report from the committee a transcript of thousands of words of testimony given by Bishop Cannon during his appearance before the group. He informed his colleagues that the committee had agreed that it had no right to ask questions which the bishop declined to answer. Then Vice President Curtis announced that he would not cite the bishop to the district attorney for possible contempt proceedings.

Action by the Vice President was the final straw to which opponents of the bishop clung in their hope that something would be done about his defiance of the lobby investigators. The announcement by Mr. Curtis definitely closed the incident.

Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, had contended the law required Mr. Curtis to report the bishop to the district attorney. The Vice President, however, took the position that there was nothing before him to act upon.

He explained that the lobby committee itself had ruled, 4 to 1, that it had no right to investigate Bishop Cannon's political activities. In addition, he said he could act only upon a report from a full committee. The lobby investigators composed a subcommittee of the judiciary committee.

Mr. Caraway said that any statement that the bishop was given "immunity" by the lobby committee was an "unqualified and deliberate falsehood." Pounding his desk, he said:

"Certain people want to charge that Bishop Cannon was given immunity. That statement is an unqualified and deliberate falsehood and whoever utters it does so with the knowledge that he is a common liar. I claim no immunity for that declaration here or anywhere else."

Reference to Criticism.

Referring again to criticism of the lobby committee for not compelling Bishop Cannon to answer the questions, Mr. Caraway asserted:

"There have been more statements made that arose from utter ignorance of what did occur or were prompted by malicious lying than about any other incident I know of. While it may not be parliamentary, I want to say that if any one asserts that there was a different rule applied in this case than that which had been invoked in several other instances, or at least that the chairman had changed his position in this matter, he either does not know what he is talking about or he is uttering a wilful and malicious lie. And that stands in the Senate and outside of it."

Mr. Caraway said that the committee had never inquired into purely political activities and cited a number of instances in which he said questions pertaining to such activities had been withdrawn.

During the examination of Claudius H. Huston, chairman of the Republican national committee, Mr. Caraway said political questions were withdrawn six times. He added that the same thing occurred during testimony of John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, and other witnesses.

Steiwer Committee Cited.

Mr. Caraway said that the Steiwer committee appointed in 1928 to investigate campaign contributions had full authority to inquire into the $65,300 contributed by Mr. Jameson to Bishop Cannon.

"I am not criticizing it for not doing it," he said. "It could not pursue everybody that got a nickel in that campaign and nobody ever expected it to do so. But at least it had the authority to do it. It was expressly charged with the exercise of that authority and did not do it. We had no authority to do it. We were not charged with that duty and, of course, we did not do it."

Mr. Caraway continued:

"It is intimated—and I am not defending it, nor making the charge; I say that it was made by insinuation at least on the floor of the House—that Bishop Cannon misappropriated the funds. That may be true, but we were not a grand jury We uncovered several things that we did not pursue."

in one sweep, but that he might make one change or two now and arrange it so, by understanding with the members, he could make other changes later. It is believed, though, that the President would like to get the commission working under the new order as soon as possible.

Salaries Are Increased.

Salaries of the commissioners have been increased to $11,000 in the hope that the type of men the President wants may be brought in. It was originally proposed to make the salaries $12,000, but the $11,000 figure was finally hit upon.

The belief is that even after Mr. Brossard and Mr. Dennis are reappointed they will have to run the gantlet in the Senate. The Progressives and the Democrats have it in for them because of their activities at the height of the recent tariff fight. While the coalition was describing the bill as a monstrosity, these gentlemen were making statements that it was a good bill. They were denounced on the Senate floor at the time. Their action was right unusual.

BLOOM UNDER FIRE AS ADVERTISING MAN

ber, "are of the type of advertising which would shame a one-ring circus, and not at all the type that one likes to think of in connection with George Washington.

"I hope that the committee in charge will so limit its expenditures in the future as to permit value to come to the people of America from this celebration, and avoid allowing it to degenerate into buffoonery.

"This should be a solemn ceremony, and not a hippodrome."

Representative Bloom said that he saw nothing undignified about the tire cover. And evidently, he added, neither did the 150 or so members who had ordered them.

He explained that the Bicentennial Commission had not bought the covers from the Canton, Ohio, firm that manufactures them, but had simply written to the members of Congress to tell them that they were available.

U. S. Border Patrol's Shots Kill Mexican

El Paso, Tex., June 19 (A.P.).—An unidentified Mexican was killed near the Rio Grande, 2 miles south of San Elizario, in a gun battle between Mexican smugglers and United States mounted customs inspectors last night.

The battle was the first between smugglers and Federal officers in this district in three months. Another Mexican who escaped across the river was believed to have been wounded. A short distance from the spot Jack F. Shafer, a Los Angeles writer, was shot to death by smugglers a year ago. The shooting began when five mounted officers sighted two horsemen coming from the Rio Grande on heavily loaded mounts.

FRANCE OFFICIALLY SCORES U.S. TARIFF

Chamber of Deputies Body Threatens Reprisal if Duties Are Not Cut.

TARDIEU TO GET ORDER

Paris, June 19 (A.P.). — Official France made its first move of protest against the new American tariff and its first official threat of reprisal today through the committee on customs of the Chamber of Deputies. The committee adopted the following "order of the day" to be submitted to Premier Tardieu.

"The committee on customs of the Chamber, after examining attentively the consequences of the increase in customs duties, decided upon by the United States, notes with regret:

"First, that the new American tariff, affecting especially the most active branches of production, will sensibly decrease French exports to that great, friendly country.

"Second, that it will seriously increase the difficulties which generalized economic nationalism bring about in international exchanges.

"Third, that owing to the injury done to the equilibrium of their commercial balances, countries which have debts to settle with the United States risk severe tension in the monetary systems.

"The committee deems it necessary to adopt French customs duties, as applied to American products, to the regime to which will be submitted French exports to America, and requests the government to intervene immediately with the President of the United States to obtain such decrease in American customs duties necessary to the maintenance of French exports.

"The committee on customs, in event that such intervention remains without result, would insist upon suppression of the clause now granting most favored nation treatment to the United States, deeming it illogical that the United States should benefit by such treatment without the slightest reciprocity such as consented by other nations."

DAY IN CONGRESS

SENATE.

Met at noon and recessed at 5:35 p. m. to noon today.

Chairman Caraway, of the lobby committee, submitted a report on the investigation of Bishop James Cannon, jr. Vice President Curtis said he saw no reason for citing the bishop for possible contempt proceedings.

Continued consideration of the rivers and harbors bill, adopting the Blaine amendment to place specific restriction, under the present House bill, on diversion of Lake Michigan into Illinois waterways.

Senator Black (Democrat), Alabama, placed responsibility on the administration for the failure of the House and Senate conferees to agree on legislation to dispose of Muscle Shoals.

Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York, attacked the House judiciary committee's action on his three bills to relieve unemployment.

Military affairs committee approved the nomination of Col. Charles H. Danforth to be brigadier general and assistant chief of the Army Air Corps.

Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, failed in an effort to get action on his resolution to modify the Senate's order for removal of dial telephones.

HOUSE.

Met at noon and adjourned at 6:08 p. m. to 11 a. m., today.

Naval committee approved a measure to authorize the acquisition of private holdings in Navy Reserve No. 1, at Elk Hills, Calif.

Adopted the conference report on the bill reorganizing the Federal Power Commission into an independent agency of five members to devote their entire time to the administration of the Nation's water power resources. This completed congressional action and the bill now goes to the President.

Representative Knutson (Republican), Minnesota, asserted that he was dissatisfied with the interstate commerce committee's revision of the Senate resolution to hold up railroad consolidations.

Representative Ellis (Republican), Missouri, demanded repeal of the act which created the Federal Farm Board.

Judiciary committee voted to table the Dyer resolution proposing a constitutional amendment to provide national representation for the people of the District of Columbia.

Asserting that the country "is threatened with the worst economic panic in its history," Representative Sumners (Democrat), Texas, urged that the Government provide a bounty for exportable farm products.

Special committee, authorized to investigate the official conduct of Judge Harry B. Anderson, of Tennessee, called off its proposed trip to Memphis because of important legislative business here.

William LaVarre, of Columbia, S. C., filed a petition for investigation of the official conduct of Federal Judge Bascom S. Deaver, of the middle district of Georgia. Speaker Longworth referred it to the judiciary committee.

Representative Taber (Republican), New York, criticized Representative Sol Bloom (Democrat), New York, for his methods of advertising the George Washington Bicentennial.

TARIFF COMMISSION HAS FRESH WORRIES

INQUIRY ON SOVIET COAL

(Associated Press.)

While a House committee yesterday gave up the attempt to bind together the tag ends that have sprung out in a variety of proposals affecting tariff rates, new worries were accumulating for the Tariff Commission.

The State Department prepared to forward all foreign protests against rates to the White House and the Tariff Commission. At the same time a measure was introduced in the House to widen the scope of the investigation which the Senate already has instructed the commission to make into the cost of production of a group of articles.

The House ways and means committee decided it would postpone indefinitely action on measures affecting duties on anthracite, imports of cigars from Cuba and wiping rags omitted from the tariff act.

Russian Anthracite Questioned.

The committee, however, sent a request to the State, Treasury, Commerce and Labor Departments and to the Tariff Commission to make an investigation of the anthracite imported from Russia and report at the next session of Congress.

In a statement, Chairman Hawley said that the action of the committee in postponing further consideration of the coal, cigar and wiping rag duties would apply "to any other proposition for modifying in any respect the tariff act recently passed."

Representative Garber (Republican), Oklahoma, introduced a resolution to add harness, sugar and lumber to the list of items covered in the Borah resolution adopted yesterday by the Senate. Shoes, furniture and various farm implements were the other articles which the Senate directed the commission to investigate.

Democrats Renew Attacks.

From the Democratic side, attacks were renewed in the House yesterday against the act. Representative Crisp, of Georgia, Democratic member of the ways and means committee, said the "gag" rule was responsible for defects in the bill which he said already had been found to exist. The manner in which the measure was considered, he said, prevented inequalities from being ironed out.

Representative Boylan (Democrat), New York, said the "Grundy bill" will be the issue for the coming congressional campaign.

"The people will render their verdict on it next November and the Democratic party feels no concern over the result," he said.

Woman, 86, Making Lee Token Quilt

Tennessee Descendant of General to Present Gift to Foundation.

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., June 19.—As a token of the high esteem in which she holds the memory of Gen. Robert E. Lee, one of the most famous figures of her generation, Mrs. J. Harvey Mathes, an 86-year-old Memphis, Tenn., woman, has asked for permission to present the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation a beautiful silk quilt made by herself. Mrs. Mathes, a distinguished descendant of the Lees by virtue of direct connection with the Washingtons, Spotswoods and Dandridges, is an honorary vice president for life of the Colonial Dames and founder of the J. Harvey Mathes Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

The quilt will be hung with other mementos of the Lees in Stratford Hall, ancestral home of the Lees, which stands near the banks of the Potomac River, in Westmoreland County. There it will be viewed by the thousands who annually visit the historic shrine.

Mrs. Mathes today is quite feeble, but fired with the energy of her generation, continues busily with her needlework.

BENEFITS OF TREATY ARE CITED BY REED

she wants. That is easy to say, but hard to prove. If, as a matter of fact, Great Britain does not want 8-inch cruisers then you will readily see that the treaty forces her to have fifteen of the kind of ships that she does not want, aggregating 146,000 tons, while we are only forced to have 73,000 tons of the kind of ships that we are supposed not to want. Of course, the truth is, and every admiral on both sides of the controversy admits, that a certain number of each type are absolutely essential for a balanced fleet. And it is well to remember that when the American general board was unhampered by any treaty and could have built 8-inch cruisers if it chose, it built our ten Omahas which carry 6-inch guns."

Adverting again to the Johnson speech, Senator Reed said "if he is correct, the American delegation surrendered everything at London." He then called attention to the makeup of the American delegation. He added that when the London conference opened, "the British had four times our tonnage of cruisers and the Japanese had more than twice our tonnage."

On 8-inch gun cruisers, Reed contended that Great Britain comes down from 19 to 15 during the life of the treaty, while America builds up to 18; and that "Japan stands absolutely still with her present 12."

Battleship Overhauling To Be Considered Today

(Associated Press.)

The administration's plan for the modernization of three battleships—the New Mexico, Mississippi and Idaho—at a cost of $29,793,750, to give them improved effectiveness and added defense against submarine and aircraft attack is to be considered today by the House naval committee.

Asserting the acceptance or failure of the London naval treaty would have no effect upon the urgent desirability of immediate action by Congress to authorize the modernization, Chairman Britten said he felt sure the country generally would "applaud the intention of the Hoover administration to keep our first line battleship fleet second to none."

The Illinois member said the modernization of these ships would complete the Navy Department's policy laid down five years ago to extend the lives of battleships to avoid the necessity of replacing them at a cost of $140,000,000.

MORROW WILL QUIT MEXICAN POST SOON

Envoy to Visit Hoover and Stimson Next Week En Route to Embassy.

RESIGNS WITHIN MONTH

Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow is expected to come to Washington early next week for conferences with President Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson, prior to his return to his post at Mexico City.

Secretary Stimson made the announcement of Mr. Morrow's plans yesterday. He said that he had been informed that it was the ambassador's senatorial candidate's intention to go back to Mexico City probably next week to wind up the afairs of his ambassadorship and to bid farewell to President Ortiz Rubio and others of the Mexican officials, and to the Diplomatic Corps at the Mexican capital.

There are no outstanding problems for Ambassador Morrow to undertake afresh in Mexico, it is stated. The problem of the Catholic church and the state in Mexico has been entirely settled, largely through the efforts of Mr. Morrow. There still is, however, some work to be done on the economic side of relations between the two countries.

In the ambassador's protracted absence from Mexico City, dut to his service on the American delegation at the London naval conference, direction of the American Embassy in Mexico City was largely carried out by Reuben Clark, former Undersecretary of State, and at present one of the paid advisors whom Mr. Morrow took with him to Mexico.

It was stated that Ambassador Morrow's stay in Mexico may be for a little more than one month. Before Tuesday's primary election in New Jersey, Ambassador Morrow had planned to return to his post, just as he informed the State Department yesterday he would.

Wet Issue to Be Aired By New Jersey G. O. P.

Newark, N. J., June 19 (A.P.).—Announcement that Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, New Jersey's Republican nominee for United States senator, will meet party leaders Monday to discuss putting a wet plank in the Republican platform was made today by E. Bertram Mott, chairman of the State Republican committee. Mr. Morrow ran on a platform advocating repeal of the eighteenth amendment and State liquor control.

Mr. Mott indicated that Mr. Morrow would make no attempt to dictate a plank on prohibition and expressed the belief that the candidate would be disinclined to influence candidates for State offices in dry counties.

Mr. Morrow will address the Republican State convention in Trenton Tuesday, and will leave immediately afterward for Mexico City, where he will spend about two months in completing his ambassadorial duties. With sixteen districts of the State still missing, the unofficial vote in the Republican senatorial primary was: Morrow, 419,464; Franklin W. Fort, 118,256; Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, 48,058.

POWER SPOKESMAN ANSWERS SACKETT

Head of American Gas & Electric Co. Cites Other Utility Costs.

RATES HELD JUSTIFIED

Berlin, June 19 (A.P.).—A spokesman for the power industry tonight answered the speech made yesterday at the World Power Conference here by Ambassador Frederic M. Sackett, in which the ambassador said in effect that the cost of power to the consumer was 15 times that of the cost of production.

"The cost of a banana on the tree," asserts a statement issued by George N. Tidd, president of the American Gas & Electric Co., "is infinitesimal, yet by the time it has been gathered and reached the fruit stand the ratio is nearer 1,500 to 1 than 15 to 1, and similar examples are common in all kinds of industries.

"The electrical industry is by no means the only, or even the most striking, example of this great difficulty (of the spread between production cost and the cost to the consumer). In nearly every industry the cost of distributing and selling is much greater than the initial cost of production."

Grateful to Ambassador.

Although he attacked Mr. Sackett's logic, Mr. Tidd was calm in his references to the ambassador, whose speech was the storm center of the conference for a while. On the contrary, he concedes that "Ambassador Sackett has earned the gratitude of electrical engineers by drawing attention of the public to the high cost of distributing electricity, which those engineers for years have been attempting to reduce. This is, as the ambassador indicated, one of the vital problems which have engaged attention of our electrical supply companies for the last decade."

Stating that the problem of cutting distribution costs is universal, the statement continues:

"Perhaps the best analogy is in the supply of water for domestic use. The cost of production when the water is in the hills is nothing, but by the time it has been collected and purified and transmitted to domestic users, high expenses inevitably have been incurred.

Chain of Costs Cited.

"There is a continuous chain of costs in the process of producing electrical energy from water in the hills or coal in the mines. By choosing any particular point in this chain for calculating the cost of production, any ratio you like can be obtained. The selling price may be not 15 but probably 150 times, if not 1,500 times, the cost of water in the lake.

"On the other hand, it would be just as logical to calculate the ratio not at the generating station, but at some point between the central point and the customer—at some point where the ration would be more like two or three times."

Mr. Sackett's speech was delivered yesterday despite objections to the "15-to-1" portion by Samuel Insull, utility man of Chicago. After Mr. Insull's protests were received the embassy issued orders to hold up advance copies of the speech, but later canceled them and the address was delivered in full.

Atlanta Official Gets 12 Months in Bribery

Atlanta, Ga., June 19 (A.P.).—Alderman J. T. Turner, convicted yesterday on one of two counts of bribery, was sentenced today to serve 12 months on the chain gang and fined $500 by Judge Virlyn B. Moore, of Fulton Superior Court. After he was sentenced, the alderman said he would resign his post.

His counsel filed motion for a new trial, and Judge Moore set September 13 as date for the hearing. Bond was assessed at $1,500.

Turner's trial was the sixth graft duct in municipal affairs. It was trial to follow exposure of miscon- the fifth conviction of a city official.

The injured were brought in ambulances and a truck of the State Roads Commission. Calls were sent out for help and physicians were summoned.

Louisiana Executive Lacks Courage, Declares Legislator.

Baton Rouge, La., June 19 (A.P.). Representative J. V. Sanders, jr., stirred the Louisiana House of Representatives today with the charge that Gov. Huey P. Long lacked courage, and that his "crimes are limited to bribery and corruption." At the same time he hurled a charge of "liar" at Representative J. M. McClanahan.

His outburst was an echo of the rallies last night of Gov Long and the Constitutional League of Louisiana, at which Mr. McClanahan criticized the administration of former Gov J V Sanders, sr., father of the young representative from East Baton Rouge.

Mr McClanahan also implicated the younger Mr Sanders in his remarks, charging he cashed a check of $500 for a Sanders senatorial campaign that never was held. The younger Mr Sanders spoke to a point of personal privilege and said he would not accept Mr McClanahan's statement that "my father has charged Gov. Long with being a burglar."

"To commit the crime of burglary requires courage," he said, "and I do not think Gov. Long qualifies. His crimes are limited to bribery and corruption."

New York, June 19 (A.P.).—Walter Werner, broker and representative of foreign banks, was found dead in his apartment on Fifth avenue today, a bullet in his head.

Hitchcock to Oppose Norris in Senate Race

Omaha, June 19 (A.P.).—Former United States Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock, chairman of the foreign relations committee in the Wilson administration during the World War, today announced his candidacy for the Nebraska Senate seat now held by Senator George W Norris. Mr. Hitchcock is a Democrat.

Former Senator Hitchcock was for eighteen years a member of the Senate. During the World War he was chairman of the foreign relations committee. At the last two Democratic national conventions his name has been mentioned for the Presidency as a "favorite son." His father was a Republican senator from Nebraska before him and he was the first Democratic senator ever elected from Nebraska.

...men of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition

ALL America welcomes you home after your two-year trek into the vast wastes of the frozen Antarctic. And we congratulate you, every one, for your contributions to science . . . for your discoveries destined to be so far-reaching in effect as to be almost beyond human belief.
As an example of modern, scientific research your expedition has been superb. Past all barriers . . . surmounting all handicaps . . . you have, in a typically American manner, attained the magnificent goal you set for yourselves.
America hails you!
• And it is with pride that we point to the modest part which Bokar Coffee has played in this thrilling drama. For two and one-half tons of Bokar went along to Little America with the Byrd Antarctic Expedition. ALCOCK LAYS PLANS TO CLEAN UP CHICAGO

New Police Department Head Would Place 1,200 Men Always on Patrol.

PROHIBITION IS BLAMED

Chicago, June 19 (A.P.).—Elaborate plans were completed tonight for clearing Chicago of gang murders as a result of the assassination ten days ago of Jake Lingle, Tribune crime reporter, whose death has as yet been unsolved.

The united efforts of Mayor William Hale Thompson, of the reorganized police department, and of the city council were pledged not only to solve the murder of Lingle, but to cleaning up the underworld. While there were no clues to the assassins of Lingle, and his close friend, William Russell had steped out as police commissioner, the police chief's successor, John Alcock, said he would carry out the order of the mayor and free Chicago from brutal slayings.

The new police head began by ascribing rampant crime to prohibition, thereby agreeing with the final pronouncement of Russell in explaining why there was an alliance between crime and politics. Alcock, however, said that the city could be freed from gangdom's thrall and started reforms in police assignments to align his forces for battle.

The gangsters were not in evidence, many having taken vacations and even the hired gunmen lying low. No violent deaths of the underworld type have taken place since Lingle was shot down from behind in the pedestrian subway to the Illinois Central suburban station in the heart of a downtown crowd.

Commissioner Alcock told some of his plans and ideas to a city council committee today and issued many orders for the preliminary skirmish, just as his predecessors in the office have done at the start of an administration.

Alcock informed the city council committee that the department now has 1,100 policemen on beats. Of this number, which is spread over three shifts, not more than 400 policemen are on the streets at any one time, he said. He proposes to have more than 1,200 patrolmen on the streets at all times.

He also informed the aldermen that their present Detective Bureau, with 900 men, is a joke and a failure, that their investigation of the department will aid him in the work of combatting crime; that it would take a "fearless man like Theodore Roosevelt" at least five years to bring the Police Department's present manpower to 100 per cent efficiency; that high police officials do not get enough pay to keep them "legitimate," and that prohibition broke down effective law enforcement by causing organization of crime on a national basis.

INVESTIGATION SET INTO DEATH OF GIRL

Three Men Face Charges in the Fatal Burning of Mildred Sloper.

AUTO CAUGHT ON FIRE

Sheriff E. P. Kirby, of Fairfax County, has summoned a number of witnesses to appear before Dr. C. A. Ransom, coroner, at Falls Church, to testify at the inquest this morning regarding the death of Mildred Sloper, of Antioch Chapel, Va. The girl died Tuesday morning in a hospital in Washington as the result of burns received Monday night at Larrick's Garage at Merrifield, when gasoline ignited while being poured into the gasoline tank of the car in which she was a passenger.

The inquest will be held in the office of Justice of the Peace John T. Moling in Falls Church at 10 o'clock. Three men were arrested and charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor. Two are out on bond. They will be called to testify this morning. Fred Pettitt, of Vienna, is charged with taking the girl from her home Sunday afternoon. She did not return Monday night. It is stated that the other two, Joe Mills, jr., and John Harper, of West Falls Church, who were with the girl when she was burned, were taking her to her home at the time.

Sheriff Kirby stated last night that today's inquest will indicate whether or not a further criminal charge could be placed against the trio. The charge they are now being held under was placed against them until the matter could be more fully investigated. The sheriff did not indicate what other action he contemplates taking against the men.

Grand Jury Indicts Cashier at Del Ray

13 True Bills Returned in Bank Closing and Trial Set for July.

Special to The Washington Post.

Alexandria, Va., June 19.—Thirteen true bills charging grand larceny after trust were embraced in an indictment returned today by a special grand jury in Corporation Court against Clay T. Brittle, 32 years old, former cashier of the Bank of Del Ray, which closed its doors January 21.

Trial was set for July 8 in corporation court by Judge Frederick W. Coleman, of Fredericksburg, who presided over the jury upon appointment by Gov. John G. Pollard. Brittle, immediately upon indictment, renewed a real estate bond of $25,000 on which he has been at liberty after he was ordered held for the grand jury after a hearing in police court.

He was taken in custody on January 29, exactly a week and a day after the bank closed its doors on the order of its board of directors. The warrant for his arrest was sworn out by Nelson T. Snyder, the bank's president, and Henry P. Thomas, a director. It charged Brittle with defrauding the institution of an amount in excess of $60,000.

INDIA POLICE SUFFER IN BOMB OUTBREAKS

Second Explosions in Five Cities Hurt Officials Investigating First.

MORE ARRESTS MADE

Bombay, India, June 19 (A.P.).—Bombs today became the newest menace to the administration of British authority in India.

In Lahore, Amritsar, Lyallpur, Gujrnwala and Rawalpindi explosions of deadly missles tossed into vacant houses and elsewhere have caused injuries to officers and been the cause of disorders.

The outrages have taken an unusual form. In each case a bomb has been exploded in a house or inn, and after the police have gathered there for investigation another bomb has gone off.

At Amritsar this device was defeated by police who heard the ticking of the timing apparatus of the second infernal machine.

At Lyallpur an inspector was seriously wounded and at Gujrnwald a constable was wounded and considerable property damage caused. A subinspector, head constable and constable received slight hurts. In all cases the plot seems to have been aimed directly at the police.

Military activities continue on the northwest frontier. A column of regulars, accompanied by militia, went to Tangi yesterday and compelled an Utman Khel company to withdraw from the vicinity of the town into tribal territory.

Troops arrested five or six prominent "red shirts" without trouble. Another force, accompanied by a deputy commissioner, which left Peshawar for Swabi reached Kohat without incident. Field rations have been issued in Peshawar since Friday.

Considerable tension but no outbreaks marked the day in Bombay City. Twenty-five pickets were arrested in Bombay. During the past few days a new form of civil disobedience has made its appearance here. This the distribution of leaflets signed by congress volunteers, addressed to "our police brothers."

Police are exhorted in this appeal to give up their service under the government, and authorities are ready to deal rigorously with such suggestions. About ten of the arrests today were for distribution of the leaflets.

Refusal of villagers at Jahman, eighteen miles from Lahore, to supply food to troops and a detachment of police provoked a fight in which several persons were injured.

BATTLE ON DIAL TELEPHONES IN SENATE SLOWLY DYING AWAY

out, and those who liked them could keep them.

Three other senators heartily indorsed the Tydings substitute, and had it not been for an objection by Senator Glass, it is believed that it would have been adopted.

Senator Glass, however, indicated that when the resolution next comes up, he may stand aside. Thus, there is a probability that it will be adopted today. If it isn't the dials will go out.

Like those that have gone before, the debate on the question yesterday acintillated with wit and satire. When Senator Norris (Republican), of Nebraska, chided Senator Glass for not having a sufficient knowledge of arithmetic to operate the new telephone, a woman in the gallery laughed and clapped her hands loudly.

Senator Tydings said that a half dozen senators had asked him to press for action on his resolution.

"I want to make this single observation," replied Senator Glass. "I hav such an aversion to appearing singular and queer, that I hesitated to introduce the resolution which was passed 30 days ago by the Senate.

"The affirmative response to that resolution has been evidenced by a great number of letters and telegrams from all over the country, from Los Angeles to Maine, all commending the Senate for passing the resolution."

Senator La Follette (Republican), of Wisconsin, declared that he liked the new telephone; that he had found it faster than the old type.

Objects to Algebra.

Senator Glass declared that he would prefer not to "take lessons in algebraic figures any longer."

"I had a distaste for them when I was in school," he said, "and I would rather get a direct connection than to get a half dozen misconnections, as has been the case recently."

Senator Norris said that he liked the new telephone.

"It seems to me," he declared, "that when we try to have them removed, we are standing in the way of human progress.

"Personally, I think it is unfortunate that the senator from Vrginia did not study algebra when he went to school. For the sake of those who did not study algebra, let them have the old system; but let those who have studied it and are educated and who know alegbra have the newest and most modern system."

This was greeted with laughter.

Senator Barkley (Democrat), of Kentucky, said he did not like the dial at first, but now is fond of it.

Involves Chinese Puzzles.

"It appears to me," said Senator Glass, "that officials of the telephone company have been quite effective in teaching lessons in algebra. They have been so engaged throughout the Senate Office Building ever since the resolution was adopted. They have been personally interviewing senators and interviewing senators' secretaries as to what they preferred in the matter.

"I am not going to be persistent about it. I can take my lessons in algebra and in Chinese puzzles along with the other members of the Senate, and, perhaps, I shall not at some other time object to consideration of the resolution."

Senator Tydings said he would call up his resolution at the earliest possible moment.

HONOR TO ADMIRAL BYRD.

Yesterday New York welcomed boisterously Admiral Byrd and the brave band who sat with him through two long antarctic nights and worked with him through the antarctic days. Today Washington welcomes the party. At 9 this morning a special train will deposit the explorers in the Capital; at 12:30 the President will greet them at the White House; at 1:30 a luncheon will be tendered in their honor by the National Geographic Society, and tonight, at Washington Auditorium, President Hoover will bestow a special medal upon Admiral Byrd, following which the motion picture record of the expedition will be presented for the first time in public.

The Nation honors Admiral Byrd and his men for signal achievement. Having flown an airplane over the North Pole and having successfully completed one of the first transatlantic flights, Admiral Byrd organized an expedition for Antarctic exploration that became one of the wonders of the age. Every possible contingency was anticipated, and every emergency foreseen. Weeks were spent in collecting and testing equipment. Finally, the base at Little America was set up and the work of exploring the wastes of Antarctica was under way.

The flight to the South Pole was a minor episode in the Antarctic expedition. Because of its spectacular nature it caught public fancy, but the real accomplishments of the expedition were the exploration of thousands of miles of thitherto unknown lands, and the topographical, geographical, geological and meteorological surveys that were carried through. The expedition discovered rock formations indicating coal fields of unmeasured extent, the commercial significance of which at some future date can scarcely be overestimated. Scientists of the party became convinced that Antarctic meteorological conditions have a decided effect upon the weather of the world, as a result of which long-range weather forecasting may be a step nearer realization.

It is for these achievements that the Nation honors Admiral Byrd and his intrepid companions. It is in recognition of the great organizing and executive ability of this son of the Old Dominion, testified to by the fact that he brought the entire band safely home, that the public greets him with pomp and ceremony. During their sojourn in the dreary wastes that lie at the bottom of the earth, Washington followed every movement of the explorer-adventurers. Today it feels itself honored to honor them in person.

EXIT THE CROSSROADS STORE.

At the present rate of progress the can-opener will soon outrank every other tool in the domestic economy of the farmer. Already that implement has achieved a place in the kitchen of every urban home, from which it can never be displaced, and now, according to the deep-searching Bureau of Agricultural Economics, the farmer's wife is rapidly transferring her trade from the crossroads store to the more attractive merchandising establishments of the villages and cities.

In the days of our grandfathers the country store offered groceries in bulk. Package goods were unknown. The codfish of New England was sold, not in neat packages, but whole, and so saturated with salt that it would last throughout a summer. Crackers were dished out of barrels, molasses was sold by the gallon from another barrel in the cellar, and it took 40 minutes to get a gallon out of the barrel in January. There was a 55-pound tub of butter at the end of the counter and a 60-pound "full cream" cheese 2 feet away. Chests held the "oolong," "bohea" and "gunpowder" tea, while bags of green coffee, "Maracaibo," "Rio," "Javey" or "Mocha" were always within reach under the counter. The bins alongside were filled with "muscovado" or "coffee" sugar—granulated was scarcely known—and instead of the "cut" brand of sugar there were gleaming white "loaves" from which the storekeeper cracked off a pound or two at a time when the housewife was preparing to entertain "Elder" Jennings.

But all that is changed. You couldn't find a barrel of sugar or a sack of coffee in a search of five counties today; and as for a real codfish—well, "there ain't no such animal." Everything eatable is canned in these degenerate days, even to spinach, apple sauce and corn on the cob. The farmer's wife, like her cousin in the city, finds the can-opener easier to handle than the stew pan or the skillet; and besides, it is far easier to open a can of corned beef, fresh mackerel or any other of the delicacies stored on the pantry shelf, when "company" drops in unexpectedly, than to steam over a hot stove.

Hence, as the crossroads store can not keep up to date with respect to the latest and best products of the canneries, Mrs. Farmer prefers to take the flivver and run over to "town." The crossroads store is destined for the discard, along with the salted codfish and the barrel of crackers.

THE VETERANS' BILL.

Congress seem to be determined to enact an enormously costly bill for liberalizing the compensation of World War veterans without making any provision for raising the money. The public is in favor of more liberal treatment of veterans. The question that is about to arise between the President and Congress is not a dispute as to whether the Government should be generous to its defenders, but a disagreement as to the wisdom of upsetting the budget by appropriating money that is not in the Treasury.

The conference report on the veterans' bill will probably be a compromise, increasing the outlay beyond the figures of the Senate amendments, if not reaching the staggering total of the House bill. Where will the money come from? The outlay is not provided for in the budget. Even in the face of a somewhat larger collection of income taxes for June than was expected, the surplus at the end of this month and fiscal year will not approximate the cost of the veterans' bill. A deficit must be avoided if possible. Consequently income taxpayers will probably be deprived of the tax remission which they enjoyed for 1929. An absolute increase in taxes may be unavoidable.

As guardian of the finances President Hoover will be compelled to veto the soldiers' bill. It is a most disagreeable duty, but fair-minded men will grant that it is inescapable. If Congress should override the veto, as it is expected to do, it should take steps to provide the means with which to pay the increased allowances.

POWER ON THE DEFENSIVE.

Ambassador Sackett's criticism of the power industry as embodied in a speech he delivered before the world power conference in Berlin challenges the power-producing and distributing public utilities of the United States. Samuel Insull, of Chicago, tried to influence the ambassador to delete certain particularly critical portions of the address, and because of this unwarranted interference the incident has been accorded unusually wide publicity. Mr. Sackett was himself a public utility head prior to his entry upon a diplomatic career, and this fact, too, gives his words unusual force. The power industry in the United States can ill afford to ignore the criticism.

"I know of no other manufacturing industry," said Ambassador Sackett, "where the sale price of the product to the great mass of consumers is fifteen times the actual cost of production. Until the power industry is brought into line with other industries in the relationship of its cost of production to the price paid by the consumer, there can be little justification for thinking that this great power industry is rapidly approaching perfection." Mr. Sackett's statement is, of course, subject to challenge, but because of the attempt that was made to shut him up it will be difficult to counteract the effect of his charges.

It is up to the power industry to disprove the charge made by Ambassador Sackett or to justify the rates imposed.

NEW GAS TAX FORMULA.

Taxes levied by the different States upon gasoline vary from 2 cents to 6 cents a gallon, and there are indications that some of those States which have not reached the maximum levy are headed in that direction, according to the Lamp, official publication of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey. When first introduced the gasoline tax met with few complaints from the car owners, but the rate has been steadily increased, so that the estimated cost will be $20 to each car owner this year.

In the meantime the Federal Government is looking into the subject of motor vehicle taxation, and Charles F. Marvin, mechanical engineer of the Bureau of Standards, has worked out what is said to be an equitable and simple method of distributing the total motor tax levy as determined by the State. After studying the relative costs to the State which arise from the operation of various types of vehicles Mr. Marvin, in his first of three formulas, proposes the subtraction of the total proceeds of the fuel tax, leaving the remainder as the basis of the registration fees to be collected. The total tax on each vehicle should depend, he holds, upon the weight imposed upon the road surface by the vehicle and its load, the number of miles traveled during the taxable period and the type of tire used. Solid tires are considered more destructive to road surfaces than are pneumatics.

Mr. Marvin holds that as light cars are equitably taxed by the fuel tax alone the State should impose a gradually increasing tax upon such heavy vehicles as buses, trucks and the like. Inasmuch as the greatest justification for taxing cars is to defray the expenses of the State as the result of the operation of motor vehicles, the first and best approximation is one which taxes each in proportion to its responsibility for the expense of highway maintenance.

Mr. Marvin's proposal has the indorsement of the Bureau of Public Roads, Department of Agriculture.

CRUSHING TAXATION.

Every country of Europe which was affected by the World War, and it would be difficult to find one which was not affected, is struggling under increasing burdens of taxation. Great Britain is generally supposed to occupy first position in this respect, for as the period of that great struggle recedes into the past the British taxpayer is confronted with increasing demands upon his resources. But it is doubtful if the tax burden in any part of the world has increased as enormously as in some of the Balkan states.

The Obzor, or Zagreb, cites tables of state taxes paid by the peasantry of two Croatian communes, now included in Jugoslavia. One of these is Pachitchevo, which has a population of 4,593, of whom 215 are merchants, grocers and other small traders, and the remainder principally holders of small farms. This commune paid in state taxes 38,854 dinars in 1918 and 89,436 in 1920, with increases each year until the total in 1928 reached 1,123,917 dinars. The commune of Stara Palanka, also in Croatia, with a population of 5,514, of whom all are peasants except 148 "artisans and traders," paid only 9,555 dinars in state taxes in 1918, but increased its contribution to 598,762 in 1928, or 60 times as much as was assessed against the commune in the last year of the World War. "In order to better understand the insupportable growth of taxation," says La Macedoine, "it is necessary to consider the fall in prices of agricultural produce during that period. Maize prices fell 306 per cent between 1922 and 1928, and wheat 500 per cent during the same period.

Apparently the agricultural states in the Balkans are in greater need of farm board and some system of debentures than are the farmers of this country.

WHO OWNS THE AIR?

From the Manitoba Free Press.

Will the coming of aviation destroy the ancient doctrine that the landowner owns to the center of the earth under his property and to the sky above it?

March 4, 1930, the supreme judicial court of Massachusetts sustained the decision of the lower courts that Mr. Smith, of Grafton, was really not bothered by planes from an adjacent flying field traveling over his land, even though Mr. Smith stated in court that the planes not only worried him but also worried his horses.

In rendering the decision against Mr. Smith, the Massachusetts court said, among other things, that because Mr. Smith was not occupying the air over his property, the State could, therefore, exercise police power over this atmosphere and permit the planes to fly under certain regulations.

The owner of Grafton called the planes most annoying, but the lower courts of Massachusetts, through a master appointed to preside over this case before it reached the supreme court, took the interesting position that the Smiths, living in a modern world on highly civilized standards, for this reason, had no cause for complaint. Said the master:

"I find the plaintiffs are persons accustomed to a rather luxurious habit of living, and while the noise from the airplanes in flight over their premises has caused them irritation and annoyance, yet gauged by the standards of ordinary people, this noise is not of sufficient frequency, duration or intensity to constitute a nuisance."

The Smith case was decided by the supreme court on the basis that the police power of a State permits it to regulate minimum heights at which planes may fly and that this means when such height is established planes may fly anywhere. The court, however, considered only the questions of trespass and the nuisance resulting from its continuance. The court said that the planes flying over the Smith lands had not interfered with any valuable use of the land and that there had not been "excessive numbers" of airplanes droning over the Smith roofs.

Future legislation may establish who is to say what is excessive in the matter of numbers of planes passing over a private property. Mr. Smith, disturbed in his slumbers, probably thinks one plane a night is excessive.

The court, in the Smith decision, held that it was not a trespass to fly at an altitude of 500 feet over the property in question but that it was a trespass to fly as low as 100 feet in order to reach or leave an airport. The court held that flights at altitudes of 500 feet did not interfere with the rights of owners, but said nothing about flights between 100 and 500 feet.

ADMIRAL BYRD.

By DIANA KEARNY POWELL.

Hail to Byrd, our homing flier,
And the men who manned his planes—
They who wrote their names in fire
Down the starry polar lanes!

Where the condor's tireless pinion
Ne'er had dared the icy space,
The eaglet of the Old Dominion
Proved the valor of his race.

Like our own steep Rocky Mountains,
That of old his kin explored,
Splendor bursts in golden fountains
From the crags to which he soared.

Let our songs of exultation
Flood the channels of the sky,
And the honors of a nation
That is proud her sons can fly!

For the icebergs know his story
Where the Arctic Ocean rolls,
And auroras blaze his glory
As they flame above the poles!

AN OLD CAPITOL PASSES.

Workmen at Washington are tearing down a former United States Capitol—the old four-story brick building of shoe-box architecture which served as the seat of government from 1815 to 1819. Fire set by the invading British in the War of 1812 had wrecked the present building, and a group of citizens formed the Capitol Hotel Co., which built an emergency structure, says the St. Louis Post Dispatch. After its service as the country's Capitol, the old building was successively a genteel boarding house, a Civil War prison and private residences. Its history was dramatic and varied—James Monroe was inaugurated there; John C. Calhoun boarded in it; the warden of Andersonville Prison was hanged in the back yard; Gen. Leonard Wood was married in one of its parlors.

Two wars figure in the history written there—against Algiers and the Seminoles. The piping times of peace succeeded with those happy days, the "era of good feeling," when party lines vanished, there were no issues and the country waxed prosperous. The present American flag was adopted in this building. Henry Clay presided over the House there. Congress, sitting in these temporary quarters, admitted Illinois, Indiana and Mississippi to the Union and spent many hours in debate over what to do about Missouri. It voted to strengthen the Navy, and then to reduce the forces on the Great Lakes to a low state of parity with England.

Women's patriotic societies made many efforts to save the "old brick Capitol," but it stood in the way of progress and had to go. The Supreme Court, now in cramped quarters in the Senate wing of the Capitol, in a few years will occupy a new building on the site, fitting to its dignity and adequate for its needs. Doors, mirrors, mantelpieces and other fittings of the ancient structure are to be preserved as relics. Uncle Sam, like a good housekeeper who discards a once treasured rocking chair rather than have it standing in the way, would like to keep the old building, but the program for beautifying Washington made its razing necessary.

EXPERIENCE.

In school he learned to read and write,
To add, divide, subtract;
By patient study, day and night,
He gathered many a fact.
In algebra he managed well,
The poets he could quote,
But no one ever thought to tell
Him not to sign a note.

He passed in French and Latin, too;
His teachers thought him smart.
Problems in physics he could do,
Shakespeare he knew by heart.
For life they thought him fully trained
And competent, to vote;
But no one unto him explained
The danger of a note.

At 35 he had forgot
The good old Latin course;
But he had sadly learned just what
Occurs when we indorse,
Though he no longer pondered o'er
The stuff which Plato wrote,
He well remembered never more
To sign another note.

And he remembered stock in mines
Is dangerous stuff to buy;
That all not golden is which shines
And figures sometimes lie.
For none is wise, although he earns
All scholarships in reach
Until the bitter facts he learns
Experience has to teach.

"The More I Risk My Neck," Said Putnam, "the More They Must Risk to Catch Me."

By ROBERT QUILLEN

DO you know why brick masons and locomotive engineers get more money than office men who wear white collars?

Organization explains part of the difference, but there is an underlying cause that makes organization possible and effective.

If the masons and the engineers should quit work, few if any competent men would appear to take their places.

If the white-collar men should quit, a dozen men, old and young, would stand in line to compete for each job.

One man's job is secure and well-paid because it required a long apprenticeship and few are prepared for it; the other man lives in dread of losing his place because any man of ordinary sense, given a few hours of instruction, could do his work.

The man pushing a wheelbarrow gets 40 cents an hour; the surgeon works 30 minutes and is paid several hundred dollars.

Does that seem unfair?

It is as fair as any arrangement can be in an imperfect world.

The man with the barrow is paid for his immediate service; the surgeon is paid for the work he does now and also for the years he labored to prepare himself for that work.

That truth, properly understood, is the hope and safeguard of the man who must earn his bread.

I once knew a man in overalls, a Socialist, who boasted that he fared well because he had a monopoly as effective as any capitalist's.

"I monopolize," said he, "the skill and strength of the only man in this neighborhood who can be trusted to prune trees correctly, and therefore I fix my own wage scale."

The man who chooses an easy job must expect to have as competitors all other men who like easy jobs.

These competitors, bidding against him, lower the price of the service he renders, and he must work for little or surrender his job.

The man who chooses a hard job—one that requires years of study and practice, however easy it may seem when the apprenticeship is finished—has the comforting assurance that every day he spends in preparation shakes off a few more competitors.

With each added degree of weariness he can say: "I am just that much safer. No man can overtake me except by enduring what I endure."

The harder he must work to learn his job, the surer and greater his reward, for the men who will work equally hard are few.

The farther the gold field, the more men crack on the trail and the greater your reward when you get there.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Black Diamond Company, as Highest Bidder, Claims Right to Take Over American Diamond Lines.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As counsel for the Black Diamond Steamship Corporation, the present operators of the American Diamond Lines, may I call attention to two serious misconceptions in your editorial of June 16, headed "Controversy Over Ships."

You state that "The admiralty counsel of the Shipping Board has held that no provision in the law requires the board to award the services to the operators."

If this be true, the fact remains that the matter is not one that concerns admiralty counsel for the board in any respect, admiralty law having no connection with the interpretation of this particular act of Congress, the Jones-White Act of 1928. On the other hand, the general counsel of the Shipping Board has ruled that the operators are entitled to a preference in the awarding of these lines, and the board has steadfastly adhered to this preference policy in all other cases.

At the present time, our client is the high bidder for the American Diamond Lines.

You also state that the United States Lines "contract with the Shipping Board stipulates that advances from the construction loan fund shall be provided for replacements." The inference is that by contract the United States Lines are entitled to the necessary loans from the Treasury to build these super-liners, irrespective of the present financial condition of the company, its operating record and prospects of permanency. I know of no provision in the contract that requires the board to make such advances irrespective of such conditions.

The one question at issue is whether the board shall follow its uniform policy and award this line to the operator, who is also the high bidder, or place it in inexperienced hands for a smaller bid and without the slightest justification. An organization contacts with shippers and all of the resultant good will of ten years of effort should not be thus lightly thrown away.

That the sale should be made to the operators was the conclusion of the interdepartmental mail committee, as well as the house merchant marine committee, who by resolution, after full investigation and hearing, so declared unanimously.

Food Reserves in Storage Very Large in Spite of Some Reductions; Plenty for All.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Some satisfaction will be felt over the storage reports of the Department of Agriculture, in spite of the announcement that there are nearly 200,000,000 fewer pounds of meat in cold storage now than a year ago, because the same source of information reveals that there were on June 1 approximately 20,000,000 more pounds of cold storage poultry in the packers' rooms than a year ago. This is about 10,000,000 pounds more than the average for the past five years.

Of the meats which show decreased stocks, pork furnishes the greater volume, there being less pork by 141,000,000 on hand than was reported in storage last year. On the other hand, the supply of mutton and lamb is nearly 100 per cent greater than on June 1, 1929, and two and one-half times as great as the five-year average.

Two hundred million pounds of meat deducted from the national food stock looks like a very formidable shortage, but there is satisfaction in the knowledge that there was in reserve more than 834,000,000 pounds of meat, to say nothing of 61,000,000 pounds of ducks, turkeys, old roosters and young broilers, more mature fryers and roasters, available in case of emergency.

The reports of the butter supply would seem to hold out hope for lower prices, as the June 1 holdings were more than double the five-year average, being in 1930, 50,330,000 pounds, against the average of 22,664,000 pounds, while there are reported to be nearly 7,000,000 more pounds of cheese on hand than there were last year at this time. Of this 811,000 pounds are Limberger, and it is fortunate that this particular stock is not stored anywhere near Washington. There are also in cold storage more than 9,000,000 cases of eggs available. A standard egg case holds 30 dozen eggs. It is therefore evident that there were on hand 3,240,000,000 eggs on June 1, and this does not include the 108,000,000 pounds of frozen eggs also reported in storage. Altogether it would seem from the research work of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics that there is no danger of an early famine in the matter of animal food supply, and the winter vegetable crops are still to be grown and harvested. Let's be happy!

Something About Pluto, the New Neighbor, Which Takes Five Centuries to Go Around the Sun.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There seems to be little doubt that Pluto is the ninth planet of our solar system. The eighth planet, Neptune, was discovered by Leverrier and Adams in 1846. Pluto was discovered by mathematical calculations of the late Dr. Percival Lowell. The ninth planet was first sighted at the Lowell Observatory, Flagstaff, Ariz., on January 21, 1930.

Recent computations have been made by astronomers at Mount Wilson Observatory, California. Of course these computations may be changed later. The diameter of Pluto is given as about 3,000 miles. Accordingly Mercury, the innermost planet, and Pluto, the outermost planet, are each, approximately, the same size. Until now Mercury has been deemed the smallest of the planets. It takes mercury 88 days to revolve once around the Sun. It takes Pluto 2 or more centuries to complete one of its orbital revolutions. We should compare these orbital revolutions with that of our Earth, whose year is only 365¼th days.

Mrs. Boy-Ed Again Visits Homeland

Wife of Former Aid to Bernstorff Guest of Relatives.

By JEAN ELIOT.

ARRIVED in this country for her annual visit to her mother and sisters, Mrs. Karl Boy-ed, of Germany, is now the guest of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. William Bell Watkins, at Annefield, their colonial estate in Clarke County, Va. Later she will go to Seal Harbor, Me., to be with her mother, Mrs. Alexander Mackay-Smith, at Wild Cliff, her seaside home.

Mrs. Boy-ed, who was Miss Virginia Mackay-Smith, of Washington, revisits her homeland pretty nearly every summer, but, if memory serves, her husband, Capt. Boy-ed, has not set foot in the United States since he was handed his passports and sped on his way to Germany just before the United States entered the World War. He had been serving at the German Embassy under Count von Bernstorff, then German Ambassador, and his activities in behalf of his own country had made him persona non grata with the United States Government.

In view of the feeling against Germany which ran high at the time, the marriage of Miss Mackay-Smith and Capt. Boy-ed created something of a furore. If memory serves, they were married in Europe shortly after the close of the war, although their engagement had been known to their friends since before Capt. Boy-ed was sent home. Of course, there were many dire prognostications, but the marriage is conceded to be eminently happy, and Mrs. Boy-ed has taken root very successfully in her German home, although the ties which bind her to her native land have never loosened.

Before her marriage Mrs. Watkins was Miss Gladys Mackay-Smith. Her husband is a Philadelphian of a distinguished family, but for the last few years Mr. and Mrs. Watkins have spent very little time in their Philadelphia home, preferring life in the country. Some fifteen years ago "the Mackay-Smith" girls, in whose ages there was little difference and who were a singularly congenial pair, were great belles in Washington and had prominant part in pretty much everything interesting that was going on. Their older sister is Mrs. Charles Mariatt, wife of Dr. Mariatt, chief of the Bureau of Entomology.

Mrs. Boy-ed, Mrs. Watkins and Mrs. Mariatt are all daughters of the late Bishop Mackay-Smith, rector of St. John's Church for many a long year. Dr. Mackay-Smith was greatly beloved in Washington and his friends rejoiced when he was raised to the episcopate, serving thereafter as Bishop Coadjutor of Pennsylvania.

The group of delegates from the United States to the Pan-American Child Congress to be held in Lima, Peru, from July 4 to 11 will sail today for South America on the S. S. Santa Maria. Beside Judge Kathryn Sellers, of the Juvenile Court, and Miss Katherine Lenroot, already named, the group of women from Washington in the delegation includes Miss Bess Goodykoontz, assistant commissioner of education, and Dr. E. Blanche Sterling, of the United States Public Health Service.

There are twelve delegates in all, with men and women about equally represented. Prominent in the masculine group is Dr. James Hall Mason Knox, chief of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the Maryland State Department of Health. Minneapolis, Chicago, Cleveland, New York and other cities have representation on the delegation. The delegates were appointed by the President on the recommendation of the Children's Bureau, the Public Health Service or the Office of Education.

No chairman of the delegation having been named by the State Department, which has the pilgrimage under its wing, a presiding officer will be elected by the membership of the mission. Miss Katherine Lenroot, who is assistant to the chief of the Children's Bureau, has been chairman of the American delegation at two preceding Pan-American child welfare conferences, and it may be that she will be chosen again. She has special fitness for the role in the fact that she has already had many contacts with Latin-American officials and that she speaks Spanish fluently. Moreover, Miss Lenroot, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Irvin I. Lenroot, is a member of the council of the Pan-American Institute for the Protection of Children.

The official interpreter for the American delegation will be Miss Anna Maria Sherwell, daughter of the late Dr. Guiellermo Sherwell, some time on the faculty of the George-town Foreign Service School. Miss Sherwell is a Washington girl and has a post in the Pan-American Union.

The Secretary of War and Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley entertained at dinner last evening in honor of the Philippine Legislative Mission.

Mrs. Cabot Stevens will entertain at luncheon on Tuesday at the National Woman's Country Club for Miss Marjorie Mondell, whose marriage will take place next Thursday.

Miss Corbett Will Become Bride Today

Mr. C. L. Dickson, Long Capital Resident, to Wed in New York.

With the bridegroom long a resident of Washington, there is keen interest here in the marriage of Miss Elsie Brown Corbett to Mr. Charles Lewis Dickson, which will take place this afternoon in New York. The ceremony will be performed in the chapel of St. James Episcopal Church by the rector, the Rev. Dr. Frank Warfield Crowder, who will be assisted by the Rev. Dr. W. Russell Bowie, rector of Grace Church.

Following the wedding, a small reception will be held at the Colony Club, to which relatives and intimate friends of the couple have been invited.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Guy Corbett, of 955 Lexington avenue, New York. Mr. Corbett comes of an old family in Shropshire, England, and Mrs. Corbett is the daughter of Mrs. J. Willcox Brown and the late Mr. Brown, a banker of Baltimore, Md. Miss Corbett has attended Foxcroft and Oldfield schools and has traveled extensively abroad.

Mr. Dickson is the son of Mrs. Samuel Henry Dickson, formerly Miss Henrietta George, of Baltimore, and the late Capt. Dickson, Medical Corps, U. S. N.

The bride will wear a gown of beige chiffon and lace with picture hat to match. Miss Maria McKenney, of Maryland, will be the maid of honor and will wear a lavender-colored gown. The best man will be Mr. Henry Dickson, brother of the bridegroom.

Mr. Donaldson Brown vice president of General Motors and an uncle of the bride, has loaned his ocean-going yacht, Oceania, to the couple for their honeymoon, which they will spend in Nantucket. On their return they will be at 955 Lexington avenue, New York, for the rest of the summer.

Miss Martha M. Hanan, a life-long friend of Mr. Dickson's mother, has gone to New York to attend the wedding.

Rear Admiral Arthur J. Hepburn, U. S. N., who has been assigned to the next class at the Navy War College at Newport, R. I., has gone to Newport, accompanied by Mrs. Hepburn. They have taken the Buckley cottage on Kay street for the duration of their stay in Newport.

Mr. Frank B. Kellogg, former Secretary of State, and Mrs. Kellogg have gone to New York after a brief visit in Washington, and will start shortly for their home in Minnesota. They have been in the East for several weeks, spending some time in White Sulphur Springs, where Mr. Kellogg devoted much time to golf, his favorite recreation, and found himself at the top of his game. Later they attended commencement exercises at several universities from which Mr. Kellogg received honorary degrees. Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg made the trip from Washington to New York on the special train which bore Dr. Enrique Olaya, president-elect of Colombia, and which made a new speed record for the trip.

Senator Baird Soon To Wed Mrs. Smith.

Senator David Baird, jr., and Mrs. Francis F. Smith, of Camden, S. C., will be married within the next two or three days, the wedding probably taking place in Camden. Immediately afterward the couple will sail for Europe, but will return in time to join in the campaign for the election of Mr. Dwight W. Morrow to the Senate. Senator Baird was appointed to the Senate to fill the unexpired term of Senator Walter F. Edge, now United States Ambassador to France. He was not a candidate in the recent primaries for the seat to which Mr. Morrow aspires. The engagement of Senator Baird and Mrs. Smith was announced several months ago.

Mrs. Charles S. Deneen will entertain informally at luncheon today.

Miss May C. Marshall Visits in Capital.

Miss May C. Marshall, who spent the winter in Columbia, S. C., is in Washington for a few days, the guest of Rear Admiral and Mrs. Hilary Jones. Miss Marshall will sail tomorrow for Europe, where she will spend the summer.

Mr. John H. Storer has returned to his apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel after flying from New York to Boston and return, to attend the Anderson-Webster wedding there last Friday. Mr. Storer made the trip in a plane of the new Colonial Airways Corporation, which is composed principally of young graduates of Harvard and Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Mr. and Mrs. Demarest Lloyd are at the St. Regis Hotel in New York, as are Mr. and Mrs. David Lawrence.

Miss Waller Is Married to Senator's Son

Smith W. Brookhart, Jr., and Bride Leave On Honeymoon.

A wedding of national interest took place last evening when Miss Elizabeth Waller, daughter of Mrs. William Waller, became the bride of Mr. Smith W. Brookhart, jr., son of Senator and Mrs. Brookhart, of Iowa. The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock in St. Margaret's Episcopal Church, the Rev. Dr. Herbert Scott Smith officiating.

The bride was given in marriage by Mr. George W. Ward and wore a gown of white satin fashioned on princess lines with long tight-fitting sleeves and a circular train. The veil of tulle fell over the satin train and was caught at the back of the head with a cluster of orange blossoms. She carried gardenias and lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor, Miss Lillian Ward, wore a frock of sapphire blue net fashioned with a high waistline, short puffed sleeves and a long full ruffled skirt. She carried blue delphinium and talisman roses. The bridesmaids were Miss Alice Spalding, Miss Helen Taylor, Miss Carolyn Jackson and Miss Florence Brookhart, sister of the bridegroom. They wore costumes like that of the maid of honor, but in a delicate shade of peach, and carried bouquets of delphinium and talisman roses.

The best man was Mr. Herbert Easley, of New York, and the ushers were Mr. Robert Shields, of Washington, Iowa; Mr. Thomas Hearne, of Boston; Mr. Luis Prichard, of Washington, and Mr. C. E. Brookhart, brother of the bridegroom.

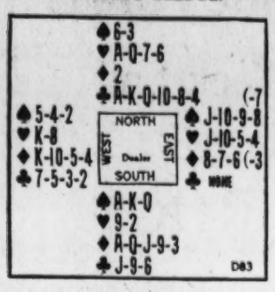
CONTRACT BRIDGE.



The above hand was held in a recent Contract Bridge Tournament in a prominent club in Brooklyn, N. Y. South's system was to bid two initially on "six or more tricks, at least three of which are high-card tricks"; as his holding could be counted as worth seven tricks, he started with a bid of two Diamonds.

After West's pass, North depending on South's ability to produce at least six tricks, bid for game in Clubs; and after East's pass, South bid six Clubs as he had a holding which seemed to ensure a slam when facing North's bid. South was justified in doing this because his hand was a trick stronger than the minimum his original bid had announced, and North must have some side strength which could only be in Hearts. A grand slam seemed possible to South; but a grand slam bid is so dangerous that it is justified only by a most unusual holding. South was not strong enough to bid more than six.

When the hand was played, with North the Declarer, the Jack of Spades was led and won by South. With the idea of exhausting the adverse trumphs in two rounds, Declarer started by leading one trump, winning it in the North hand so as to keep entries in both hands. When West showed up with all four of the adverse trumps, Declarer had to abandon that scheme.

Two possibilities now presented themselves: The Diamond finesse could be tried, and if unsuccessful, three of North's Hearts could be discarded on dummy's two good Diamonds and one of his Spades; or a successful Heart finesse would permit North to get rid of two Hearts by discarding one on dummy's good Spade and ruffing the other. If the Heart finesse worked, a grand slam could be expected without a Diamond finesse. The objection to the Heart finesse was that it would have to be tried before the trumps were exhausted, whereas the Diamond could be tried after the trumps were exhausted. If the trumps were drawn and the Diamond finesse was tried and succeeded, the Heart finesse would have to succeed also to make the grand slam.

The players who took the chance of having a Heart ruffed, obtained a bonus for one extra trick, but even the slight risk involved in trying for the unbid grand slam was not justified by the reward. Playing Auction Bridge in which slams are scored without any slam bidding, or if a grand slam had been bid in Contract, the Heart finesse would be the play.

What Today Means to You

"GEMINI."

IF JUNE 20 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:45 a. m. to noon, from 2:30 p. m. to 3:30 p. m., and from 9 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 a. m. to 9:45 a. m., and from 5 p. m. to 6:30 p. m.

A bewildering time is anticipated for this date, with drastic changes in your most vital interests, and aggravating delays. Unexpected happenings which will affect your personal and home life. Avoid travel in the evening—there is safety around your home fires.

The child born on this June 20 will have extravagant tastes, an exaggerated ideas, all of which should be curbed. It will have very decided likes and dislikes particularly toward people, which it will not conceal with diplomacy. It will be very kind-hearted.

You have a very brave and independent spirit, and insist upon doing those things which seem right or appealing to you, whether they follow the dictates of fashion, custom or tradition or not. This, of course, marks you as being "different," and interesting. You might be called ruthless in regard to other people when you are determined to achieve some purpose. You ride over your obstacles roughshod, your eyes and mind on your goal, and scarcely taking in anything else.

Although you often seek the counsel and advice of others, you almost always rely upon your own judgment, and you will do this all your life. There is nothing very submissive or malleable about your nature, although you may be "tamed," through love. If you are to make your marriage partnership a successful one, you must become less assertive and self-sufficient, at least, in your home life. It is very difficult for you to adapt your point of view or actions to those of another individual. If you "take on" any responsibility, you square your shoulders for the burden and never shirk your duty. You have a versatile mind, and a personality suceptible to education, travel and social advantages. You are keenly observant and little escapes your searching eye, and your alert ear. You quickly size up both people and situations.

Successful people born June 20:

1—Daniel Saunders—Founder of Lawrence, Mass.

2—Louis M. Wyeth—Active in development of north Alabama.

3—John T. Morgan—Alabama senator.

4—Joseph M. Wilson—Architect and civil engineer.

5—Helen Gould Shepard—Philanthropist.

6—David J. Brewer—Jurist.

Jane Interprets the MODE

Paris, June 19.

FOR many years the origin of the pearl was unknown, and a Persian poet supplied a legend to fill the place of the missing scientific explanation.

The first pearl, said he, was the first tear ever shed by a goddess, which fell from the sky into the sea. Brutally rolled about by the waves it cried, "How tiny I am in this immensity!" The modesty of the tiny tear pleased the sea who said, "I will turn you into a drop of light—into a jewel. And you will be the purest and the most loved of all jewels and be called 'pearl.'"

After it became known that the pearl owed its formation to a secretion which takes place when a grain of sand or some irritating object has lodged in the oyster shell, the ancient Chinese thought of simulating the pearl's secretion artificially. They inserted tiny idols in the oyster shell, and in time these objects would be covered with the precious substance. But that part of the idol which had lain against the oyster's shell was not coated. Later the Japanese inserted tiny mother of pearl balls which would eventually become half or three-quarters coated. It remained for more modern and carefully scientific methods to transplant the kernel of mother of pearl under the surface of the oyster's epidermic. In seven years this pearl, not being formed against the shell, was as whole, round and perfect as any accidentally discovered pearl.

That's the long and the short of it—capes are all different lengths! Bernard et Cie. makes a lovely and practical black chiffon dress with a white collar, then a cape to go with it with a tiny ermine tie collar. 'N then we sketch it for you, for of course, you know we think Bernard et Cie. designs are awfully practical and wearable!

• • • •

A lovely and very simple tussor silk one-piece frock is a very popular summer model at Worth's. It has short sleeves, a narrow belt at the natural waistline, a chemise turned back collar, and wide pleats which give a discreet flare at the hem.

A pale blue flannel coat cut on mannish topcoat lines is worn with this. Doesn't this sound nice? It is!

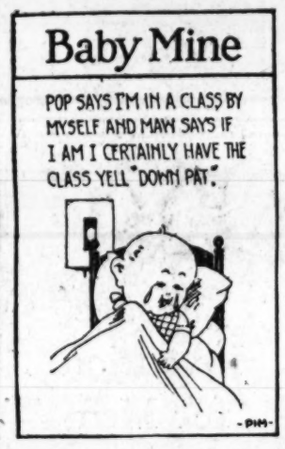
The most important thing in your life right now is a stamped, self-addressed envelope! You send it to the Dare Department of The Washington Post and it brings you good luck—or rather, a leaflet telling you how to make the compactest, smooth-fittingest and shorts out of no material at all hardly, or at the most a yard. And if you can tell me that you positively have no need for the leaflet or the lingerie, and look me straight in the eye when you're saying it—well, I'll s'pose I'll have to believe. But way down deep in my heart I'll always doubt it a little bit!

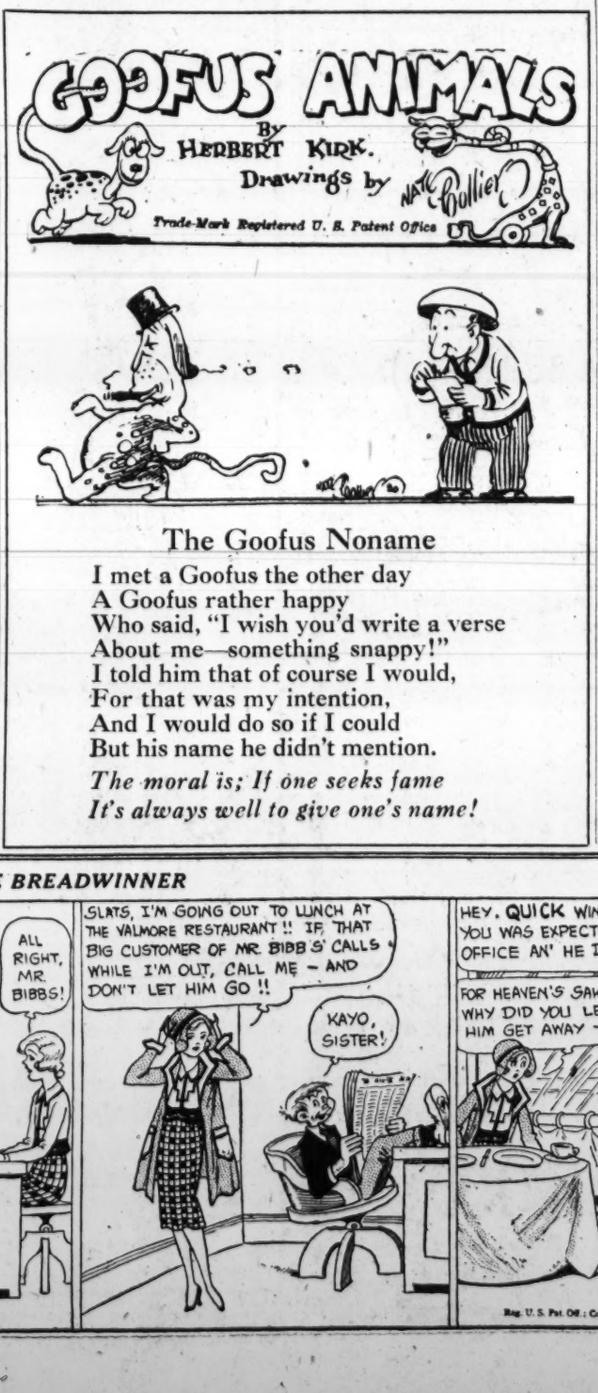
• • • •

Again we remind you of the weekly Dare fashion letter that appears in the big Sunday Post each week. You can ill afford to overlook it.

Au revoir.

Baby Mine





IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

ONE more day and Washington's theatrical season comes to an end. When the National Theater Players fold up tomorrow night, put the scenery in the cedar chest, there will be no more drammer in this parish until the Ides of September.

• • • •

'TWAS a short season but a merry one. It witnessed the passing of two theaters—Poli's and the Belasco—with the possibility that the Belasco will reopen in the fall. That is, provided the owners see fit to expend about $10,000 for the installation of a steel curtain. These curtains come high, but they must have them—under the fire regulations.

• • • •

ON a memorable night in the old Belasco Theater two seasons ago Robert Emmet Sherwood, then editor of Life, let loose his first play upon the American public. It was called "The Road to Rome." Jane Cowl was starred, with Philip Meranville playing opposite her. Now comes news that Mr. Sherwood has written another play, "Marching as to War," and that it will be produced at the beginning of the new season—about September. Colin-Keith Johnston, recently seen in "Journey's End," will have the leading role.

• • • •

ALL those who anticipated seeing Philip Barry's play, "Hotel Universe," a freak play in a freak season, had better hurry to New York, for it will be taken off the boards of the Martin Beck Theater on Saturday night. With this departure, the number of current plays on the Street of Streets is reduced to somewhere near 25—showing, of course, that the season is about done there as here.

• • • •

OUT at Brighton Beach, however, one of the new plays, destined for the next season on Broadway, is getting its start. This is "Jungle Love," the Fred Herendeen play, with Herbert Rawlinson in the lead role. This play had seen the footlights before, but was withdrawn for revision. It will be one of the first to brave the heat waves of Times Square—scheduled to open in the metropolis in a month or so.

• • • •

GEORGE ARLISS, so they say, is in New York hobnobbing with the managers and the playwrights, probably looking for a new play. The last time here Mr. Arliss appeared in Galsworthy's "Old English." He just got back from the West Coast, where this monumental work of the theater was put in the all-talkies.

• • • •

F. W. (FINN) CALLAN writes friends in Washington that he is rehearsing in "Here We Are" at the Booth, in New York, under the direction of Louis Isquith. The play is for fall production. He also says he is dancing at a new night club in Harlem.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

CARE OF FLOWER BORDERS.

DURING the next three months all seed pods and withered yellow leaves should be carefully pinched off. Florists believe in frequent stirring with a hoe, but not deep enough to injure the roots in any way.

It is an excellent idea, every time you mow the grass, to take a spade and cut the edges of your borders. This practice keeps the grass from encroaching upon the beds and also keeps the beds in their proper shape and form, giving them a neat appearance. There is nothing more unsightly than a flower bed with uneven edges.

Many of the soft-growing foliage bedding plants, such as coleus, achryanthes and other varieties of plants used for bedding purposes, should be cut back and not allowed to become straggling. The various colors should not be allowed to intermingle. This is easily prevented by constant pinching. The main point is to commence the work of pinching early and to take the tip out of the young growth. In this way you can scarcely see that the work is going on. If, however, you neglect them until they are very tall, pinching will leave stumps showing and the bed will be unsightly for a time.

All the beds and borders will be benefited a little later by a mulching of well-rotted stable manure. Rose beds, cannas, gladoli, hardy herbaceous borders and verbena beds will all be benefited by mulching.

It is never necessary to mulch soft plants like geraniums and coleus, for they will grow very well without it. The work of mulcting is very simple. All you need to do is to spread the manure over the bed carefully to the depth of about one inch. This work pays in two ways; it keeps the roots moist and enriches the soil.

People are often puzzled about watering their beds and borders. There is no rule. It depends to a great extent on the character of the soil and on what you have planted in the beds. If the soil is good, stiff loam, and you have frequent showers, you need not supply much water. If, however, your soil is sandy and the weather is dry, it will be found beneficial to water every day.

Geraniums seldom need water when planted in good soil; with much water they grow too much and flower sparsely. Cannas require a rich soil and plenty of water. For them and geraniums it is better to hoe frequently. To water properly requires great care. If you use a hose, have just enough force to sprinkle the plants.

A Dress to Wear to "Dinner for Two"

● Miller Soeurs are responsible for this bewitching little dress and you'd know at first glance that it was of French inspiration.

● It's a delightful affair in chiffon and lace...faintly reminiscent of the romantic Empire period. And then there are the wee sleeves, the net across the decolletage, the "water-fall" effect in back, to add to its charms. Blue or black. Misses' sizes, $59.50.

Miss Bitler Married To Ensign Zabilsky.

A wedding of unusual interest was held Wednesday night in old St. Paul's Church, Norfolk, Va., when Miss Mary Lucretia Bitler was married to Mr. John Zabilsky, ensign, U. S. N. The bride is the daughter of Commodore and Mrs. Reuben O. Bitler, and the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. R. Worthington Smith, of Norfolk, Va. Ensign John Zabilsky is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Zabilsky, of Providence, R. I. The ceremony, which took place at 8 o'clock, was performed by the Rev. Dr. H. H. Covington. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of cream satin on princess lines and a tulle and lace veil caught with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white roses and lillies of the valley.

Miss Bitler had Miss Nana Smith, niece of the bride, as maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Katherine Lewis and Miss Elizabeth Lewis, cousins of the bride. Miss Smith's gown was of pink taffeta and tulle and she carried a bouquet of pink roses. The bridesmaids wore gowns of blue and green net and carried bouquets of spring flowers and painted daisies. The mother of the bride wore a chiffon and lace gown of dusky rose.

Lieut. Worthington S. Bitler, U. S. N., brother of the bride, was the best man, and the ushers were Lieut. H. F. Ripley, Ensign R. N. S. Clark, Ensign M. C. Dickinson, Ensign J. W. Kuhn, Ensign Robert W. Denbo and Ensign R. Wilkinson, all of the Navy. The ushers were in their white uniforms and the couple left the altar under an arch formed by the swords of the ushers.

A small reception for the members of the family and a few intimate friends followed immediately after the ceremony at the home of Commodore and Mrs. Bitler in Norfolk.

The out-of-town guests were Lieut. and Mrs. Worthington S. Bitler, brother and sister-in-law of the bride; Mrs. Howell C. Lewis, of Charlottesville, aunt of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bitler, of Reading, Pa., uncle and aunt of the bride; Miss Jennie Zabilsky, sister of the bridegroom; Mrs. Edward Smith and Miss Dorothy Smith, of Charlottesville, Va.; Mr. Donald Smith, of Reading, Pa., and Mrs. Helen Ray Hagner, of Washington.

D. Miller, of Salem, Ohio. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House.

The dress had long sleeves pointed over the hand, and the veil was caught with orange blossoms. She wore a double string of pearls and carried a sheaf of calla lillies tied with ivory satin ribbon.

The chapel was decorated with palms and banked with roses. The maid of honor was Miss Virginia Stein, of Berwyn, Md. She wore a floor-length gown of flesh pink net over rose, the net being embroidered in tiny pink French flowers. A full straight flounce of the net at the bottom of the skirt was finished with narrow electric blue ribbon, forming a large flat bow on the face of the skirt. Her shower bouquet of pink and blue delphinium repeated the colors of the dress and was tied with wic rose satin ribbon. Her soft picture hat was trimmed with rose ribbon to match.

The best man was Mr. Albert Bender, of Springs, Pa., cousin of the bridegroom.

The music was furnished by a friend of the bride's, Mrs. Helen Gayer, of Washington, who played, with muted violin, the duet between Strephon and Phyllis from Gilbert and Sullivan's "Iolanthe," accompanied by Mrs. Christine Starke, also of this city.

After the ceremony a reception for the bridal party and relatives of the bride and bridegroom was held at the home of Miss Esther Dodge, 1513 O street, after which the couple left for a motor trip to Boston.

MOST POWERFUL MOTOR FUEL

WASHINGTON

One out of every 5 cars on historic Pennsylvania Avenue is powered by ESSO...Washington's favorite motor fuel.

Four years ago, nobody in Washington had ever heard of ESSO . . . today more Washington motorists use ESSO than use any other brand of gasoline on sale in the District of Columbia.

Four years is a short time to get from scratch to the leadership of the whole field . . . especially when you consider that ESSO sells at a 3c premium compared to regular gasoline.

How was it done?

You can write your own answer today on the steepest hill you know. Buy one tankful and prove to yourself that ESSO has more power than any other gasoline sold in Washington. More power but no knocks. That's because its base stock is the best straight gasoline that the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey can manufacture. It is low in knock rating, even before Ethyl fluid is added to it at the refinery.

Look for the silver pump topped with the ESSO globe. You'll be glad when you drive away that you spent the extra pennies for ESSO's extra power. Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

How we recently asked a thousand Washington motorists, "What gasoline do you use?" . . . "Why do you use it?"

More drivers answered, "ESSO" to the investigators than named any other gasoline sold in Washington. Like this young lady, they said, "ESSO's better because it's peppier."

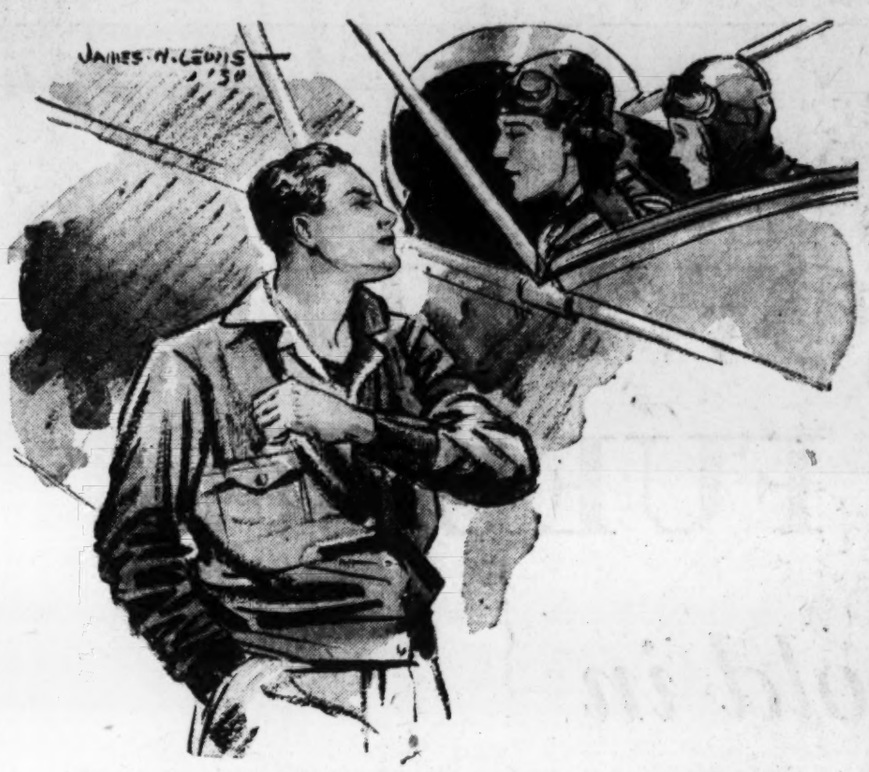
THE GIRL IN THE AIR - - -

BY JULIE ANNE MOORE



"That was the greatest thrill I've ever had," Janet said. "It was wonderful, Hugh."

SYNOPSIS—Janet Decker, 18, with closely-cropped head of burnt gold and a pair of very large and very quizzical eyes, Fred Turner, an automobile mechanic, madly soft on Janet.

Henry Frenda, a clerk in the office of the Great Eastern Air Transportation Co. and Fred's chief rival.

Bernice Terrell, employed at Cooney's Laundry and Janet's best friend.

Hugh Temple, an official and pilot of the Great Eastern.

Dick Tolbert, son of Richard C. Tolbert, president of the Great Eastern.

Belter, office manager for Great Eastern.

Miss Sears, Dick Tolbert's secretary.

Janet is fired from the Peerless Employment Bureau for kissing Fred Turner in the office. She obtains a job as flying secretary to Richard Tolbert, president of the Great Eastern, and borrows $100 from Henry Frenda to buy clothes. Henry gives her a book on aviation and tells her about a mysterious wealthy lumberman, who is boarding at his mother's home near the airport. Mrs. Decker, at the last minute, agrees to Janet's taking the job and Dick Tolbert comes for her. They find Temple getting his amphibian biplane Susie ready for a flight when they arrive at the airport.

At the field, Janet meets Belter, a suave individual and promptly dislikes him. Also Miss Sears, who makes it a point to show that she doesn't like Janet. Dick takes Janet for a hop in the Postman, a small monoplane. Janet is strongly drawn to Dick and on the way back shet lets him take her in his arms and kiss her as the plane falls.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER SIX.

When Janet at last opened her eyes, earth and sky were hopelessly mixed in one swirling blur. She pushed Dick away, frightened, and instantly caught at him again.

She saw him grab the control stick and strain on the rudder bar. Directly the spinning stopped and the nose of the plane came up slowly, slowly, until it was level with the horizon. Then the engine roared again.

The brown earth was barely 200 feet below them.

For the first time Janet realized that they were over the airport. The hangars shot by almost near enough to touch, and she caught a fleeting glance of Susie and of a figure in tan denims waving frantically.

The Postman climbed a little, turned sharply, and came back toward the hangars with engine quiet. Gradually it settled, settled, until its wheels touched the field.

When it came to a stop at last they were within a hundred yards of the starting line.

"Dick," Janet said, unfastening her belt, "it was marvelous!"

Dick, a little pale, smiled his acknowledgment. "It was nothing less," he declared, "but it came damn near being a double suicide."

"I don't know what you're talking about, mister," Janet said softly; "but suicide—after that—might be the best ending. There wouldn't be an opportunity to realize that it was just—an incident."

Dick looked at her quickly, a deep, smoldering fire in his blue eyes. "An incident, Janet?" he repeated vaguely. "You know, I almost wish it had been. Before we went up I thought you were the most exquisite thing I'd ever seen, but that was as far as it went. Now—well, you've brought a new problem into my life. Every moment that you are away on this trip, Janet, I'll be thinking about you and remembering. . . ."

When Hugh Temple came to them Janet stepped out on the wing and made as if to jump into his arms. But he apparently did not see her.

Dick said, "Go ahead and cut loose, Hugh. I know I'm an idiot, but it's done, and I can not do anything about it."

"You're a damned fool," Hugh snapped, his face livid.

Dick said nothing, but crawled out of the cockpit and helped release Janet from her parachute.

Janet, not realizing the source of this unexpected fire, said to Hugh: "I've had plenty of thrills in my time, but that was the greatest. It was wonderful, Hugh."

"You'd better not talk to him now, Janet," Dick advised. "He's mad enough to brain me, and I don't know that I blame him. But I can't do any more than say that I'm sorry."

"Gosh, it's all Greek to me," Janet replied. "What's the shootin' fur?"

Hugh walked around and pretended to examine the rudder and vertical fin on the tail of the Postman.

Dick said: "I let her go into a tailspin thinking we had more altitude than we had, I suppose. Another ten seconds and they'd have picked us up with a shovel. Hugh must have been watching."

Janet went over to Hugh and put a hand on his arm. "Don't blame Dick, Hugh," she begged. "It was my fault. Did you see us?"

Hugh nodded, and his jaw relaxed. "I saw the whole performance," he told her. "It was plain insanity. But——," he looked at Dick with half a grin, "I suppose I'd have done the same thing if I'd been in his place."

The tension was broken. Dick laughed happily and abused himself unmercifully for Hugh's benefit. He had made an ass of himself, but it would be a lesson to him.

Hugh said abruptly: "Helen called while you were up, Dick. Said something about you taking her to the boat. Is she going away?"

"Good heavens! I promised to call at 11 o'clock and forgot all about it. She's going to Europe day after tomorrow. If you'll pardon me," Dick said to Janet, "I'll run and telephone before she gets out to a bridge party or something as foolish." He went off at a trot toward the Administration Building."

"Hmm!" said Janet. "Helen must be somebody of importance."

Hugh looked at her in surprise. "I forget that you aren't familiar with all our encumberances out here," he smiled. "Helen is Dick's fiance. Helen Morgan. They live in Watertown somewhere. You don't know them?"

"I wouldn't," Janet said shortly. "You forget that I don't belong."

It was while lunching with Hugh at the field that Janet encountered Henry Frenda. He was on his way out and seemed uncertain whether to speak to her. Janet called to him and held out her hand.

"I searched every face in the office when we went in this morning," she told him, "but I couldn't see yours. You know Mr. Temple, of course?"

Temple nodded agreeably, and Henry acknewledged their acquaintance a little uneasily.

"Mr Belter sent me out on an errand," he explained. "The boys in the office said Mr. Temple and Mr. Tolbert had come in while I was gone with the best-looking girl they'd ever seen. I knew it was you, all right. I hope you'll like it out here, Janet. It's a nice place to work."

When he had gone out, Janet said to Hugh: "Henry's one of my ardent flames. And a nice boy."

Hugh offered Janet a cigarette and shrugged his shoulders genially when she refused.

"Do you know, Janet," he told her; "I'm almost sorry I persuaded you to take this place."

"Hmm. Disappointed so scon?"

"You know I didn't mean that. It's you I'm thinking about, Janet. For one thing, you're prettier than any girl in your position has a right to be. But that's not all. I'm going to be absolutely frank with you, Janet. There's something about you; personality, sex-appeal, call it what you please, it means the same thing. Whatever it is, you've got it in the nth degree."

"Am I being what they call psychoanalyzed?"

"You're getting some plain talk for your own good," Hugh said, seriously. "Half the women in the world would give their right arms to appear as desirable in the eyes of men as you do; but it's not necessarily an asset. I'm not telling you this because of what happened this morning. It's a thing I recognized the moment I saw you, and I simply want you to be on your guard. The best man in the world can't be trusted beyond a certain point, Janet. Get all out of life that you can but . . . use your head."

"Listen," said Janet, "don't get the idea your advice isn't appreciated, because it is. But if I look like a female sap, I must be masquerading."

Richard Tolbert, sr., was a complete surprise to Janet. He was not so tall as his son, but broad and stocky, and while there was a certain set about the jaw that suggested an executive capacity, he wore an indifferent expression as if to imply that his responsibilities were rather a nuisance. Dick, Janet saw, had gotten his light hair and blue eyes from his father.

When Hugh Temple introduced them, Richard Tolbert bowed ceremoniously. "Every day, Miss Decker," he said, a mischievous glint in his eye, "my respect for Hugh Temple increases. He caters to my every weakness.

"I demand competence in a secretary, but it is a greater satisfaction to find competence combined with charm."

"You can see now where Dick gets his line," Hugh said, laughing. To Tolbert he said: "Susie's warmed up and its after five. How soon do we get started?"

"The moment the artillery comes in with the package," Tolbert replied. "I was hoping we'd get down before dark."

Belter, the office manager, stuck his head in the door and called Temple out. Hugh came back almost immediately and reported that the "artillery" had arrived. "Two tons of armored truck," he said critically, "and 25 pounds of package. Will they have a truck waiting for us at Curtiss Field?"

Tolbert caught up his coat and hat and took one last glance at his desk. "I put the call through from Waterbury less than an hour ago. They said they'd have it there before six. Let's pray they don't fail us."

Susie was a single-motored, bi-plane amphibian with a broad, boat-like fuselage and an ample interior. The cabin, entered by a door from either side, contained a broad seat, the width of the fuselage, facing forward; and two single seats, facing back. Between these last were narrow steps leading to the door that separated the passenger section from the pilot's cabin forward.

Janet, at Tolbert's insistance, settled herself on the broad seat facing forward, while Tolbert himself took one of the single seats.

When Hugh came in he smiled assurance to Janet and indicated a small cupboard under the seat she was occupying. "There's a portable typewriter and a store of stationery in there," he told her. "And when you need a desk"—he turned a latch on the wall and lowered a board with a supporting leg between her and Tolbert—"you will find my patented device here a fair convenience."

"All the comforts of home," Janet said gayly, and watched Hugh climb into the forward cabin.

Janet tried vainly to force herself into a frame of mind that would permit her to enjoy this first step in her great experience. But her little head was spinning. So much had come into her life in the past few days that she was assailed by a hundred different, confusing thoughts. Everything seemed to have changed overnight. Only the day before yesterday she had been an obscure stenographer-clerk in an employment bureau in Waterbury, with pitifully few friends and very little time to cultivate them. Today . . .

She thought of Dick . . . and Fred . . . and Bernice . . . and her little sister, Margaret. Of her mother, stealing one last glimpse of her daughter from the living room window. Of her father, confident in her ability to survive the perils of the new job and going complacent about his own affairs. How jumbled everything was!

The picture of Fred standing there in the kitchen, asking her to marry him while she was in a ferment over the prospect of taking the place at the airport brought a painful attack of conscience. She hadn't been able to bluntly refuse him. She hadn't even known that she wanted to refuse him at all. And while he waited patiently for an answer . . . she had hardly thought of him, had forgotten him under the stimulus of this strange and exciting environment. Why, she had even let another man take her in his arms and kiss her, passionately—a man already engaged and to whom she could mean nothing.

She wondered what had become of Dick. He hadn't reappeared and she supposed he had gone in to Helen. Somehow — despite the remorseful thought of her neglect of Fred—the knowledge of Dick's engagement dampened her spirits. Not that she didn't approve, of course, but—well, it had come so close upon the heels of their mad moment in the Postman. It was as if Helen had suddenly and rudely snatched him out of her arms.

What was it all coming to? Where would they fit into her life . . . Fred, Dick, Henry, Hugh? . . . If only she knew!

They had been flying for almost half an hour when Tolbert looked up from his paper and apologized for having neglected her. "It's only a 40-minute hop to Curtiss field," he told her. "Why don't you run up and let Temple show you how Susie functions before we get in? He'll be tickled to death to have you, and Susie's equipped for a relief pilot, so you'll have a comfortable place to sit."

If not tickled to death, Hugh was noticeably pleased. He pointed out the vague perpendicular lines that were the first evidences of New York skyscrapers, and, much nearer, the dark spots that marked the three great adjacent flying fields on Long Island.

"I suppose you're pretty much in the dark over all this," he told her, "but I know very little more myself. My jurisdiction is confined to mail, express and passenger transportation. The money transfers Tolbert himself looks after. All I can tell you is that we'll put Susie in a hangar at Curtiss Field and go in to a hotel for the night. After getting rid of that abominable package, of course."

"Where is it now?" Janet asked softly.

Hugh grinned and pointed to the floor. She was resting one foot on it.

"Hmm! That thing doesn't look important. Is there much in it?"

"Plenty! You wouldn't believe me if I told you. But I hate to handle the stuff with you aboard. It's always risky business."

"You don't look for trouble tonight, do you?"

"No, because all plans are made for its handling, and it's a transfer that wasn't on the schedule."

Janet's face showed that she wasn't following.

"The point is," Hugh explained, "that we make a certain number of cash transfers on specified dates. We know for months beforehand that they are coming and make all arrangements in advance. Unfortunately, these dates leak out in some way occasionally. For example, we were to make a transfer last night, from Waterbury to New York. There was a hitch in plans and the shipment postponed a day, but the plane that was to have taken that package your foot is on was shot down just on this side of the sound."

"Good gosh! Then someone knew all about it. How do you know they won't hear about this?"

Hugh said: "I don't; but it isn't likely, since plans were made at the last minute. Only a leak in our own organization could give us away, and that's highly improbable."

A few minutes later Hugh indicated the now plainly visible sky-line of New York City, and then the broad stretches of Curtiss Field, less than a mile ahead. "Better go down and tell Mr. Tolbert we're about to land," he told Janet. "He'll probably have the cabin strewn with private papers. He does most of his thinking in the air."

On one point Hugh had been wrong. The armored truck was not waiting when they landed. Tolbert went across the field to telephone the transfer people in New York. When he came back he had some uncomplimentary things to say about their service.

"They say the truck should have been here half an hour ago. My guess is that the driver is eating a hot-dog at some stand along the way, while we wait here twiddling our thumbs."

It was barely dark, but the big field was a net work of lights of various colors. A beacon light flashed at regular intervals. The purr of idling motors could be heard on all sides.

Hugh said: "I've got to be putting Susie in a shed somewhere. Mr. Tolbert. Why don't you and Janet go on in and let me stay until the truck arrives. I'm well armed and there's not likely to be any danger here anyway."

"I'd rather not," Tolbert replied," but I've an appointment at 8 o'clock. I suppose there's nothing else to do."

Riding into New York in the taxi, Tolbert talked of aviation and the small part the Great Eastern was playing in its development. He was like an overgrown boy in his enthusiasm over the achievements of the concern he headed and paid generous tribute to the capabilities of his only son and of Temple—particularly of Temple.

Janet fed the conversation now and then with a "Hmm!" and occasionally asked a question to show that she had intelligence enough to follow his rambling dissertation.

The hotel was a brilliant revelation to Janet, whose only visits to New York heretofore had been on Sunday excursions, down Sunday morning and back Sunday night. But it was to be days, even weeks, before she was to find a moment to think back upon her first thrilling impression of that enormous marble lobby with its gold back chairs, its deep, inviting leather settees, its ferns, pot-plants, uniformed boys, and milling men and women in the sort of finery one sees usually in the fashion books and gaudy advertisements.

For no sooner had Tolbert given his name at the desk than the clerk looked up from the register and said in a low, modulated voice: "Someone was just calling you, Mr. Tolbert. I believe he said it was the Curtiss Field executive office."

Tolbert made no attempt to conceal his irritation. "We've been more than thirty minutes coming from the field," he said to Janet, "and Temple is about to inform us that that confounded truck hasn't arrived yet."

He crossed the lobby, told the girl in the elevated inclosure to get him the Curtiss field executive office, and stepped into a booth. Janet followed leisurely and waited just outside the half-closed booth.

"Hello . . . hello! . . ." He seemed to have difficulty hearing, and suddenly pushed the door shut with a bang.

Janet could not longer hear what he said, but when he suddenly slammed the receiver on the hook and came out of the booth, she knew that something was wrong.

"Dammit! Miss Decker, they're crazy, and I told them so. The thing's absurd, impossible!"

Janet asked weakly: "What is it, Mr. Tolbert? Was it Mr. Temple?"

He ran his fingers through his hair nervously. "It was the night manager at the field office," he replied shortly. "He says they've searched the field and every hangar, and Temple isn't there. The plane isn't there. The truck has never arrived. They've all vanished into thin air."

Barely out of the obscurity of the employment office and all wrapped up in what looks like a big-time mystery? Where is Temple? What's Tolbert's next move? Well, we'll have to wait until tomorrow!

WOMEN VOTERS ASK OUSTING OF HEDRICK.

Other Arlington Officials May Also Be Subject of Inquiry.

$10,000 DEBT ALLEGED

Acceding to a petition presented to him yesterday by the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County, Circuit Court Judge Walter T. McCarthy promptly announced that he would issue an order requiring B. M. Hedrick, and possibly other members of the Arlington County Board of Supervisors, to show cause in the court July 8 why they should not be removed from office.

The petition was based on the allegation that the board of supervisors has failed to take any legal steps to collect approximately $10,000 said to be due the county by the Arlington Investment Corporation for installation of water and sewerage facilities in Waycroft, a subdivision owned by the corporation.

It was cited that Mr. Hedrick is an officer, a director and a stockholder of the corporation.

Judicial Inquiry Asked.

The declaration of Judge McCarthy was made on request of the Organized Women Voters, through a committee, that a judicial investigation be made into activities of Mr. Hedrick "and such other members of the board of supervisors as the inquiry may indicate to be involved to show cause why they should not be removed from office for malfeasance, misfeasance, incompetency, gross neglect of official duty and knowing and willfull neglect to perform the duties imposed upon them by the laws of the State."

Efforts recently were made by Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth to collect from the corporation the amount of $10,000 alleged to be due the county.

The petition declared in part:

"We are further informed, and verily believe and therefore allege that between the months of March and October, in the year 1929, a complete water system was installed in the said Waycroft subdivision with the knowledge of the said Hedrick, he being then a member of the said board of supervisors and an officer, director and stockholder in the said Arlington Investment Corporation, the said installation being made at the expense of said county, no contractual obligations having apparently been entered into, and no authority obtained, and that there was improperly expended by the county for this purpose the sum of approximately $6,735.

"Your petitioners have no interest in this matter other than that of citizens and taxpayers. We are informed that as a result of the above-mentioned transactions there is now outstanding a sum of approximately $10,000 due the county, which the said board of supervisors has apparently taken no legal steps to collect."

The petition bore the names of Mrs. Ruby Simpson, president of the Organized Women Voters; Mrs. Mary C. Williams, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Florence E. Cannon, parliamentarian; Mrs. Bertha Kelly, chairman of its executive committee; Mrs. Alice Semones and Mrs. Ada H. Davidson, of the executive committee, and Mrs. Jessie W. Hunt, of the civic committee.

Supervisor B. M. Hedrick, when seen last night, gave out the following statement:

"I have seen the article in the evening papers in which grave charges have been made against me in a petition filed with the court.

Note Presented, Accepted.

"All I know of the issue is what has been published. The matter was brought to the attention of the county board of supervisors at one of its meetings last December, and after the officials of the corporation developing Waycroft and Commonwealth's Attorney Gloth held a number of conferences, it was agreed that a note be executed and presented to the board of supervisors in full payment for all money then due. It was accepted by the board of supervisors at the April meeting of this year, I not voting. It was further arranged for the board to receive the money in full, which was done.

"The filing with the court of this lengthy petition is the first knowledge I have that it was a criminal offense for a county official to own stock in a corporation which is striving to aid in the development of the county.

"A full, comprehensive and complete investigation should be made at once. If I have committed any offense I should be indicted. If I have not those responsible for the publication of such false and misleading statements should be indicted for criminal libel."

TEACHERS ARE TOLD TO RESPECT CALLING

103 RECEIVE DIPLOMAS

William John Cooper, United States Commissioner of Education, was the principal speaker yesterday at the graduation exercises of the Myrtilla Miner Teachers College, held in the Armstrong auditorium, where 103 received diplomas for completion of the kindergarten-primary and intermediate courses. He spoke on "Teaching as a Profession," in so far as it gets away from "assigning of problems, checking of answers, hearing of lessons, and becomes concerned with development of human beings and their adjustments to their physical and social environments."

"It is obvious," he said, "that teaching is capable of becoming a profession so far as the nature of the service is concerned, in so far as the period of training is lengthened and the knowledge of the science behind it is mastered. It can not rank with the other professions in financial returns largely because teachers are in the public service and the public does not expect to pay what a private employer expects to pay for given service.

"The poor standing of the teaching profession in social esteem has been largely due to the teachers themselves and can only be corrected by a change in the attitude of those of us who enter it. So long as we do not respect our own calling others will not respect it."

Mrs. Mary A. McNeill, member of the Board of Education, presided and presented the diplomas. Beatrice Louise Warrick contributed an original musical composition, as well as the music to the class song, with words by Dorothea C. Scurlock. Garnet C. Wilkinson, assistant superintendent of schools, commented on the growth and trend of the normal instruction as exemplified in the first graduation of a three-year class from Miner College. VANILLA WAFERS.
(U. S. Department of Agriculture.)

To serve with iced tea, grape juice, orangeade or any other cooling drink on the porch this summer, you will want some easily made cookies or small cakes. Nothing could be nicer for this purpose than vanilla wafers, which are made more easily than ordinary cookies because they do not have to be rolled and cut out. They are also excellent for serving with afternoon tea or with ice cream or punch at parties.

2-3 cup butter.
½ cup sugar.
1¼ cups flour.
1 teaspoon baking powder.
1-3 teaspoon salt.
2 teaspoons vanilla.
2 tablespoons milk.
1 egg.

Cream the butter and sugar, add the well-beaten egg, the milk and the sifted dry ingredients, then the vanilla. Drop by ½ teaspoons on a lightly greased baking sheet, allowing room to spread. Bake in a moderate oven (about 350 degrees F.) for eight or ten minutes or until the edges are golden brown.

CROWDER HURLS NATS TO 3-1 VICTORY OVER CHISOX

Pegler

NEW YORK, June 19.—The return of Primo Carnera and his coterie of interesting young business men is arousing much interest just now and the attendance at his prize fight with George Godfrey, the large Negro, in Philadelphia, next Monday evening, will prove again that the customers prefer their prize fighting low, unscrupulous and mysterious.

Philadelphia is a sort of Hell's Half Acre of the prize-fighting trade, where there has never been any serious pretense at scrupulousness. The chairman and the only really active member of the prize-fight commission, Mr. Frank Weiner, observed some time ago that the business had taken on the character of a racket in his jurisdiction during his time and this admission, far from alienating the customers, only stimulated their interest.

Carnera's prize fight with Godfrey probably will draw more out-of-town trade than any other prize fight ever held in Philadelphia with the one exception of the first Tunney-Dempsey performance. That one, of course, had the benefit of Jack Dempsey's drawing power, Tex Rickard's showmanship and the lure of the heavyweight championship, as well as some sordid goings-on all its own.

Primo Is Racketeers' Own Champion.

Primo will draw the patrons because he is now preeminently established as the racketeer's own champion. He has been barred almost everywhere else by orders of the various prize-fighting commissions and this fact and the evidence upon which he was declared to be undesirable make him an interesting artist.

I have been told that Godfrey positively refuses to hold still for Primo and will do his utmost to defeat him, but the patrons, of course, will be gazing at the exhibition with suspicion and pleasure, hoping to detect some cue or high sign at which Godfrey will poise himself, take off and go into the water as Primo's other adversaries have done. The customer takes a singular pride in his shrewdness and he often calls the turn correctly, but he also pays his money for the privilege, so the satisfaction is general.

If Primo defeats Godfrey, as I am given to understand he undoubtedly will, it will only be a matter of time, probably less than a year, until the other boxing commissions, including the New York commission, decide that he has atoned for his ethical lapses out along the line, and authorize him to do business in their various jurisdictions again. He will become a formidable heavyweight and the business considerations in the prize-fight industry are such that it is impossible to exclude formidable heavyweights permanently.

Deserves Same Treatment As Schmeling.

Max Schmeling was not nearly as impressive nor as interesting as Primo, and he was readmitted to practice in New York less than one year after he had been banished for the rest of his life, when it presently appeared

TITLE TO SCHMELING; SHARKEY OFFERS TO FIGHT AGAIN AT LOSS

Championship Voted German Over Protest of Muldoon.

Gob Would Meet Max Again at Low Prices and Pay Manager.

By EDWARD J. NEAL.

NEW YORK, June 19 (A.P.).—Max Schmeling trudged from the office of the New York State Athletic Commission today, officially recognized as the new heavyweight champion.

The German, first fighter in the Old World to gain that honor, won his point only after a bitter debate with the solemn fathers and over the outraged objections of William Muldoon, aged "solid man" of boxing, and codonor of the Tunney-Muldoon heavyweight title trophy. Added to the title recognition extended him last week by the National Boxing Association, Schmeling stands today as the heavyweight king in almost every center where boxing is sanctioned in America.

The 24-year-old Teuton did not come unscathed from his battle with the fistic fathers across the street from the city hall, where crowds were cheering Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd. Schmeling threaded his way unnoticed through the crowds with one of the most amazing challenges ever extended a champion ringing in his ears.

Fullest Concessions Made by Sailor.

It was the defy of Jack Sharkey, the Boston sailorman, whom Schmeling defeated on a foul in four rounds in the Yankee Stadium one week ago tonight. It was challenge to battle that wiped away any excuses Schmeling might have for evading a return match and made concessions almost unheard of before in the bickerings and undercover arrangements that feature the big business of heavyweight battle.

First Sharkey offered Schmeling 37½ per cent of the receipts to 12½ per cent for himself if the German would agree to a return engagement in September. Sharkey promised to pay Arthur Buelow, deposed manager of Schmeling, the 20 per cent he is entitled to under his contract with Der Maxie, thereby binding himself to a flat loss of 7½ per cent of the gate before the milling began. He asked that prices be scaled low so that all could come and see.

Furthermore, Sharkey offered a unique solution of any controversy that might arise from another foul. He suggested a "rain check" arrangement and another fight, free of charge to the customers, the following night if the return battle ended in another wild pitch. He agreed not to allow himself to be declared a winner on a foul and all but promised to go and jump in a lake if he dropped one low again.

Schmeling Asks Time To Consider.

Schmeling countered with an appeal for time to talk the matter over. Heretofore he has insisted that he would not fight again until after

JONES LEADS AT HOYLAKE BY STROKE

Adds 72 for 142 Card to Top Robson; H. Smith Third.

By FRANK H. KING.

HOYLAKE, England, June 19 (A.P.).—The British open golf championship was still a "hoss race" this evening as the field rounded the halfway post. Bobby Jones added a par 72 to his 70 yesterday to give him 142 and put him a nose ahead, with a stroke lead over the veteran Englishman, Fred Robson, at 143, and three shots lead on the tall Missourian, Horton Smith, who had a two-day total of 145.

Behind the leaders came a pack of 147s, Leo Diegel, Don Moe, Macdonald Smith, Archie Compston and Phil Rodgers, with "Long Jim" Barnes another stroke away.

The qualifying gate again closed tonight, cutting off all but the 60 leaders and one tie for 60th place. George Von Elm, with a 36-hole score of 160, was the only American shut out of the punishing two-round finish tomorrow. A score as low as 158 was necessary to remain in competition. F. C. Stevens, jr., Los Angeles, just slipped in.

5,000 Watch Atlantan's Steady Finish.

Today's play was mainly a chase after Jones by competitors who wanted his lead and fans who wanted to see how he does it. A gallery of 5,000 followed the Georgian through the sultry, humid afternoon and saw him pull up from a bad start to a steady finish for a par round of 72.

Bob was not playing any too well and little things bothered him, such as clicking cameras and a crying baby in its mother's arms at the seventeenth. The mother, however, was good enough to put her hand over the infant's mouth and Bobby sank his putt.

Cyril Tolley's 71 was the best score today but, coupled with 84 yesterday,

First Baseman Makes 3 Singles and Big Hit With Crowd.

Cronin's Triple Off Henry Drives in One Run in First.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

TEN thousand fans turned out to welcome the Nationals back home yesterday and to get a look at the new faces added to the team on the recent Western trip and, judging from what Messrs. Alvin Crowder, Henie Manush and, last but by no means least, Art Shires, did during the pastime, they left for home satisfied that the Washington Club did not weaken itself in its deals with the White Sox and Browns.

Crowder drew his second assignment since returning to the Nat fold, and to him goes the lion's share for the 3-to-1 victory over the Chisox, for he performed brilliantly from beginning to end, holding the visitors to four scattered hits and, but for the fact that one of these was Carl Reynolds' tenth home run of the season, would have earned a shutout. The triumph enabled the Nats to keep pace with the Mackmen and Yankees, who are just ahead of them.

Manush and Shires Also Shine.

Manush and Shires drew the left-field and first-base assignments, respectively, and did even more than could be expected of them. The fly-chaser had no difficult chances afield, but came through with two hits, while Shires, in addition to turning in two good plays at the initial sack, cracked out three hits, one of which propelled a run over the plate.

While Cronin and Spencer did not get as many safeties as did the newcomers, who were the only Nats to hit safely more than once, it was a triple by the first-named which drove home the first native run, while Spencer came through with a two-base drive to score the final run of the day.

It was an interesting affair throughout with the Nats having all the better of it. They started off with a two-run splurge which, as things turned out, was enough to decide the game and then came back with another in the sixth to make up for Reynolds' round-tripper of the fourth canto.

Crowder kept his four hits limited to one in as many different frames and walked but one and, thanks to two snappy double plays, only two of the White Sox were left on base.

Henny Encounters Poor Start.

Frank (Dutch) Henry started for the visitors and he pitched a good game after getting off poorly in the first. The former New York Giant

IN THE WAKE OF THE GAME

THE new Nationals certainly were given a royal welcome yesterday. When Manush came up in the first, there was no doubt in his mind but that the fans are with him, while the applause was almost deafening when Shires' turn came. He responded with a scratch single which scored Cronin with the second run of the first inning. Crowder was not forgotten, either, the cash customers apparently putting their O. K. on all of the deals which the Nats made.

Bennie Tate, who started behind the bat for the White Sox, also was given quite an ovation, both when his name was announced as part of the visiting battery and again when he came to the plate. He dropped a single in left center his first time up, in the third.

Smead Jolley, who can not play a sun field and who was switched from left to right for this series, turned in a fine back-hand catch to rob Myer of a hit and the Nats of another run in the first. Jolley, who is noted for his slowness afoot, just managed to get to the drive.

Bluege almost tore a hand off of Willie Kamm in the second, but the visiting third-sacker quickly picked up the ball and killed his man at first.

Bluege and Shires collaborated in making a sparkling play in the alien second. The first-named took Cissell's hopper almost directly back of third and his peg was wide, Shires stretching at full length to make the catch and then toppling over after making the out.

Manush caught Kamm napping in the third and dropped a nobby bunt toward the hot corner which he beat out with ease.

Cissell thought he had a single when he bounded one between third and short in the fourth, but Bluege came in and took the ball on a bad hop.

Some fancy work around second by Shortstop Kerr cost the Nats a run in round four. After Myer had singled, he tried to steal, Tate's peg being on the first-base side of the keystone sack. Kerr threw himself for the ball, snared it, and touched Myer while lying on the ground. Then Bluege followed with a double.

Two snappy double plays made Crowder's work easier in the first half of the game. One nullified Watwood's single in the first while an extra fast one, Bluege to Myer to Shires, pre-

Robins Shut Out, 5-0, By Kolp, of Cincinnati

Cincinnati, June 19 (A.P.).—Ray Kolp shut out the league-leading Brooklyn Robins today to give Cincinnati a 5-to-0 victory in the first game of its home stand against the Eastern clubs of the National League. Kolp allowed only seven hits and bore down with men on bases. The Robins had ten men left stranded.

Adolfo Luque, once a Red, did his best to beat his old mates, but the Cincinnati players hit when blows counted, scoring in four of the six innings Luque worked. The veteran hurler made two of Brooklyn's hits and fielded brilliantly, but his mates made several costly errors and the Reds followed them with hits. Five of Cincinnati's eleven blows off Luque and Johnny Morrison were doubles.

Home Run by Goslin 1 of Browns' 3 Safeties

Boston, June 19 (A.P.).—Danny MacFayden, spectacles and all, gave the St. Louis Browns but three hits here today and the Red Sox won the first game of the series with the Westerners, 4 to 1. Two of the hits were by Goose Goslin, one a home run drive into the right field pavilion which saved Bill Killifer's outfit from a whitewash.

The Sox collected eleven hits. Eight of them and all of their runs were made off Rip Collins in the first five innings. The game was errorless, although it was played mostly during a warm rain.

22D BY RUTH WINS FOR YANKEES

Tigers Beaten, 5 to 4, as Former Champs Stretch Streak.

NEW YORK, June 19 (A.P.).—After striking out three times in a row today, Babe Ruth's fourth effort against the delivery of George Uhle was crowned with the success of his twenty-second home run of the year, and the direct result of the homer was that the Yankees defeated Detroit, 5 to 4, for their sixth successive victory.

The Babe's homer came in the seventh inning with the bases empty, giving the Yankees a 5-3 lead. But the Tigers scored another run in the next inning. A double steal in the first inning brought the first Yankee counter, Lary scoring. A bunch of three hits netted the rest in the second after Uhle had provided three Tiger runs by hitting a triple with two on and scoring on Chapman's error.

Ed Wells gained credit for his fifth victory in six starts, although a slight injury forced him to retire in favor of Gomez after five innings.

GROVE HURLS MACKS TO 4-2 WIN

Mates Bunch Hits Off Hudlin; Fifth Lost in Row for Tribe.

PHILADELPHIA, June 19 (A.P.).—The world's champion Athletics bunched their hits effectively on Willis Hudlin today and took their second straight from the Cleveland Indians, 4 to 2. The defeat was the fifth in a row for the Tribesmen. The Mackmen retained their lead of a game and a half over the Yankees, who also won.

A two-run attack in the opening inning gave the Mackmen a lead the Redskins were never able to overcome, though they outhit the victors by 11 to 8. Mose Grove went the route for the Athletics, winning his ninth game of the season. By rapping a single through McNair on his third time at bat, Johnny Hodapp ran his streak of hitting in consecutive games to 22.

MORSHION, MATE RUN DEAD HEAT AT AQUEDUCT

2-Year-Olds Reach Wire Locked

Judges Are Unable to Separate Pair; Mate Closes Gap.

By GEORGE DALEY.

NEW YORK, June 19 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Morshion and Mate ran a spectacular dead heat in the fifth race at Aqueduct today and the roar of the cro--d settled into a steady buzz for two or three minutes before the excitement wore off.

More excitement followed and much anxiety beset the supportres of Morshion. One of the patrol judges charged George Ellis with rough riding, but the stewards, after taking the evidence of Kennedy, who rode Principio, confirmed the race, but suspended Ellis for five days for not holding to his course from the elbow home.

Morshion forced the pace, but in a zigzag way, going wide at the elbow, and then bearing over to the rail. If Ellis had paid less attention to the other horses and more to his own the Morvich filly would have won. As it was Mate, with Workman up, after stumbling just after the start, closed a gap of three or four lengths and joined issue with Morshion a hundred yards out for a furious battle to the wire. First one nodded in front and then the other. At the finish the judges could not separate them.

Runs-Offs Prohibited 2-Year-Olds.

Under the rules, 2-year-olds may not run off a dead heat, and so first and second money of $900 was divided between Benjamin Block and A. C. Bostwick.

Morshion was the favorite around even money, while Mate was quoted at 4 to 1. In settling wagers the amount bet and the price laid are added together and divided by two. As an example if $10 was wagered on Mate at 4 to 1 the total of $10 and $40 divided by two leaves $25. Those who wagered on Morshion at even money simply got a drawdown and won nothing, although saving their stake.

Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office.)

—Washington Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

AN ALLOWANCE purse for 3-year-olds and upward at a mile and seventy yards features the Washington Park card today.

SILVERDALE is picked to win. He is in the best form and while under the weight arrangement he is called upon to concede weight, even to WHISKERY, yet the impost is light on the entire field. He recently beat a better field than this one, and the result should never be in doubt. PIGEON HOLE also showed good form last week, and is regarded as the contender. LADY BROADCAST is in very light and has all her speed. She should beat the others. WHISKERY at times shows a flash of his old-time form, but his winning efforts are getting more infrequent, and the time is not distant when the former derby winner should be retired.

FIRST RACE—ILLEGITIMATE is in an easy spot in the first race. CROFTON should be the runner-up and should be second choice in the betting. There is a mere chance that CADY HILL, a well bred horse, may show a good performance and is tabbed for third money.

SECOND RACE—The second race is for 2-year-olds. WATER PORT is rated the best of the large field of maidens. SPAR from the Greentree Stable looks best of the others, and may be second at a good price. THE DUKE has shown speed, and may get in the money. The race is very uncertain from any angle. JOSEPHINE D., VALEDICTORY, BIEGE and others will run well.

THIRD RACE—SEARINGTON will have RUANE to beat in the third race. He is a fresher horse than RUANE, which has been campaigning a long time, and this appears a very easy spot for him. The track is fast and RUANE goes better on a soft course. NEVERMORE is not without hope in the race, and should be no worse than third.

FOURTH RACE—A high class field of 2-year-olds start in the fourth race, of which DICK MORRIS seems best. It is 5½ furlongs, quite a route for juveniles this early in the year. DICK MORRIS belongs to Knoelkamp & Morris and this firm won race after race in New Orleans with the shifty youngster. IN BETWEEN recently won impressively, and is coupled in this race with PORTCODINE, and should be as good as second. ISSAQUENA is tabbed for third, but GUNFIRE, which won the other day, has a chance to show also.

SIXTH RACE—RAMONAY BAW, a recent winner in the East for the Greentree Stable, should score in the sixth race. He ran with a better class of horses in New York than he will go against today and should be first home. PORTMANTEAU looks like a contender, but both PLUCKY PLAY and HORNPIPE will be knocking at the door. HORNPIPE was believed good enough to send to Chicago for the American Derby.

SEVENTH RACE — PERCENTAGE may win the seventh race. He should beat BOROUGH MONGER, strongest of the field opposing him. Next to BOROUGH MONGER, a winner in Maryland, NEALON KAY may wake up for another good effort and get the show money.

NETTIE PEBBLES was a forward factor from start on the inside, never far off the pace and, continuing to a distance steadily along the inner rail in the stretch, wore down leaders and was up in final strides. MISS ROSEDALE, in good form, opened up a good early lead after shaking off BLUE CANOPY, continued well to the end. BLUE CANOPY forced the pace, had no mishaps, also saving ground and held on strongly. NORA D. began slowly and could never get into contention. FAIR ROSALIND was on the outside and made a wide stretch turn. MIGHTY CUTE was gaining ground gradually. Others were outrun.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—REVERBERATE, $5.66, $3.14, $2.86; TAN FACE, $3.16, $2.86; DARK MAID, $6.16.

REVERBERATE, outpaced the first three furlongs, came fast between the leaders when straightened in the stretch, closed a gap to wear down TAN FACE and win in a hard, final drive. TAN FACE forced the pace, overtook DIRECTLY entering stretch and drew away strongly midway of the stretch, but faltered in final issue. DARK MAID steadily closed ground from a slow beginning and finished with a burst of speed on the outside. SUN PORTER, close up to the stretch, weakened.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward, fillies and mares. Start good. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:17½. Off at 3:18. Winner, W. I. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ZETA, $12.84, $6.20, $4.32; THAT'S IT, $5.66, $5.26; PRINCESS EDITH, $5.52.

ZETA broke slowly, but was rushed into command in the first furlong, raced into a long lead and held THAT'S IT safe in the drive. THAT'S IT raced closest up throughout, but was not good enough for the winner. PRINCESS EDITH was taken to the inside in the stretch, where she got through to outfinish APT. APT was outrun to the stretch, gained on outside in final eighth, closing a big gap. BETTY BARRETT suffered loss of ground racing wide. MARGARET SCOTT raced evenly.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JEAN VALJEAN, $4.98, $3.70, $2.26; CHEERS, $5.54, $2.48; SIDNEY GRANT, $2.20.

JEAN VALJEAN, going in his best form, permitted CHEERS to set the pace until around the stretch turn, where he responded strongly to urging and wore down CHEERS, winning easily going away. CHEERS opened up a long early lead, but began to tire on reaching the stretch turn and had little left when JEAN VALJEAN made his bid, but kept SIDNEY GRANT safe. SIDNEY GRANT had no excuses and could never better his position.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CABILDO, $19.24, $9.60, $5.66; MALICIOUS, $10.04, $5.60; FORT DEARBORN, $5.02.

CABILDO was rated under restraint in early stages, closed a gap after going first half mile and challenging strongly on the stretch turn, went into lead, drew out and won as rider pleased. MALICIOUS worked his way up gradually from slow beginning, closed a wide gap and finished gamely. FORT DEARBORN, never far off the pace, saved ground, held on well, and outlasted GEORGE WEBER. Latter came from far back to close wide gap. LADY CLARENCE broke into the air.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:27. Off at 5:27. Winner, R. Wingfield's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ELEVEN SIXTY, $11.04, $6.08, $4.50; GOLDEN RACKET, $9.26, $6.98; ROYAL CHARGE, $5.04.

ELEVEN SIXTY, rated along in close-up pursuit of the leader to the stretch, then made his move strongly on outside of GOLDEN RACKET, wore latter down in hard drive and was up in time. GOLDEN RACKET set a good pace to the last eighth, where he faltered when the winner challenged. ROYAL CHARGE, a forward factor from the start, was in close quarters, but came fast near the finish and outgamed LOUISE WILSON. Latter worked her way up gradually, loomed up stoutly at the stretch turn, but weakened under pressure.

STROKE LEAD TAKEN BY JONES

Atlantan Adds a 72 for 141 Total; Horton Smith Third.

it means hardly anything. The big Englishman played Hoylake as it should be played, scoring 34 on the first nine and thus girding himself for the fierce homeward test.

Those who failed to beat par on the outward journey had a hard time on the long homeward half. Again today, as yesterday, reports flew over the course of this player and that, two, three or four under 4s at the thirteenth only to take 5s and 6s on the difficult home holes. Leo Diegel, for example, played only two shots on his first nine that could be criticized and started homeward with a flock of 3s and 4s only to mark down a pair of 6s at the close, where he explored the rough at two holes.

Horton Smith in Good Humor.

Horton Smith, who seems to be the real threat to Jones' lead, played a great game today. He hit his long shots to perfection and his boyish, smiling progress in contrast to the grim intensity of most of the other players indicated that not only was he playing good golf, but also having a good time.

A shot out of bounds at the seventeenth cost him dearly, but he came right back to hole a putt for a birdie 3 at the finish to be in striking distance of Jones.

The showing of Robson in getting 71 yesterday and 72 today greatly cheered the British. Had he been able to hole putts as Jones did today he would have smashed the Hoylake course record. At St. Andrew in 1927 he tied for second to Jones. He captained the winning British Ryder Cup team last year.

Compston, Cotton and Charles Whitcombe probably are too far back to be considered in striking distance, for if the present weather holds predictions are being made that Jones' record score of 285 for the event will be broken. Fans who have followed Bobby for two days see no reason why he should not shoot two 72s tomorrow. Yesterday he was deadly—to the greens and most of the time putting for birdies. Today he couldn't hit the greens with his second shots, but calmly adjusted his game and chipped and putted his way to a par.

H. Smith to Lead Pack Tomorrow.

Horton Smith will be the first American out in the third round tomorrow morning, followed by Moe, Stevens, Jones, Barnes, Diegel and Mac Smith. They will play in the same order in the fourth and final round in the afternoon.

STRIBLING 6-5 FAVORITE TONIGHT

Injured Hand Ready for Von Porat Bout at Chicago.

CHICAGO, June 19 (A.P.).—Stadium and State boxing commission officials were accused of doing a Sherlock Holmes shadowing act today as the puzzling ten-round heavyweight match between Otto von Porat, the Norwegian bone crusher, and W. L. Young Stribling, of Macon, Ga., scheduled for tomorrow night, neared a showdown.

Worried that Stribling, who claims his left hand was sprained and in no condition for the fight, may decide to "run out," one or more of the interested officials appeared to check his every movement, causing fans and sport writers to think they were shadowing him. Sidney Strotz, president of the stadium, which is promoting the match, and Commissioner Fred Gardner spent their fourth afternoon watching the Macon boy and Von Porat work out.

Stribling and his father-manager laughed at reports they planned to "run out" on the fight, however. They appeared before the commission's physician today for another examination of the hand and seemed satisfied when they were advised again that nothing was wrong with the fighting implement.

"Pa" Stribling Confident.

"My son will be there and he'll give Von Porat a licking he'll remember," said Pa Stribling.

Both fighters tapered off with a light drill today. Stribling went through six rounds of work but did very little bag punching, while Von Porat finished his long, hard training grind with a light four-round workout.

Odds tonight still favored Stribling, 6 to 5, because of his superior boxing ability. He outpointed the Norwegian once easily, escaping his hard right smashes with ease. Von Porat will outweigh his rival, however. Today he weighed 205, while Stribling scaled 191.

Chicago fans, regarding the match as a "heavyweight natural," and an elimination fight to determine Max Schmeling's next rival in a heavyweight championship battle, were gobbling the tickets tonight. Twenty-one thousand are expected to watch the match, if it is held on schedule this time, after three postponements, and the gate receipts are expected to reach $85,000, of which Von Porat is to receive 30 per cent and Stribling 25 per cent of the gross.

CAPITAL HOPES HIGH IN HOTCHKISS NET PLAY TODAY

Baltimore Hit By Jacobs' Absence

Columbia Club Scene of Matches Involving Four Cities.

Veteran Members of Capital's Champion Team Play Again.

By JACK ESPEY.

WASHINGTON enters the Hotchkiss Cup matches at Columbia Country Club today with a brighter chance of winning the cup for another year than observers have been conceding it.

This is because the Baltimore team, which had loomed as its strongest opponent, has been weakened considerably by the inability of Eddie Jacobs, first-ranking player in the Middle Atlantic, to represent the Monumental City. Jacobs, who unquestionably is the best netman eligible to compete in the matches, is now competing in the Delaware State championships at Wilmington. His absence is a blow to Baltimore's hopes and a boon to Washington, which is as strong if not stronger than it was last year.

The matches will start at 2:30 o'clock. The pairings will be made at 1 o'clock at the Racquet Club, where the members of the visiting teams—Baltimore, Richmond and Norfolk—will be quartered. Today's winners will clash tomorrow at Columbia in the titular match.

Washington Won, 5-3, Last Year.

Washington defeated Baltimore for the cup last year at Richmond. The score was 5 to 3, one match being canceled because of rain.

Representing Washington will be Dooly Mitchell, of Georgetown University, No. 2 in Middle Atlantic rankings; Clarence Charest, District champion; Tom Mangan, former District champion; Bob Considine, public parks champion and winner of the recent City of Washington tournament; Eddie Yoemans, of the University of North Carolina; Commander C. C. Gill, of the Navy Leech Cup Team; Frank Shore, District junior champion; Harry B. Irwin, Chevy Chase Club titleholder; Arthur Hellen and Maurice O'Neill.

Most of these players carried Washington's banner in the matches of 1929 and 1928, both times bringing home the championship. Gill and Yoemans are newcomers, and are regarded as the players in whom the team's added strength, if any, is to be found.

Baltimore Junior Champion Plays.

Baltimore will line up with the following: Billy Jacobs, brother of Eddie, and the junior champion of his city; Bob Elliott, of Baltimore University; John A. Magee, Albert Hobelmann, Phil Goldsborough and Eric Jacobsen. As alternates, the Baltimoreans will present Elmer Rudy and Johnny Howard, both of whom have gained much experience in home town tournaments.

Little is known here of the personnel of Richmond and Norfolk except that the tennis solons of those two cities have made diligent efforts to round up the best talent available. Neither Richmond nor Norfolk has won the cup since the inception of the matches in 1921. Baltimore has won it five times and Washington three.

SHARKEY HURLS NEW DEFY AT SCHMELING

his contract with Buelow expires in October.

Sharkey, in person, protested the naming of Schmeling champion on the grounds that the bout had not decided which was the better man. He asked that the whole question be held in status quo until the return match. Commissioners James A. Farley and John J. Phelan decided, however, that the match had been fought for the heavyweight title, that the winner was Schmeling, and therefore the new title holder.

Commissioner Muldoon opposed this view and offered three resolutions, all of which were defeated by votes of 2 to 1, that would have wiped Schmeling out of title consideration.

The aged one first demanded that the commission refuse to accept the referee's decision because he had reversed himself under the persuasion of Joe Jacobs. Then he asked that the bout be declared "no contest" because of Referee Jim Crowley's "unsatisfactory decision and the disorder in the ring at the time it was made."

Failure to Suspend Sharkey Explained.

Finally, he moved that inasmuch as the title was held by neither man going into the ring and there had been no definite answer to the question of who was the betetr man, the commission refuse recognition to the winner as a champion worthy of the name. Each time he was voted down.

The commission explained its failure to suspend and fine Sharkey under the new "Baumes law" for fouls with the statement that Schmeling had demanded that the clause, for which the commission battled valiantly and finally gained legislative sanction, be stricken from the contracts.

But a few minutes later a Negro light heavyweight, Larry Johnson, who fouled Pete Latso last night at Ebbetts Field, was suspended for 60 days and fined half his purse. The clause had not been stricken from the Negro's contract.

Ban Lifted, Bout Tonight At Chicago to Go on Air

Chicago, June 19 (A.P.).—The Chicago Stadium broke its rule against radio broadcasting of fights tonight, permitting the National Broadcasting Co. ot put the Young Stribling-Otto von Porat match, scheduled for tomorrow night, on the air.

The round-by-round radio description will be offered by the National Broadcasting Co. over the WCFL network, covering all the East, the West as far as Omaha, and Kansas City and the South as far as Cincinnati. The event will start at about 10 p. m., Chicago daylight savings time. Announcer Gene Rouse will give the radio account.

Since its construction in 1928, the Stadium has refused radio broadcasting privileges, claiming the radio cuts down attendance.

Saint Germain, France, June 19 (A.P.).—Simone Thion de la Chaume today won the French international golf championship for the fifth time, defeating Diana Esmond, 5 up and 4 to play, in the final at 36 holes.

Women's Net League Matches Postponed

Wet courts yesterday caused postponement of the singles and doubles finals in the Women's District Tennis League tournament at Columbia Country Club. Barring continued inclement weather, they will be held today, the scene having been shifted to the Rock Creek courts, Sixteenth and Kennedy streets northwest.

In the singles final, starting at 3:30 o'clock, Josephine Dunham will meet Ruth Martinez and in the doubles Phoebe Moorhead and Frances Waller will engage Dorothy Kingsbury and Cecyle Raver.

The finals of the consolations also are due today, Goldie Crist meeting Betty Cochran at 2:15. Miss Crist yesterday defeated Dorette Miller, 6—3, 6—2.

MANGIN WINS FROM DOEG IN UPSET

G. U. Student Defeats Davis Cup Ace in 2 Sets in London.

LONDON, June 19 (A.P.).—Johnny Doeg, member of the United States Davis Cup Team, today was eliminated from the London lawn tennis championships by Gregory Mangin, Georgetown University student and America's No. 10 ranking player. The score was 7—5, 6—1.

Doeg, who was made a strong favorite to win the title after Bill Tilden had withdrawn, was erratic throughout and seemed somewhat upset by several line decisions. The defeat of America's southpaw came as a surprise as Doeg ranks No. 3 in the United States, while Mangin ranks seven notches lower.

Wilmer Allison, also a member of the United States Davis Cup squad, entered the semifinal round in the top quarter of the draw by defeating E. H. McCauliffe, a fellow American, 6—2, 6—4.

Mangin was taken abroad with the United States Davis Cup team as a reserve player.

Navy Officials Silent On West Point Report

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., June 19.—Officials of the Naval Academy declined to make material comment on the report of General Hugh A. Drum, inspector general of the Army, approving the system governing athletics at the West Point Military Academy, and the probable effect of future relations between the two schools in all branches of athletics.

Rear Admiral Samuel S. Robison, superintendent of the Naval Academy, reiterated that as far as the Navy is concerned it has gone the limit in an effort to adjust the situation. Navy feels it has gone more than halfway in offering to meet Army under its stipulations every other year. "We stand pat on that, and if the issue is to be reopened in any way in the future the overture must come from West Point," is the local administration's attitude.

ROY RANDALL GIVEN NEW VA. POST

To Direct First Year Athletes; Former Gridiron Aid.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., June 19. Roy Randall, for two years assistant varsity football coach at the University of Virginia, has been named director of first year athletics for the season of 1930-31. He will not only be in charge of all athletic activities for the new men, but he will look after them off the field as well as on. His effort will be to make them good students as well as good athletes.

Randall, who is a native of Brockton, Mass., played football, basket ball and baseball at Andover Academy before going to Brown University to make a national reputation on the gridiron. For three seasons he was Brown's quarter back and he made all-American in 1926 as one of the well-remembered "iron men." In 1927 he was captain of football. At Brown he also played baseball and basket ball.

Came to Virginia In 1928.

In 1928, Randall came to Virginia to be assistant football coach. For one session he directed the varsity basket ball team at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, but the remainder of his time has been spent in Charlottesville.

Next fall Randall will start in with the first-year grid squad. In this effort he will have as his associate Joe McConnell, former Davidson star, who has coached the freshman eleven through the last two campaigns.

This step is in accordance with the Virginia athletic policy of trying to bring as many students as possible into active competitions. Randall will work to build up the interest of the new men in sports.

During the season just ended the Cavaliers had organized first year teams in nine different sports.

PRIMO AND GODFREY MAY COME TO BLOWS

that he and Jack Sharkey could draw the greatest gate of the year. The same traits or offenses that made Schmeling undesirable last fall would seem to make him undesirable now, for the young man has neither changed nor repented, and it would be an unfair discrimination to withhold the same generous forgiveness from Primo.

In some quarters I hear that the Carnera-Godfrey prize fight is to be waged strictly on the level, as Primo's board of directors have decided to take a gambling chance at last to see whether they own a prize fighter or just a monstrosity who should be turned over to Mr. Ringling for his sideshow. But this is hard to believe, and I repeat the rumor with the greatest hesitancy, believing it unjust to Primo's firm, who have yet to be accused of doing anything on the level, in a tour from this coast to the other one and back.

The boys have made a remarkable record, humbling Joe Lynch's record of nineteen prize fights with one sparring partner who used nineteen different names, and it would be regrettable to mar their achievement with a square fight now.

Sharkey and Campolo His Only Superiors.

I am erratic in my judgement of prize fighters and it is my perverse notion that Primo Carnera can lick any heavyweight now in practice except Jack Sharkey and Victorio Campolo, who are just rugged enough to stand up to him and belt him back until his features become undistinguishable. Schmeling could not beat him. Primo is as big as Jess Willard, but he scampers about the ring with the most surprising agility, and when he has bumped into a fighter weighing 185 pounds four or five times, the shock of the collision subdues the victim.

The Carnera-Godfrey prize fight will bring together in Philadelphia the most interesting aggregation of sinister citizens convened in this country since the Tunney-Dempsey reunion in Chicago, and the administration, if it is alert to its opportunities, will go all the way and declare next Monday a racketeer's bank holiday.

Yale Overwhelming Choice Over Harvard Crew Today

New London Race Offers Elis Bright Chance for First Major Victory of Year Over Crimson; Record Far Better.

By ALAN GOULD.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 19. (A.P.). — Yale and Harvard, most ancient of American college rivals, close their 1929-30 athletic competition on the Thames River tomorrow with the Elis strongly favored to outrow the Crimson varsity crew and thereby send the banner of blue flying for the first major conquest of the year over its old foe.

Harvard has come down to this concluding spectacle with one of the finest Crimson records in years so far as rivalry with Yale is concerned. The Cambridge lads won on the gridiron and on the track and tied in other major sports with Yale, but have only an outside chance to win tomorrow's regatta.

Yale's successful crew comes down to capture the honors, by anywhere from 5 to 10 lengths, in the four-mile varsity pull down the old river from Bartlett's Cove, past the warlike submarine base, through brilliant lanes formed by a record-breaking fleet of yachts and cruisers, down to the finish at the railroad bridge.

Leader's Regime One-Sided.

The morning races, at two miles, for the freshman and junior varsity crews, figured to develop an even break. Harvard's freshman and Yale's "jayvee" crew are the favorites in the preliminary events, scheduled to start at 9 a. m. (Eastern standard time). The varsity race is carded for 6:30 p. m.

Since Ed Leader came out of the well-known West in 1923 to reorganize and revive Eli rowing fortunes Yale has monopolized the celebrations in this ancient whaling town with monotonous regularity. In fact, during the past seven years of Leader's regime Harvard has captured only three out of twenty-one races rowed on the Thames—one in each class of competition. Harvard's last varsity victory was in 1927, when the Crimson rowed a smashing race in the last mile after one of Eli's oarsmen was unfortunate enough to catch a "crab." In 1926 Harvard showed the way in both morning events. Otherwise the blue-tipped oars have swept the river.

It is no novelty for Yale to enter the final regatta with an undefeated varsity crew, and this year's unbeaten boatload appears to be one of the best that has come out of New Haven. It was power plus in the "engine room," with the brawny Woodruff Tappen at stroke and Capt. Gus Blagden at No. 7. It has the stamina and steadiness for the route, speed for any finishing emergency.

Coach Whiteside Newcomer.

Harvard's varsity is the first product to be sent against Yale by the new Crimson coach, Charles Whiteside, who has just been given a demonstration of support by reengagement for another three years. Last April, in its early stage of development, the Cambridge varsity looked to be exceptionally good. It went into a slump, however, for a variety of causes, and its chances tomorrow depend largely on how much of this early season form has been regained.

Whiteside is optimistic that the Crimson will make more of a fight of the big race than the experts anticipate. In fact, the general idea is that Harvard can win only through a break in racing luck or an accident to Yale. Harvard's freshmen, coached by Bert Haines, have not been defeated. They decisively shipped the Pennsylvania youngsters who trimmed Yale, and figure to win with something to spare. What little has been demonstrated by the "Jayvee" boats aparently favors the Elis.

The prediction was for fair weather tomorrow. If a postponement of the varsity race is necessary, it will be rowed at 10 a. m. Saturday.

Alexander Is Signed To Pitch for Dallas

Dallas, Tex., June 19 (A.P.).—Grover Cleveland Alexander, star right-hand pitcher of the National League for two decades, has been signed by the Dallas club of the Texas League, it was announced tonight by Bob Tarleton, vice president of the local club.

Tarleton said "old Pete" would receive the highest salary ever paid a player in the Texas League, something over $1,500 per month for the rest of the season. Alexander, released unconditionally by the Philadelphia Nationals recently, is to report next Sunday or Monday.

Not counting his work with the Phils this year, Alexander has twirled 687 games in the National League, ranking second only to Walter Johnson, who has 802 contests to his credit. He led the league in low earned run average for four years, 1915, 1917, 1919, and 1920.

Risko Beats Paulino On Points in 10 Rounds

Detroit, June 19 (A.P.).—Johnny Risko, Cleveland baker boy, outpointed Paulin Uzcudun, heavyweight from the basque country of Spain, in a ten-round bout here tonight. Risko weighed 199 3-4; Paulino, 195 1-2.

It was Risko's second decision victory over Paulino, but unlike the first meeting three years ago there was no doubt of the accuracy of Referee Al Day's verdict.

Only in the sixth round did the Spanish woodchopper show anything that disturbed the Cleveland baker boy in the least. In this session Paulino fought viciously, landing a stinging right and left to Risko's heart and jolting the Clevelander with a heavy right to the kidneys.

It was only a momentary flash of his old-time skill on the Spaniard's part, however, and Risko began just where he had left off in the fifth round, hammering the Basque with every punch in his extensive repertoire. Risko landed three or four blows to each one the Basque could send through and consistently outspeeded and outsmarted his rival.

Despite the battering he took, Paulino was in danger of a knockout only in the fifth round when a series of hard rights and lefts to the jaw had him staggering.

At the end of the fight Paulino's left eye was nearly closed from Risko's sharp lefts and the right also had suffered considerable damage.

Western Will Lose Thompson, Sport Star

Jimmy Thompson, three-letter sports man, will play no more ball for Western High School. Expected to return next year for another semester, Thompson is planning to enroll in summer school and earn enough credits to allow him to receive his diploma at the end of the summer course.

Kept idle during the football season last year, as the result of a broken arm, Thompson shone in basketball for Western and also played on the baseball team. He had been expected to earn a regular place in the Western backfield next year, as well as hold down his regular berth on the court team. Thompson's loss is the third experienced by Western's athletic teams of next year, Jimmy Draper and Ray Millard, grid stars, having left the school.

PLAY FOR STATE TITLE.

The high school baseball championship of Maryland will be decided today when the Lackey High School, of Indian Head, meets the Perryville School, of Perryville, at Clifton Park, in Baltimore, this afternoon. Lackey is the champion of the Western Shore and Perryville holds the title of the Eastern Shore.

2 Georgetown Netmen To Seek National Title

Dooly Mitchell and Clyde Yoemans, Washingtonians, will represent Georgetown University in the national intercollegiate tennis championships which open next Monday at Haverford, Pa.

CROWDER PITCHES FOUR-HIT VICTORY

flinger issued a pass to Loepp, first up, and it looked as though this would help the Nats none when two force plays followed. Cronin, however, tripled the runner home and registered a moment later on Shires' scratch safety past Cissell.

The Nats kept pecking away at Henry's offerings and but for a bad break, would have scored again in the fourth, after Reynolds had cracked out his homer to the left center stands with none on in the upper half. Myer led off with a single and then was caught stealing, apparently thinking that the hit-and-run was on. If it was, Bluege did not catch the sign, for he made no effort to hit the ball. After Buddie was nipped midway, Bluege doubled off the wall in left, but this blow was wasted.

Cissell's Wild Throw Figures in Run.

Round 6 saw the final run of the game made. It also came with two dead after Shires had led off with a single and then fallen a victim on one of the two force-plays which followed. On the second of these, Cissell pegged past first trying for a double play on Bluege's tap, and the runner carried on to second. Then Spencer doubled to left. Crowder followed with a walk, but the rally ended when Loepp sent Reynolds all the way to the base of the stands in left for a drive which looked like an extra-baser as it left the bat.

In addition to getting enough timely hits to give them the verdict, the Nats also fielded flashily, every one of the infielders bobbing up at one time or another with a good play, while both of the double-murders were executed with neatness and dispatch.

Bennie Tate and Red Barnes, former Nats, made their appearance in White Sox uniforms, the little catcher performing well behind the bat and getting one of the four safeties Crowder allowed. Barnes appeared in a pinch-hitting role and popped to Cronin to end the eighth round. Reynolds contributed the best fielding play for the visitors, when he raced over to the right field line to rob Myer of at least a double ending the native rally in the first.

vented Clancy's opening single from hurting any in the fifth.

Cronin and Shires did some snappy work in retiring Watwood, ending the White Sox sixth. The shortstopper's stop was a good one, with the first baseman completing the play while stretching at full length.

Shires gave the fans a big laugh in the sixth when, after singling opening the home sixth, he was caught at second on Cronin's intended sacrifice. Art slid into the sack, hitting Kerr low and causing the visiting shortstop to turn a complete flip-flop. No chance for a double-play there.

Bluege went back to short left to make an over-the-shoulder catch of Jolley's looper in the seventh.

Ending the Nats' sixth, Loepp sent Reynolds back against the stands in left for his long lopper. Two mates were on the runways at the time.

Metzler batted for Kamm after Clancy had walked opening the eighth and popped to Myer. Later Barnes drew a hand when he appeared at the tee in Henry's place, but his best was a pop to Cronin.

LYONS FACES HADLEY IN 2D GAME

3 of 4 Invaders Are Second Division Ball Clubs.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

WITH all trades completed and some of the Washington players who were worried for fear they would be involved relieved of this suspense, all the Nats have to do now is to settle down to work and win a few games. On the Western trip just completed Johnson suddenly found himself with all of his pitchers wilting at once, but he is satisfied that the talent is there and now is concentrating on getting his moundsmen back into form.

With the Mackmen, Yankees, Indians and Nats closely bunched around the top of the ladder and practically all baseball experts conceding that none of the other entrants has a chance, it is up to the Johnsons to step out on this present home stand, when three of their opponents will be second-division clubs. The Nats hold an edge in previous meetings with the Chisox and Tigers, but the Browns to date have been rank poison.

The second game of the current set with the White Sox is scheduled for this afternoon, with Irving Hadley drawing the Washington pitching assignment. He probably will be opposed by Ted Lyons who, although he had a hard row to hoe, downed the Johnsons in Chicago last week for his ninth victory of the season, after having been beaten in his four previous starts.

Shires Asks for, and Gets, No. 13.

In addition to this afternoon being ladies' day, Boy Scouts also are invited as the Nats' guests, this invitation being extended until school starts next September. For today only the Sky Climbers, another boys' organization interested in aviation, are invited, meaning that there will be a goodly gathering even if no cash customers show up.

Art Shires was given quite a hand when he took his station at first in yesterday's pregame practice, and, although there was some "kidding" from the stands, as a general rule his welcome was a real one. When the numbered uniforms were assigned the players before the season started, No. 13, generally considered unlucky, was passed up by all.

"This hard luck stuff's the bunk," Shires told Manager Johnson yesterday. "Give me No. 13." And that's why a "13" was in the Washington line-up yesterday.

Griffith Elated at Shires' Addition.

Clark Griffith, by the way, seems to be just as enthusiastic over having landed Shires as he is over his other deals. "I kind of feel that I had something to do with Art's discovery," the Nat president said yesterday. "You know he tried out with us in the summer of 1925, reporting to Stanley Harris while the team was in St. Louis and working out under the name of Lowe, as he was in college at the time and wanted to protect his amateur standing.

"Harris did not take much time to look him over and let him loose, but I've been sorry ever since that I did not land him then. He ought to be the making of our team, for we needn't worry so much now over the possibilities of Judge being hurt. There is no question in my mind but that Judge is the better man, but Shires is the best substitute we have ever had and, as he is just a youngster, he's good for many years to come."

Word was received from Pitcher "Sad Sam" Jones, who has been ill at his home in Woodsfield, Ohio, that he will rejoin the Nationals Saturday morning. The veteran probably will not be able to regain his pitching form for ten days or two weeks.

E. S. Barnard, American League head, was here on a business trip, leaving to return to Chicago just before yesterday's game started.

Pitcher Ed Wineapple, on option at New Haven, has been given his ten-day release notice. The Nats probably will send him to Jack Bentley's York team in the New York-Pennsylvania League.

Ever since shortly after the season started, the Nat players to a man have been saying: "Watch the Yankees." Those who watched their box scores on the Western trip just ended probably noted that they scored 125 runs in their dozen games as a result of 181 hits for 229 bases. Some power!

MORSHION, MATE RUN DEAD HEAT AT AQUEDUCT

2-Year-Olds Reach Wire Locked

Judges Are Unable to Separate Pair; Mate Closes Gap.

By GEORGE DALEY.

NEW YORK, June 19 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Morshion and Mate ran a spectacular dead heat in the fifth race at Aqueduct today and the roar of the cro--d settled into a steady buzz for two or three minutes before the excitement wore off.

More excitement followed and much anxiety beset the supportres of Morshion. One of the patrol judges charged George Ellis with rough riding, but the stewards, after taking the evidence of Kennedy, who rode Principio, confirmed the race, but suspended Ellis for five days for not holding to his course from the elbow home.

Morshion forced the pace, but in a zigzag way, going wide at the elbow, and then bearing over to the rail. If Ellis had paid less attention to the other horses and more to his own the Morvich filly would have won. As it was Mate, with Workman up, after stumbling just after the start, closed a gap of three or four lengths and joined issue with Morshion a hundred yards out for a furious battle to the wire. First one nodded in front and then the other. At the finish the judges could not separate them.

Runs-Offs Prohibited 2-Year-Olds.

Under the rules, 2-year-olds may not run off a dead heat, and so first and second money of $900 was divided between Benjamin Block and A. C. Bostwick.

Morshion was the favorite around even money, while Mate was quoted at 4 to 1. In settling wagers the amount bet and the price laid are added together and divided by two. As an example if $10 was wagered on Mate at 4 to 1 the total of $10 and $40 divided by two leaves $25. Those who wagered on Morshion at even money simply got a drawdown and won nothing, although saving their stake.

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office.)

—Washington Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

AN ALLOWANCE purse for 3-year-olds and upward at a mile and seventy yards features the Washington Park card today.

SILVERDALE is picked to win. He is in the best form and while under the weight arrangement he is called upon to concede weight, even to WHISKERY, yet the impost is light on the entire field. He recently beat a better field than this one, and the result should never be in doubt. PIGEON HOLE also showed good form last week, and is regarded as the contender. LADY BROADCAST is in very light and has all her speed. She should beat the others. WHISKERY at times shows a flash of his old-time form, but his winning efforts are getting more infrequent, and the time is not distant when the former derby winner should be retired.

FIRST RACE—ILLEGITIMATE is in an easy spot in the first race. CROFTON should be the runner-up and should be second choice in the betting. There is a mere chance that CADY HILL, a well bred horse, may show a good performance and is tabbed for third money.

SECOND RACE—The second race is for 2-year-olds. WATER PORT is rated the best of the large field of maidens. SPAR from the Greentree Stable looks best of the others, and may be second at a good price. THE DUKE has shown speed, and may get in the money. The race is very uncertain from any angle. JOSEPHINE D., VALEDICTORY, BIEGE and others will run well.

THIRD RACE—SEARINGTON will have RUANE to beat in the third race. He is a fresher horse than RUANE, which has been campaigning a long time, and this appears a very easy spot for him. The track is fast and RUANE goes better on a soft course. NEVERMORE is not without hope in the race, and should be no worse than third.

FOURTH RACE—A high class field of 2-year-olds start in the fourth race, of which DICK MORRIS seems best. It is 5½ furlongs, quite a route for juveniles this early in the year. DICK MORRIS belongs to Knoelkamp & Morris and this firm won race after race in New Orleans with the shifty youngster. IN BETWEEN recently won impressively, and is coupled in this race with PORTCODINE, and should be as good as second. ISSAQUENA is tabbed for third, but GUNFIRE, which won the other day, has a chance to show also.

SIXTH RACE—RAMONAY BAW, a recent winner in the East for the Greentree Stable, should score in the sixth race. He ran with a better class of horses in New York than he will go against today and should be first home. PORTMANTEAU looks like a contender, but both PLUCKY PLAY and HORNPIPE will be knocking at the door. HORNPIPE was believed good enough to send to Chicago for the American Derby.

SEVENTH RACE — PERCENTAGE may win the seventh race. He should beat BOROUGH MONGER, strongest of the field opposing him. Next to BOROUGH MONGER, a winner in Maryland, NEALON KAY may wake up for another good effort and get the show money.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—NETTIE PEBBLES, $8.66, $4.48, $3.46; MISS ROSEDALE, $8.80, $6.26; BLUE CANOPY, $8.64.

NETTIE PEBBLES was a forward factor from start on the inside, never far off the pace and, continuing to a distance steadily along the inner rail in the stretch, wore down leaders and was up in final strides. MISS ROSEDALE, in good form, opened up a good early lead after shaking off BLUE CANOPY, continued well to the end. BLUE CANOPY forced the pace, had no mishaps, also saving ground and held on strongly. NORA D. began slowly and could never get into contention. FAIR ROSALIND was on the outside and made a wide stretch turn. MIGHTY CUTE was gaining ground gradually. Others were outrun.

REVERBERATE, outpaced the first three furlongs, came fast between the leaders when straightened in the stretch, closed a gap to wear down TAN FACE and win in a hard, final drive. TAN FACE forced the pace, overtook DIRECTLY entering stretch and drew away strongly midway of the stretch, but faltered in final issue. DARK MAID steadily closed ground from a slow beginning and finished with a burst of speed on the outside. SUN PORTER, close up to the stretch, weakened.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward, fillies and mares. Start good. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:17½. Off at 3:18. Winner, W. I. ZETA broke slowly, but was rushed into command in the first furlong, raced into a long lead and held THAT'S IT safe in the drive. THAT'S IT raced closest up throughout, but was not good enough for the winner. PRINCESS EDITH was taken to the inside in the stretch, where she got through to outfinish APT. APT was outrun to the stretch, gained on outside in final eighth, closing a big gap. BETTY BARRETT suffered loss of ground racing wide. MARGARET SCOTT raced evenly.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MARTHA JONES, $2.56, $2.14, $2.32; BAGIEL, $2.44, $2.84; NISIA, $2.84.

MARTHA JONES, away fast, displayed high speed the entire journey, was never threatened and won as rider pleased. BAGIEL worked her way up gradually on outside and was easily best of others. NISIA saved ground on the inside, raced well and outfinished GLIDELIA in final drive. GLIDELIA showed some speed in pursuit of the winner for the first half mile, but tired. ALL GIRLS was outrun.

JEAN VALJEAN, going in his best form, permitted CHEERS to set the pace until around the stretch turn, where he responded strongly to urging and wore down CHEERS, winning easily going away. CHEERS opened up a long early lead, but began to tire on reaching the stretch turn and had little left when JEAN VALJEAN made his bid, but kept SIDNEY GRANT safe. SIDNEY GRANT had no excuses and could never better his position.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Winner, Mrs. B. M. Evans' br. c. (3), by Johren—Marguerite B. Trained by M. F. MALICIOUS worked his way up gradually from slow beginning, closed a wide gap and finished gamely. FORT DEARBORN, never far off the pace, saved ground, held on well and outlasted GEORGE WEBER. Latter came from far back to close wide gap. LADY CLARENCE broke into the air.

ELEVEN SIXTY, rated along in close-up pursuit of the leader to the stretch, then made his move strongly on outside of GOLDEN RACKET, wore latter down in hard drive and was up in time. GOLDEN RACKET set a good pace to the last eighth, where he faltered when the winner challenged. ROYAL CHARGE, a forward factor from the start, was in close quarters, but came fast near the finish and outgamed LOUISE WILSON. Latter worked her way up gradually, loomed up stoutly at the stretch turn, but weakened under pressure.

STROKE LEAD TAKEN BY JONES

it means hardly anything. The big Englishman played Hoylake as it should be played, scoring 34 on the first nine and thus girding himself for the fierce homeward test.

Those who failed to beat par on the outward journey had a hard time on the long homeward half. Again today, as yesterday, reports flew over the course of this player and that, two, three or four under 4s at the thirteenth only to take 5s and 6s on the difficult home holes. Leo Diegel, for example, played only two shots on his first nine that could be criticized and started homeward with a flock of 3s and 4s only to mark down a pair of 6s at the close, where he explored the rough at two holes.

Horton Smith in Good Humor.

Horton Smith, who seems to be the real threat to Jones' lead, played a great game today. He hit his long shots to perfection and his boyish, smiling progress in contrast to the grim intensity of most of the other players indicated that not only was he playing good golf, but also having a good time.

A shot out of bounds at the seventeenth cost him dearly, but he came right back to hole a putt for a birdie 3 at the finish to be in striking distance of Jones.

The showing of Robson in getting 71 yesterday and 72 today greatly cheered the British. Had he been able to hole putts as Jones did today he would have smashed the Hoylake course record. At St. Andrew in 1927 he tied for second to Jones. He captained the winning British Ryder Cup team last year.

Compston, Cotton and Charles Whitcombe probably are too far back to be considered in striking distance, for if the present weather holds predictions are being made that Jones' record score of 285 for the event will be broken. Fans who have followed Bobby for two days see no reason why he should not shoot two 72s tomorrow. Yesterday he was deadly to the greens and most of the time putting for birdies. Today he couldn't hit the greens with his second shots, but calmly adjusted his game and chipped and putted his way to a par.

H. Smith to Lead Pack Tomorrow.

Horton Smith will be the first American out in the third round tomorrow morning, followed by Moe, Stevens, Jones, Barnes, Diegel and Mac Smith. They will play in the same order in the fourth and final round in the afternoon.

STRIBLING 6-5 FAVORITE TONIGHT

Injured Hand Ready for Von Porat Bout at Chicago.

CHICAGO, June 19 (A.P.).—Stadium and State boxing commission officials were accused of doing a Sherlock Holmes shadowing act today as the puzzling ten-round heavyweight match between Otto von Porat, the Norwegian bone crusher, and W. L. Young Stribling, of Macon, Ga., scheduled for tomorrow night, neared a showdown.

Worried that Stribling, who claims his left hand was sprained and in no condition for the fight, may decide to "run out," one or more of the interested officials appeared to check his every movement, causing fans and sport writers to think they were shadowing him. Sidney Strotz, president of the stadium, which is promoting the match, and Commissioner Fred Gardner spent their fourth afternoon watching the Macon boy and Von Porat work out.

Stribling and his father-manager laughed at reports they planned to "run out" on the fight, however. They appeared before the commission's physician today for another examination of the hand and seemed satisfied when they were advised again that nothing was wrong with the fighting implement.

"Pa" Stribling Confident.

"My son will be there and he'll give Von Porat a licking he'll remember," said Pa Stribling.

Both fighters tapered off with a light drill today. Stribling went through six rounds of work but did very little bag punching, while Von Porat finished his long, hard training grind with a light four-round workout.

Odds tonight still favored Stribling, 6 to 5, because of his superior boxing ability. He outpointed the Norwegian once easily, escaping his hard right smashes with ease. Von Porat will outweigh his rival, however. Today he weighed 205, while Stribling scaled 191.

Chicago fans, regarding the match as a "heavyweight natural," and an elimination fight to determine Max Schmeling's next rival in a heavyweight championship battle, were gobbling the tickets tonight. Twenty-one thousand are expected to watch the match, if it is held on schedule this time, after three postponements, and the gate receipts are expected to reach $85,000, of which Von Porat is to receive 30 per cent and Stribling 25 per cent of the gross.

CAPITAL HOPES HIGH IN HOTCHKISS NET PLAY TODAY

Baltimore Hit By Jacobs' Absence

Columbia Club Scene of Matches Involving Four Cities.

Veteran Members of Capital's Champion Team Play Again.

By JACK ESPEY.

WASHINGTON enters the Hotchkiss Cup matches at Columbia Country Club today with a brighter chance of winning the cup for another year than observers have been conceding it.

This is because the Baltimore team, which had loomed as its strongest opponent, has been weakened considerably by the inability of Eddie Jacobs, first-ranking player in the Middle Atlantic, to represent the Monumental City. Jacobs, who unquestionably is the best netman eligible to compete in the matches, is now competing in the Delaware State championships at Wilmington. His absence is a blow to Baltimore's hopes and a boon to Washington, which is as strong if not stronger than it was last year.

The matches will start at 2:30 o'clock. The pairings will be made at 1 o'clock at the Racquet Club, where the members of the visiting teams—Baltimore, Richmond and Norfolk—will be quartered. Today's winners will clash tomorrow at Columbia in the titular match.

Washington Won, 5-3, Last Year.

Washington defeated Baltimore for the cup last year at Richmond. The score was 5 to 3, one match being canceled because of rain.

Representing Washington will be Dooly Mitchell, of Georgetown University, No. 2 in Middle Atlantic rankings; Clarence Charest, District champion; Tom Mangan, former District champion; Bob Considine, public parks champion and winner of the recent City of Washington tournament; Eddie Yoemans, of the University of North Carolina; Commander C. C. Gill, of the Navy Leech Cup Team; Frank Shore, District junior champion; Harry B. Irwin, Chevy Chase Club titleholder; Arthur Hellen and Maurice O'Neill.

Most of these players carried Washington's banner in the matches of 1929 and 1928, both times bringing home the championship. Gill and Yoemans are newcomers, and are regarded as the players in whom the team's added strength, if any, is to be found.

Baltimore Junior Champion Plays.

Baltimore will line up with the following: Billy Jacobs, brother of Eddie, and the junior champion of his city; Bob Elliott, of Baltimore University; John A. Magee, Albert Hobelmann, Phil Goldsborough and Eric Jacobsen. As alternates, the Baltimoreans will present Elmer Rudy and Johnny Howard, both of whom have gained much experience in home town tournaments.

Little is known here of the personnel of Richmond and Norfolk except that the tennis solons of those two cities have made diligent efforts to round up the best talent available. Neither Richmond nor Norfolk has won the cup since the inception of the matches in 1921. Baltimore has won it five times and Washington three.

his contract with Buelow expires in October.

Sharkey, in person, protested the naming of Schmeling champion on the grounds that the bout had not decided which was the better man. He asked that the whole question be held in status quo until the return match. Commissioners James A. Farley and John J. Phelan decided, however, that the match had been fought for the heavyweight title, that the winner was Schmeling, and therefore the new title holder.

Commissioner Muldoon opposed this view and offered three resolutions, all of which were defeated by votes of 2 to 1, that would have wiped Schmeling out of title consideration.

The aged one first demanded that the commission refuse to accept the referee's decision because he had reversed himself under the persuasion of Joe Jacobs. Then he asked that the bout be declared "no contest" because of Referee Jim Crowley's "unsatisfactory decision and the disorder in the ring at the time it was made."

Failure to Suspend Sharkey Explained.

Finally, he moved that inasmuch as the title was held by neither man going into the ring and there had been no definite answer to the question of who was the betetr man, the commission refuse recognition to the winner as a champion worthy of the name. Each time he was voted down.

The commission explained its failure to suspend and fine Sharkey under the new "Baumes law" for fouls with the statement that Schmeling had demanded that the clause, for which the commission battled valiantly and finally gained legislative sanction, be stricken from the contracts.

But a few minutes later a Negro light heavyweight, Larry Johnson, who fouled Pete Latso last night at Ebbetts Field, was suspended for 60 days and fined half his purse. The clause had not been stricken from the Negro's contract.

Ban Lifted, Bout Tonight At Chicago to Go on Air

Chicago, June 19 (A.P.).—The Chicago Stadium broke its rule against radio broadcasting of fights tonight, permitting the National Broadcasting Co. ot put the Young Stribling-Otto von Porat match, scheduled for tomorrow night, on the air.

The round-by-round radio description will be offered by the National Broadcasting Co. over the WCFL network, covering all the East, the West as far as Omaha, and Kansas City and the South as far as Cincinnati. The event will start at about 10 p. m., Chicago daylight savings time. Announcer Gene Rouse will give the radio account.

Since its construction in 1928, the Stadium has refused radio broadcasting privileges, claiming the radio cuts down attendance.

MANGIN WINS FROM DOEG IN UPSET

G. U. Student Defeats Davis Cup Ace in 2 Sets in London.

LONDON, June 19 (A.P.).—Johnny Doeg, member of the United States Davis Cup Team, today was eliminated from the London lawn tennis championships by Gregory Mangin, Georgetown University student and America's No. 10 ranking player. The score was 7—5, 6—1.

Doeg, who was made a strong favorite to win the title after Bill Tilden had withdrawn, was erratic throughout and seemed somewhat upset by several line decisions. The defeat of America's southpaw came as a surprise as Doeg ranks No. 3 in the United States, while Mangin ranks seven notches lower.

Wilmer Allison, also a member of the United States Davis Cup squad, entered the semifinal round in the top quarter of the draw by defeating E. H. McCauliffe, a fellow American, 6—2, 6—4.

Mangin was taken abroad with the United States Davis Cup team as a reserve player.

Navy Officials Silent On West Point Report

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., June 19.—Officials of the Naval Academy declined to make material comment on the report of General Hugh A. Drum, inspector general of the Army, approving the system governing athletics at the West Point Military Academy, and the probable effect of future relations between the two schools in all branches of athletics.

Rear Admiral Samuel S. Robison, superintendent of the Naval Academy, reiterated that as far as the Navy is concerned it has gone the limit in an effort to adjust the situation. Navy feels it has gone more than halfway in offering to meet Army under its stipulations every other year. "We stand pat on that, and if the issue is to be reopened in any way in the future the overture must come from West Point," is the local administration's attitude.

ROY RANDALL GIVEN NEW VA. POST

To Direct First Year Athletes; Former Gridiron Aid.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., June 19.—Roy Randall, for two years assistant varsity football coach at the University of Virginia, has been named director of first year athletics for the season of 1930-31. He will not only be in charge of all athletic activities for the new men, but he will look after them off the field as well as on. His effort will be to make them good students as well as good athletes.

Randall, who is a native of Brockton, Mass., played football, basket ball and baseball at Andover Academy before going to Brown University to make a national reputation on the gridiron. For three seasons he was Brown's quarter back and he made all-American in 1926 as one of the well-remembered "iron men." In 1927 he was captain of football. At Brown he also played baseball and basket ball.

Came to Virginia In 1928.

In 1928, Randall came to Virginia to be assistant football coach. For one session he directed the varsity basket ball team at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, but the remainder of his time has been spent in Charlottesville.

Next fall Randall will start in with the first-year grid squad. In this effort he will have as his associate Joe McConnell, former Davidson star, who has coached the freshman eleven through the last two campaigns.

This step is in accordance with the Virginia athletic policy of trying to bring as many students as possible into active competitions. Randall will work to build up the interest of the new men in sports.

During the season just ended the Cavaliers had organized first year teams in nine different sports.

that he and Jack Sharkey could draw the greatest gate of the year. The same traits or offenses that made Schmeling undesirable last fall would seem to make him undesirable now, for the young man has neither changed nor repented, and it would be an unfair discrimination to withhold the same generous forgiveness from Primo.

In some quarters I hear that the Carnera-Godfrey prize fight is to be waged strictly on the level, as Primo's board of directors have decided to take a gambling chance at last to see whether they own a prize fighter or just a monstrosity who should be turned over to Mr. Ringling for his sideshow. But this is hard to believe, and I repeat the rumor with the greatest hesitancy, believing it unjust to Primo's firm, who have yet to be accused of doing anything on the level, in a tour from this coast to the other one and back.

The boys have made a remarkable record, humbling Joe Lynch's record of nineteen prize fights with one sparring partner who used nineteen different names, and it would be regrettable to mar their achievement with a square fight now.

Sharkey and Campolo His Only Superiors.

I am erratic in my judgement of prize fighters and it is my perverse notion that Primo Carnera can lick any heavyweight now in practice except Jack Sharkey and Victorio Campolo, who are just rugged enough to stand up to him and belt him back until his features become undistinguishable. Schmeling could not beat him. Primo is as big as Jess Willard, but he scampers about the ring with the most surprising agility, and when he has bumped into a fighter weighing 185 pounds four or five times, the shock of the collision subdues the victim.

The Carnera-Godfrey prize fight will bring together in Philadelphia the most interesting aggregation of sinister citizens convened in this country since the Tunney-Dempsey reunion in Chicago, and the administration, if it is alert to its opportunities, will go all the way and declare next Monday a racketeer's bank holiday.

Yale Overwhelming Choice Over Harvard Crew Today

By ALAN GOULD.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 19. (A.P.).—Yale and Harvard, most ancient of American college rivals, close their 1929-30 athletic competition on the Thames River tomorrow with the Elis strongly favored to outrow the Crimson varsity crew and thereby send the banner of blue flying for the first major conquest of the year over its old foe.

Harvard has come down to this concluding spectacle with one of the finest Crimson records in years so far as rivalry with Yale is concerned. The Cambridge lads won on the gridiron and on the track and tied in other major sports with Yale, but have only an outside chance to win tomorrow's regatta.

Yale's successful crew comes down to capture the honors, by anywhere from 5 to 10 lengths, in the four-mile varsity pull down the old river from Bartlett's Cove, past the warlike submarine base, through brilliant lanes formed by a record-breaking fleet of yachts and cruisers, down to the finish at the railroad bridge.

Leader's Regime One-Sided.

The morning races, at two miles, for the freshman and junior varsity crews, figured to develop an even break. Harvard's freshman and Yale's "jayvee" crew are the favorites in the preliminary events, scheduled to start at 9 a. m. (Eastern standard time). The varsity race is carded for 6:30 p. m.

Since Ed Leader came out of the well-known West in 1923 to reorganize and revive Eli rowing fortunes Yale has monopolized the celebrations in this ancient whaling town with monotonous regularity. In fact, during the past seven years of Leader's regime Harvard has captured only three out of twenty-one races rowed on the Thames—one in each class of competition. Harvard's last varsity victory was in 1927, when the Crimson rowed a smashing race in the last mile after one of Eli's oarsmen was unfortunate enough to catch a "crab." In 1926 Harvard showed the way in both morning events. Otherwise the blue-tipped oars have swept the river.

It is no novelty for Yale to enter the final regatta with an undefeated varsity crew, and this year's unbeaten boatload appears to be one of the best that has come out of New Haven. It was power plus in the "engine room," with the brawny Woodruff Tappen at stroke and Capt. Gus Blagden at No. 7. It has the stamina and steadiness for the route, speed for any finishing emergency.

Coach Whiteside Newcomer.

Harvard's varsity is the first product to be sent against Yale by the new Crimson coach, Charles Whiteside, who has just been given a demonstration of support by reengagement for another three years. Last April, in its early stage of development, the Cambridge varsity looked to be exceptionally good. It went into a slump, however, for a variety of causes, and its chances tomorrow depend largely on how much of this early season form has been regained.

Whiteside is optimistic that the Crimson will make more of a fight of the big race than the experts anticipate. In fact, the general idea is that Harvard can win only through a break in racing luck or an accident to Yale. Harvard's freshmen, coached by Bert Haines, have not been defeated. They decisively shipped the Pennsylvania youngsters who trimmed Yale, and figure to win with something to spare. What little has been demonstrated by the "Jayvee" boats apparently favors the Elis.

The prediction was for fair weather tomorrow. If a postponement of the varsity race is necessary, it will be rowed at 10 a. m. Saturday.

Alexander Is Signed To Pitch for Dallas

Dallas, Tex., June 19 (A.P.).—Grover Cleveland Alexander, star right-hand pitcher of the National League for two decades, has been signed by the Dallas club of the Texas League, it was announced tonight by Bob Tarleton, vice president of the local club.

Tarleton said "old Pete" would receive the highest salary ever paid a player in the Texas League, something over $1,500 per month for the rest of the season. Alexander, released unconditionally by the Philadelphia Nationals recently, is to report next Sunday or Monday.

Not counting his work with the Phils this year, Alexander has twirled 687 games in the National League, ranking second only to Walter Johnson, who has 802 contests to his credit. He led the league in low earned run average for four years, 1915, 1917, 1919, and 1920.

Risko Beats Paulino On Points in 10 Rounds

Detroit, June 19 (A.P.).—Johnny Risko, Cleveland baker boy, outpointed Paulin Uzcudun, heavyweight from the basque country of Spain, in a ten-round bout here tonight. Risko weighed 199 3-4; Paulino, 195 1-2.

It was Risko's second decision victory over Paulino, but unlike the first meeting three years ago there was no doubt of the accuracy of Referee Al Day's verdict.

Only in the sixth round did the Spanish woodchopper show anything that disturbed the Cleveland baker boy in the least. In this session Paulino fought viciously, landing a stinging right and left to Risko's heart and jolting the Clevelander with a heavy right to the kidneys.

It was only a momentary flash of his old-time skill on the Spaniard's part, however, and Risko began just where he had left off in the fifth round, hammering the Basque with every punch in his extensive repertoire. Risko landed three or four blows to each one the Basque could send through and consistently outspeeded and outsmarted his rival.

Despite the battering he took, Paulino was in danger of a knockout only in the fifth round when a series of hard rights and lefts to the jaw had him staggering.

At the end of the fight Paulino's left eye was nearly closed from Risko's sharp lefts and the right also had suffered considerable damage.

Western Will Lose Thompson, Sport Star

Jimmy Thompson, three-letter sports man, will play no more ball for Western High School. Expected to return next year for another semester, Thompson is planning to enroll in summer school and earn enough credits to allow him to receive his diploma at the end of the summer course.

Kept idle during the football season last year, as the result of a broken arm, Thompson shone in basketball for Western and also played on the baseball team. He had been expected to earn a regular place in the Western backfield next year, as well as hold down his regular berth on the court team. Thompson's loss is the third experienced by Western's athletic teams of next year, Jimmy Draper and Ray Millard, grid stars, having left the school.

PLAY FOR STATE TITLE.

The high school baseball championship of Maryland will be decided today when the Lackey High School, of Indian Head, meets the Perryville School, of Perryville, at Clifton Park, in Baltimore, this afternoon. Lackey is the champion of the Western Shore and Perryville holds the title of the Eastern Shore.

2 Georgetown Netmen To Seek National Title

Dooly Mitchell and Clyde Yoemans, Washingtonians, will represent Georgetown University in the national intercollegiate tennis championships which open next Monday at Haverford, Pa.

Georgetown gained runner-up honors in the national meet last year, Gregory Mangin bowing to Berkeley Bell in the singles final and Mangin and Emmet Pare losing to Ben Gorchakoff and Arthur Kussman.

CROWDER PITCHES FOUR-HIT VICTORY

flinger issued a pass to Loepp, first up, and it looked as though this would help the Nats none when two force plays followed. Cronin, however, tripled the runner home and registered a moment later on Shires' scratch safety past Cissell.

The Nats kept pecking away at Henry's offerings and but for a bad break, would have scored again in the fourth, after Reynolds had cracked out his homer to the left center stands with none on in the upper half. Myer led off with a single and then was caught stealing, apparently thinking that the hit-and-run was on. If it was, Bluege did not catch the sign, for he made no effort to hit the ball. After Buddie was nipped midway, Bluege doubled off the wall in left, but this blow was wasted.

Cissell's Wild Throw Figures in Run.

Round 6 saw the final run of the game made. It also came with two dead after Shires had led off with a single and then fallen a victim on one of the two force-plays which followed. On the second of these, Cissell pegged past first trying for a double play on Bluege's tap, and the runner carried on to second. Then Spencer doubled to left. Crowder followed with a walk, but the rally ended when Loepp sent Reynolds all the way to the base of the stands in left for a drive which looked like an extra-baser as it left the bat.

In addition to getting enough timely hits to give them the verdict, the Nats also fielded flashily, every one of the infielders bobbing up at one time or another with a good play, while both of the double-murders were executed with neatness and dispatch.

Bennie Tate and Red Barnes, former Nats, made their appearance in White Sox uniforms, the little catcher performing well behind the bat and getting one of the four safeties Crowder allowed. Barnes appeared in a pinch-hitting role and popped to Cronin to end the eighth round. Reynolds contributed the best fielding play for the visitors, when he raced over to the right field line to rob Myer of at least a double ending the native rally in the first.

vented Clancy's opening single from hurting any in the fifth.

Cronin and Shires did some snappy work in retiring Watwood, ending the White Sox sixth. The shortstopper's stop was a good one, with the first baseman completing the play while stretching at full length.

Shires gave the fans a big laugh in the sixth when, after singling opening the home sixth, he was caught at second on Cronin's intended sacrifice. Art slid into the sack, hitting Kerr low and causing the visiting shortstop to turn a complete flip-flop. No chance for a double-play there.

Bluege went back to short left to make an over-the-shoulder catch of Jolley's looper in the seventh.

Ending the Nats' sixth, Loepp sent Reynolds back against the stands in left for his long lopper. Two mates were on the runways at the time.

Metzler batted for Kamm after Clancy had walked opening the eighth and popped to Myer. Later Barnes drew a hand when he appeared at the tee in Henry's place, but his best was a pop to Cronin.

LYONS FACES HADLEY IN 2D GAME

3 of 4 Invaders Are Second Division Ball Clubs.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

WITH all trades completed and some of the Washington players who were worried for fear they would be involved relieved of this suspense, all the Nats have to do now is to settle down to work and win a few games. On the Western trip just completed Johnson suddenly found himself with all of his pitchers wilting at once, but he is satisfied that the talent is there and now is concentrating on getting his moundsmen back into form.

With the Mackmen, Yankees, Indians and Nats closely bunched around the top of the ladder and practically all baseball experts conceding that none of the other entrants has a chance, it is up to the Johnsons to step out on this present home stand, when three of their opponents will be second-division clubs. The Nats hold an edge in previous meetings with the Chisox and Tigers, but the Browns to date have been rank poison.

The second game of the current set with the White Sox is scheduled for this afternoon, with Irving Hadley drawing the Washington pitching assignment. He probably will be opposed by Ted Lyons who, although he had a hard row to hoe, downed the Johnsons in Chicago last week for his ninth victory of the season, after having been beaten in his four previous starts.

Shires Asks for, and Gets, No. 13.

In addition to this afternoon being ladies' day, Boy Scouts also are invited as the Nats' guests, this invitation being extended until school starts next September. For today only the Sky Climbers, another boys' organization interested in aviation, are invited, meaning that there will be a goodly gathering even if no cash customers show up.

Art Shires was given quite a hand when he took his station at first in yesterday's pregame practice, and, although there was some "kidding" from the stands, as a general rule his welcome was a real one. When the numbered uniforms were assigned the players before the season started, No. 13, generally considered unlucky, was passed up by all.

"This hard luck stuff's the bunk," Shires told Manager Johnson yesterday. "Give me No. 13." And that's why a "13" was in the Washington line-up yesterday.

Griffith Elated at Shires' Addition.

Clark Griffith, by the way, seems to be just as enthusiastic over having landed Shires as he is over his other deals. "I kind of feel that I had something to do with Art's discovery," the Nat president said yesterday. "You know he tried out with us in the summer of 1925, reporting to Stanley Harris while the team was in St. Louis and working out under the name of Lowe, as he was in college at the time and wanted to protect his amateur standing.

"Harris did not take much time to look him over and let him loose, but I've been sorry ever since that I did not land him then. He ought to be the making of our team, for we needn't worry so much now over the possibilities of Judge being hurt. There is no question in my mind but that Judge is the better man, but Shires is the best substitute we have ever had and, as he is just a youngster, he's good for many years to come."

Word was received from Pitcher "Sad Sam" Jones, who has been ill at his home in Woodsfield, Ohio, that he will rejoin the Nationals Saturday morning. The veteran probably will not be able to regain his pitching form for ten days or two weeks.

E. S. Barnard, American League head, was here on a business trip, leaving to return to Chicago just before yesterday's game started.

Pitcher Ed Wineapple, on option at New Haven, has been given his ten-day release notice. The Nats probably will send him to Jack Bentley's York team in the New York-Pennsylvania League.

Ever since shortly after the season started, the Nat players to a man have been saying: "Watch the Yankees." Those who watched their box scores on the Western trip just ended probably noted that they scored 125 runs in their dozen games as a result of 181 hits for 229 bases. Some power!

REBOUND REGAINS LOSSES IN STOCKS

Rally More Than Cancels Severe Depression of Wednesday.

PROFIT TAKING SCARCE

New York, June 19 (A.P.).—Trading in securities and commodities assumed a more cheerful aspect today as the markets rebounded from yesterday's gloomy depths. Stocks, as measured by the indices, more than recovered the loss of yesterday, while wheat, cotton and corn were much firmer. Bonds, aided by another reduction in time money, made some progress.

So far as stocks were concerned, the improvement seemed to be largely technical, a normal reaction from the recent strenuous selling, which had been severe enough to intimidate holders of the short position and to encourage support from influential quarters. Most observers preferred to withhold judgment on the market until it could be learned how much of the stock bought on the rally would be held and how the list would react to profit taking. Commission house opinion was divided as to whether the bottom of the decline had been reached and continued to advise in-and-out traders to be cautious.

The New York Federal Reserve Bank's reduction in the rediscount rate to 2½ per cent, the lowest point in the history of the system, was a surprise. The local bank has been more or less acting with the Bank of England in the matter of rate cuts, but today's step was taken without a corresponding move in London.

Easy Money Policy Seen.

In recent months, with money available in almost unlimited supply on an exceedingly favorable basis, the financial community has not been so interested in the rediscount figure, except in so far as it is a barometer of the general situation. The reduction was viewed as still another step in the reserve's easy money policy, and also as evidence of the extreme lull in the money markets, the result of commercial depression.

Coincident with the announcement of the downward revision came a further concession in bankers' acceptance rates, amounting to ⅛ of 1 per cent on all maturities to the lowest levels in six years. Short-maturity time money was pared ¼ of 1 per cent, with 60 to 90 day loans quoted at 2¾ per cent flat, also the lowest in some time.

Brokers' loans were anybody's guess in this spectacular week. The decline of $211,000,000, the most extensive this year, was more than double the drop of the previous week and carried the total down to $3,787,000,000 compared with $5,420,000,000 a year ago. The largest decrease was in the loans for out-of-town banks, which were off $147,000,000, while those for the account of others shrank $115,000,000. New York City member bank loans, however rose $51,000,000.

Discounts' Drop Normal.

The weekly Federal Reserve statement showed a decline of $15,000,000 in open market purchases of bills, a gain of about $19,000,000 in holdings of United States Government securities, but almost no change in the total of bills and securities. Discounts were off normally, while Federal Reserve note circulation was further contracted.

Stocks opened higher and with only brief interruptions occasioned by minor profit taking the advance was sustained throughout the day and closing prices were virtually at the top. Pivotal shares offered strong leadership, finishing 2 to 7 points net higher. The largest gain of the day was in Allied Chemical, up 13½, but this stock was closely followed by such speculative favorites as Auburn Auto, Case, Vanadium and Worthington Pump, in which the advances ranged from 11 to 13.

Copper shares were quick to respond to a firming of the domestic price on the red metal to 12 cents a pound, based on the lively inquiry stimulated by yesterday's cut. Gains in this group of stocks ran from a fraction to 6 points.

U. S. Steel Up 2⅝ Points.

Numerous shares improving 4 to 6 points net included Radio, Johns-Manville, Union Carbide, Standard Oil of New Jersey, American Water Works, Consolidated Gas, Atchison, Northern Pacific, New York Central, Standard Gas & Electric, Public Service of New Jersey, United Aircraft, American Can, Coca Cola, Calumet & Arizona, Western Union and American Power & Light. American Telephone, Stone & Webster, American Tobacco, Westinghouse Electric, Electric Power & Light and Chesapeake & Ohio moved up 7. U. S. Steel closed 2⅝ higher; Borden, 3⅜, and American Tobacco B, 10. International Telephone rallied nearly 4.

Wheat closed unchanged to an eighth of a cent lower, or about midway between the day's extremes. Corn rose ⅜ to ⅝, but was likewise off from the highs. Advances in cotton were from 22 to 30 points. Sugar futures were up a shade.

Foreign exchanges were irregular and marked by an extensive recovery in the Spanish peseta.

Late Cabbage Crop Seen As Large One

Output of Onions Will Also Probably Prove to Be More Than Usual.

Recent reports indicate that acreage planted for the late cabbage crop will be 10 per cent larger than last year, which was the record as far back as 1918, according to the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Output is around 50 to 75 cars, with heaviest shipments from Tennessee.

Indications are that the midseason onion market will not be so limited as it was a year ago. The acreage is about 8 per cent larger than in 1929. Prices of eastern lettuce reflect the market situation of western stock, and have dropped.

Conditions for cantaloupes are favorable in New Jersey. Sales of Maine potatoes are still being reported in large eastern markets, although the demand is limited. Prices are slanting gradually downward.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, June 19 (A.P.).—An early advance in cotton today was followed by partial reactions, but prices firmed up again in the later trading on the firmer tone of the stock market and reiterated reports of an increased inquiry for forward shipments.

July contracts after advancing to 13.90 early sold off to 13.68 and closed at 13.84, while new crop months made new highs in the late trading with the new October selling at 13.20 and closing at 13.14. The general market closed very steady at net advances of 22 to 30 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 13 to 32 points on the relatively firm showing of Liverpool, reports of rather a better trade demand and covering. July sold 35 points, and the more active new months about 20 to 29 points net higher on the early demand, but the buying tapered sold off from 13.43 to 13.25 and the new December from 13.27 to 13.13, but the offerings were not particularly heavy, and the market stiffened up again on a renewal of the buying movement which was encouraged by the steadiness of wheat and the firmer tone of the stock market. The old October advanced to 13.44 and closed at 13.42, while the new December sold up to 13.32 and closed at 13.28. Closing quotations for July showed a premium of 70 points over October compared with 63 points at the close of the previous day.

The failure of demand to broaden more markedly on the early advance was considered a disappointment to recent buyers, which may have accounted for some of the selling during the middle of the day. The opinion also was expressed in some quarters that the weather was too good to encourage aggressive buying, but there was considerable business, particularly during the early trading, and again at the close.

Part of the late buying was supposed to come through commission houses, and there was some buying of new crop months attributed to foreign trade interest. Liverpool cables reported Continental and Bombay buying with improved sales of cotton cloths to South America and Africa.

Port receipts, 8,635; U. S. port stocks, 1,712,926; exports, 8,284, making 6,580,850 so far this season.

BONDS EXPERIENCE SLIGHT PRICE GAINS

Stock Option List Partially Regains Losses; Time Money Rates Sag.

SECONDARY RAILS EASE

New York, June 19 (A.P.).—The listed bond market made moderate improvement today.

Coincident with the lifting of pressure from the share market, the downward course of bonds which was climaxed by a sharp reaction yesterday, was halted. The price movement was more orderly and mostly on the constructive side.

Convertibles and other issues with stock features were strong. The chief beneficiaries from the buying of lien issues were the rails. Best grade rails were very active and steady, but secondary issues eased.

The stock market rally and an easing of time money rates were the chief factors in the recovery.

Convertibles did complete right about face to eliminate partially the losses of the past three days. American Telephone 4½s, Atchison 4½s and Philadelphia Coal & Iron 6s, were the best gainers, with closing prices 2 points higher. Among amusement issues, Warner Brothers 6s moved up 1¼ but General Theaters 6s were off ¼ point at the close.

The renewed interest was reflected in a larger turnover as well as price improvement. Canadian National 5s gained a point, and Missouri Pacific 5s, Pennsylvania Gold 5s and 4¾s and Union Pacific 4s rose about one-half. St. Louis San Francisco 4½s and Southern Railway 6½s rose about 1½ each. Seaboard issues continued down grade, with losses as high as 3 points.

American Telephone debenture 5s were in demand, but unchanged. Columbia Gas & Electric 5s, Consolidated Gas 5½s, International Telephone 5s and Public Service Electric & Gas 5s were most active among utility issues and firm.

The foreign list was still unsettled. However, prices of standard European issues were noticeably steady under a large turnover. Bolivian 8s lost 3½ points to establish a new 1930 low on reports of political disturbances there, but the 7 per cent issue of 1969 gained 2½ points after a 9-point drop yesterday.

Little change occurred among United States Governments. Sales were largely confined to Liberty issues.

Curb Review

New York, June 19 (A.P.).—The curb market rallied substantially today, the more active issues closing 2 to 5 points higher, but as short selling is not as popular on this market, it was not stimulated by short covering to the degree the big board was, and its recovery was less pronounced. On the whole, curb shares failed to regain yesterday's losses, while the more active big board stocks more than cancelled the declines of the previous session.

The popular utilities led the rally. Electric Bond & Share closed at 80¾, up more than 3 points, and 8 points above its recent low. American Light & Traction new advanced 4 points, and such issues as American Superpower, United Light A, and Niagara Hudson gained about 2. Northern States A closed up more than 7, and Commonwealth Edison gained 21 in a few sales. United Gas new, however, was again under pressure, selling off more than a point, and closing down a fraction.

In the oils, Humble was a firm spot, gaining about 5 points, Cosden was depressed a couple of points, but later rallied to close up 3. Gulf ranged between a loss of 2½ and a gain of 1¼ and closed unchanged. Cities Service moved up a point in active trading. In the Standards, Indiana was up a fraction, and Kentucky, 2. The week's figures for both gasoline in storage and crude production were favorable.

In the industrials, Driver Harris gained nearly 10 points, closing at 65, and Deere moved up 4. In the aviation shares, Fokker gained more than 2 points, while Bellanca fell back about 4. In the high-priced group, Aluminum Co. rose 13 and closed up 8. A. O. Smith sold up 16 points in a few sales. Stein Cosmetic was a weak feature, dropping about 9 points to a price of 4½, then rallying to 9⅜. United Molasses tumbled 12 points to 13¼ in a moderate turnover.

In the investment company group, Goldman Sachs sold up about 3 points, then lost a point of its gain. Transamerica closed a point higher.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, June 19 (A.P.).—Reassuring statements credited to Chairman Legge, of the Federal Farm Board, had a notable steadying effect on wheat values today. He was quoted as announcing to Kansas growers that wheat holdings of Government-sponsored organizations will not come into the market to compete with other sellers so long as prices remain at the present low levels. Less favorable French and Italian crop reports tended also to give encouragement to wheat buyers.

Closing quotations on wheat were firm at the same as yesterday's finish to ⅝c higher. Corn closed ⅛@⅞ up, oats, ⅛@⅜c advance and provisions varying from 7c decline to a rise of 10c.

Right from the outset, wheat prices showed an upward slant, and although selling increased whenever the market bulged, reactions were invariably overcome. The fact that more general confidence in stock exchange quotations appeared evident was a help to traders friendly to an advance in wheat, especially as export demand for wheat from the United States was less scant than has recently been the case, and that purchases for Europe included moderate quantities of new-crop winter wheat now being harvested in the Southwest. It was also pointed out that despite world-wide fall of commodity values, wheat shows a decline of only about 6c a bushel, compared with quotations three months ago, and that serious wheat crop losses from now on in any of the major producing countries could easily result in much higher quotations.

Contributing to the steadier poise of the wheat market was a statement today from a leading unofficial crop authority here that the time is about at hand when reports of black rust infestation can be expected from the spring wheat belt, and that hot weather hereafter both north and south of the Canadian boundary will emphasize the constant need of rain for sections where subsoil moisture is deficient.

Notice was also taken of figures showing that the world's available supply of wheat has decreased faster in the last month than either the month previous or a year ago. Advices of crop damage from soil drifting in Alberta and Saskatchewan Provinces, Canada, were also a subject of comment, but the market influence of this news was later offset by messages saying that showers had fallen where moisture was most needed.

Corn and oats developed strength on account of better cash demand for corn and as a result of a letup in liquidating sales on the part of holders of future delivery corn contracts.

Provisions averaged higher with grain, notwithstanding a break in hog values.

HOWARD BECOMES BANK'S PRESIDENT

Seventh Street Savings Institution Promotes Its Cashier.

PLUGGE TO HEAD BOARD

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Election of John D. Howard, vice president and cashier of the Seventh Street Savings Bank, to the presidency of that institution, succeeding August H. Plugge, who becomes chairman of the board, a newly created position, was anounced yesterday following a meeting of the board of directors. The changes will become effective July 1.

Mr. Howard was born in this city in 1884 and was educated in the public schools and National Law School. After engaging in the real estate business for a short time with the B. F. Saul Co., he began his life's profession as a runner in the former Home Savings Bank at Seventh and L streets northwest, which subsequently became the Central branch of the American Security & Trust Co.

Leaving this institution, he became associated with the Traders National Bank as a bookkeeper and later was promoted to the management of its savings department. The Traders National Bank was absorbed by the Merchants & Mechanics Bank, which afterwards became the United States Trust Co. When the latter institution opened a branch at Twentieth street and Pennsylvania avenue, Mr. Howard became its manager. He remained there until July 8, 1912, when he was elected cashier of the Seventh Street Savings Bank, being promoted to the vice presidency of that bank in 1928.

Plugge Also Washingtonian.

Mr. Plugge, also a native Washingtonian, was a well-known merchant, when he became an organizer and vice president of the Seventh Street Savings Bank on its inception in 1912. He was elected president in 1925, on the death of Somerset R. Waters. Both Mr. Howard and Mr. Plugge are widely known and respected in local banking and business circles.

Washington brokers were more optimistic about the stock market yesterday, although none would forecast a rapid improvement in New York stocks. Several, however, expressed belief that the market is due for an upward trend after so profound a decline.

The June issue of The Situation, a publication distributed from the local office of Hemphill, Noyes & Co., stated: "It is safe to say that since the crash of last November production of materials of all sorts has declined in a more rapid ratio than has consumption, and the time can not be far distant when consumer demand must assert itself and lead to greater distributive activities. Already there are abundant evidences that inventories are being worked off and that stocks of goods in the hands of distributors are low.

"Were it not for the natural desire of such factors to play safe and be conservative, business would be more active. There are increasing indications that the current depression is scraping bottom. In past periods of depression, abnormally low money rates, in themselves a manifestation of slack business, have signaled the bottom of the business recession. A further slight shading in many rates is possible, but current levels are such as to encourage business expansion and a reversal of recent trends.

Bankers' Standing Committees.

New additions to standing committees of the District of Columbia Bankers Association are the following: President John C. Walker, Chevy Chase Savings Bank, auditing committee; President Theodore Michael, North Capitol Savings Bank, standardized banking forms committee; Vice President Clarence F. Burton, Washington Mechanics Savings Bank, credit bureau committee; Vice President Sidney F. Taliaferro, Riggs National Bank, taxation committee.

Harry Brisker, formerly with W. B. Hibbs & Co., has joined the staff of Prince & Whitely.

Golder Shumate, formerly of this city, has been elected a vice president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co., in charge of freight traffic, mail and express and commercial development departments.

An extra dividend of 2 per cent on the capital stock of the National Metropolitan Bank has been declared payable July 1, books to be closed for transfer of stock from June 21 to June 30, both dates inclusive.

Ralph Endicott, of the Washington Loan & Trust Co., was elected chairman of the executive council, auditors' section, District of Columbia Bankers Association, late yesterday in a meeting at Olney Inn, Md.

Arthur J. Linn, of the Federal-American National Bank, was named vice chairman, and William M. Harris, of the Lincoln National Bank, was chosen secretary-treasurer.

The other two members elected on the council are Raymond G. Marx, of Riggs National Bank, and A. J. Bitterly, of the Munsey Trust Co.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM.

In making inquiries address Charles W. Storm, financial department of The Washington Post, and inclose a self-addressed stamped envelope for reply.

General Theater Equipment.

K. B.—I notice that General Theater Equipment is selling around 35. How do you regard the stock?

Answer—While the company controls Fox Film, Fox Theaters and Loew's, stock of General Theater Equipment pays no dividend, thereby making it speculative. It is estimated that Fox Film will earn between $8 and $9 this year, and $10 for Loew's. The company was formed last year as a consolidation in the theater equipment field and, after acquiring Fox Film, which controls Loew's and Fox Theaters, has become, with the controlled interests, the world's largest amusement enterprise. Capital stock amounts to 2,847,955 no par shares.

Bankers offered 433,000 shares to the public May 1 at $48.50 each. The stock is held in a voting trust. Funded debt comprises $30,000,000 ten-year 6 per cent convertible debentures. Earnings, prior to the acquisition of control of Fox, equaled $1.33 per share of stock then outstanding. For the capital stock, as increased to acquire control of Fox, and assuming the $4 dividend on Fox on the increased capitalization, indicated net income of General Theater Equipment for 1929 was equal to $1.72 a share. The income, however, does not include the equity in undistributed earnings of Fox Film or Fox Theaters.

Driver-Harris.

H. N. V.—Kindly give me some facts regarding Driver-Harris, from the standpoint of long-term investment.

Answer—The company is in excellent shape. As a result of a 10-for-1 split-up last November, earnings on the 91,220 shares for 1929 were equal to $6.91 a share, as against $2.10 for 1928 and $1.61 for 1927. While no dividends are paid at present, the earnings outlook would indicate that some action along this line is not unlikely. The company manufactures chrome nickel and special alloys in the shape of castings, round and flat wire, wire stands and cold rolled strip and sheet. Products of the company are used in all branches of electrical work, mechanical and chemical.

Increasing popularity of chrome nickel is also regarded as a bullish factor. Earnings for the first six months are expected to be satisfactory. Outstanding bonds amounting to $934,000 are expected to be called this year.

Kelvinator.

H. B. A.—Isn't Kelvinator cheap at prices around 20? I am told that earnings have been good this year. What is your opinion of it?

Answer—Earnings have shown a sharp recovery as compared with former years, and profits for the first six months are estimated at around $3 a share. Dividends, however, are not paid at present, making the stock, while speculative, promising for the long pull. The writer gives no opinion on whether stocks are cheap or not. Your guess is as good as his. For those who do not care whether a stock pays a dividend or not, Kelvinator appears attractive.

Hershey Chocolate.

B. V. F.—What is your opinion of Hersey Chocolate?

Answer—Second quarter sales are estimated in excess of the 1929 period when $9,360,975 was reported. Because of lower costs of raw material used, it is thought that earnings for the first half of 1930 will approximate $5 a share on 678,213 shares outstanding as against $4.69 on 650,000 outstanding in the first six months last year.

Net working capital at the end of 1929 totaled $1[illegible]8,977, as against $5,584,791 at the end of 1928. The stock appears suitable as a speculative-investment holding for the long pull.

F. H. Smith Co.

C. W. J.—I hold ten shares of preferred stock of the F. H. Smith Co., and understand a committee has been formed to look after their interests. Would you advise me to join them? Also let me know where to address them.

Answer—December 1, 1929, announced interests owning a considerable amount of preferred stock of F. H. Smith Co., has caused formation of a protective committee. Hobart & Minard, Chamber of Commerce Bldg., Newark, N. J., are counsel for this committee. Interstate Trust Co., 37 Wall street, New York, is depository. Considering that this committee was formed in the interest of preferred stockholders solely, it would appear to be wise for you to cooperate with it.

Flying in 1776

IN 1776 an enterprising pioneer fitted up a wagon able to make the ninety-mile trip over the rough and dangerous Colonial roads between New York and Philadelphia. The journey required only two days—and this was considered such marvelous speed that the owner advertised his wagon as the "Flying Machine." Today real flying machines, built through gradual and patient accumulation of flying knowledge, cover the same route in less than an hour.

The road to sudden riches, like the colonial roads of old, is rough and dangerous. Some people, seeing the vast wealth of many financiers, marvel—while others know that it is the gradual accumulation of funds over a period of years that brings real financial independence.

That is why wise investors purchase the First Mortgage Notes issued through Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Company, for these notes have proven throughout the years that they do not fluctuate in value; are always worth 100 cents of your invested dollar—year in and year out, and steadily, unfailingly, they pay you your regular interest return of 6 per cent per annum.

SUPERVISORS PLAN STUDY OF SEWERS

Arlington Group Discusses Rates for Gas With Engineer.

WOMEN'S CLUB ELECTS

ARLINGTON COUNTY.
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

The Arlington County Board of Supervisors at its special meeting held at the courthouse yesterday, in reply to a letter received from Ashton C. Jones, president of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce, on the question of whether it would take any further action in an effort to assure a modern sewerage system for the county, announced that no further action was contemplated. Mr. Jones was advised to proceed with the plan suggested in his letter that the sanitation committee of the chamber would make a study of the needs and make recommendations to that organization as to an adequate plan for the installation of a modern system for the county.

Failing to obtain certain data as to the future plans as to rates for gas in Arlington County, the board announced that it would take no action at this time as to what an adequate bond would be to assure the placing of the county roads in condition following the installation of gas mains as are now proposed.

Thomas F. Holden, chief engineer for the gas company, appearing before the board, stated that the plans for all extensions have been approved by the county engineer and that it is at all times the policy of the company to cooperate with local officials and see to it that all cuts made in the streets are properly repaired. He asked if a surety bond would not be acceptable and was informed by the board that it would not and that there would have to be an adequate cash bond placed with the county.

State Procedure Followed.

Chairman Edward Duncan stated that the State highway department requires the county to put up a heavy cash bond whenever the county wished to cross or cut into a State highway and that the same rule will have to apply to all local utilities.

When asked by Supervisor B. M. Hedrick, "what price do you pay to the Georgetown Gas Co. for gas?" Mr. Holden stated he was not in a position to say.

"We want all such information from utilities who want to use our streets and we are going to get it before we take any further action allowing the work of making extensions go on," Mr. Hedrick said.

As far as the question of rates are concerned, Mr. Holden stated, "that that matter is now before Congress and we are not able to say what will be done. We will bring officials of the company who might be in a position to answer these questions."

Ashton Jones' Stand.

Ashton C. Jones stated that in developing Ashton Heights and other sections of the county he has paid exorbitant prices for gas mains and he did not think it just that the company should be allowed to extend those lines without repaying those who paid for a long section of the line.

Supervisor Hedrick stated that he considered that the gas company should repay the people and that if the company can show that it is treating the citizens right there will be no trouble experienced in allowing the proposed extensions.

Chairman Duncan announced that the officials of the company will be asked to attend the next meeting of the board which will be held Monday, June 30, at which time the entire matter will be settled.

Taking the view that in past years persons have sold fireworks just outside of Arlington County, due to the ordinance which prohibits the sale within the county, the board after much discussion, put the matter in the hands of Sheriff Howard B. Fields, who will allow merchants to sell fireworks July 1 to 4, inclusive. None will be allowed to be sold on the streets of the county.

Utility Commission Aid.

A. B. Honts, of Cherrydale, was appointed a member of the Public Utility Commission to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Frank Lyon.

The board approved the payment of $100 reward, which had been offered for the arrest of Leroy Woodson, who on Wednesday was indicted, tried and convicted within four hours on a charge of having shot Officer Raymond Crack in a rum chase the afternoon of February 12.

Recognizing the need of more room for the county engineer and suitable quarters where the members of the board may meet, the county clerk was instructed to write to the County School Board and advise them that they require the rooms now occupied by the county school superintendent on and after July 1. The county school superintendent will either use rooms on the third floor of the courthouse or move his office to one of the county school buildings.

This action was taken on motion made by Chairman Duncan and approved by Supervisor E. C. Turnburke. Supervisor Hedrick did not vote.

Mrs. Arthur Orr was reelected president of the Woman's Club of Lyon Park at its meeting held in the Community House last night. Other officers are Mrs. C. K. Lewis, vice president; Mrs. P. P. Woodbridge, recording secretary; Mrs. A. T. Rowell, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. C. H. Deaton, treasurer.

The executive committee includes, in addition to the above mentioned officers, Mrs. Berton Toulotte, Mrs. T. P. Gary, Mrs. H. T. Marks and Mrs. H. C. Young.

The president announces the personnel of the several standing committees will be announced at a future meeting.

The Ballston Council, No. 20, Daughters of America, meeting last night at the Ballston Firemen's Hall, elected the following officers: Mrs. Ethel Stitner, councilor; Mrs. Nora Huffman, associate councilor; Mrs. Amy Plaugher, vice councilor; Mrs. May Owen, associate vice councilor; Mrs. Effie Hackley, recording secretary; Mrs. Nellie Pyle, financial secretary; Mrs. Nettie Pettit, treasurer; Mrs. Sadie Ellis, conductor; Mrs Sally Sanholtz, warden; Mrs. Lena Haislip, inside sentinel; Mrs. Mamie Thompson, outside sentinel, and Mrs. Maude Crump, Miss Annie Calvert and Mrs. May Owen, trustees.

The newly elected officers will be installed at the July meeting.

Pleading guilty to indictments charging violation of the prohibition laws, James T. Brown, alias James T. Wilmer and Raymond L. Olliver, were each sentenced to serve three months in the county jail in addition to a fine of $65.75, including costs, by Circuit Court Judge Walter T. McCarthy.

Hugh Lyon, on similar charges, taking his chances with a jury, was found guilty and given a sentence of three months in jail, with a fine of $147.50, including costs.

The charge against W. V. Beach for forgery was nol-prossed by the Commonwealth.

Leland Cox, of Virginia Highlands, 17 years old, arrested by Officer James D. East and charges with stealing bread and milk from a grocery store at an early hour yesterday morning at Virginia Highlands, was brought before Police Judge Harry R. Thomas yesterday morning.

The case was continued until today.

The zoning appeal board denied the application for a permit to the Virginia Ice & Fuel Corporation to construct a coal yard on its property adjoining its ice plant, located on the Columbia pike at Barcroft, at its meeting at the courthouse last night.

This was the second hearing the commission has held on the project, and a surprise was sprung when Walter O'Hara, a large property owner in Barcroft, arose and presented to the commission a petition signed by 90 property owners in the vicinity of the proposed project voicing strong opposition to the project.

Mr. O'Hara took the view that it was not just to damage the property of 90 persons for the benefit of 1.

Col. Charles T. Jesse, counsel for the corporation, declared a man has a right to use his land to his benefit.

It was pointed out that the area in question has been zoned for light business, which does not include a coal yard.

The audience numbered over 3,000. The class was the largest ever to be graduated from the school.

The principal address was delivered by Dr. Charles S. Richardson, head of the English department of the University of Maryland, and diplomas were awarded by Frank A. Munroe, president of the Anne Arundel County Board of Education.

The class completed the last half of the four-year course under great handicap because of fire that visited the school early in February, necessitating closing the school for two weeks, and then crowding children in emergency classrooms.

Bedford Council Makes Road Plea

Altavista-Buchanan Route Urged in State Plan of Allocation.

Special to The Washington Post.

Bedford, Va., June 19.—The town council of Bedford passed a resolution, in regular session, Tuesday night, requesting the Virginia State Highway Commission to select the Altavista-Bedford to Buchanan route for Bedford's share of the 1,500 miles of State road soon to be allocated under a recent act of the Legislature.

Frank Hubbard was appointed to fill the vacancy on the police force, at a salary of $90 per month.

The matter of securing rights-of-way on Crenshaw street and Burks Hill, widening and locating Route 204 of the State highway system, was discussed and the town manager and street committee were directed to assess these property damages and present these estimates to the property owners. Should the claim for damages exceed $1,500, the project is to be abandoned.

The town has sold to the local order of Masons, represented by G. W. Bond, the lot on Court street, known as the Modoc lot, for the sum of $500, and the mayor was authorized to execute a proper deed.

BLAZE HALTS LAYING OF FIRE HOUSE STONE

Sandy Spring Department Delays Ceremony to Answer Call.

WATER RELIEF SOUGHT

Laying of the corner stone of the new Sandy Spring Volunteer Fire Department firehouse yesterday was delayed for nearly an hour by a fire call, which sounded just as the exercises were about to begin.

Putting aside the festive appearance they had arrived with, the volunteer firemen climbed aboard their apparatus and set out for the fire, a tenant house on the farm of George Willson. Their efforts were vain, however, for the fire had been extinguished by the farm people before the apparatus arrived.

The firemen then returned to the scene of the ceremony and joined in the exercises.

Stedman Prescott, Rockville lawyer and candidate for State's attorney of Montgomery County, as master of Montgomery Lodge, A. F. & A. M., presided at the corner stone laying. Other officers of the lodge also were present and participated in the ritual.

J. W. Jones, first president of the volunteer fire department, was the principal speaker. Chief Francis Thomas, of Sandy Spring, and Chief William Burrows, of the Rockville Volunteer Fire Department, also spoke.

It is expected that the structure will be completed and ready for occupancy this summer. In addition to the firehouse, it will house the offices of the town council.

The Rockville water situation appears to be well along to settlement, it was announced yesterday by Mayor J. Roger Spates following a conference with officials of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission. He reported that the commission officials appear well disposed toward the plan to link Rockville with the Sanitary Commission water supply system.

The commission requested Mayor Spates and members of the town council to reduce their wishes and proposals to writing and submit them to the commission for formal study. This is understood as meaning that the meeting developed amicable agreement between the commission and the town.

Rockville has been short of water every summer for years. Many plans have been discussed and discarded and the water shortage has remained. It is believed now, however, that the hookup between the Sanitary Commission mains and the town will do away with the shortage which every summer has forced the issuance of drastic regulations regarding the use of water for other than necessary purposes.

Bids on the Kensington grade crossing elimination project were advertised for this morning by the Maryland State Roads Commission. The bids will be on a triple span overhead bridge, with approximately 100 feet between abutments, to be constructed of steel and concrete over the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad tracks at Lincoln avenue, Kensington.

While the roads commission has not definitely completed the purchase of rights of way leading to the bridge approaches, it is believed that these will be obtained before the completion of the bridge makes necessary their acquisition. By going ahead with the bridge at this time the commission obviates the wait that would be necessary if work on the bridge was held up to await completion of the right of way.

The commission also asks for bids on the construction of shoulders on the Columbia pike from Seeks Corner to Avenel, a distance of nearly one mile. The shoulders are to be of concrete and with the shoulders the road will be 21 feet wide.

With the completion of the shoulders a more direct route from northwest Washington and the suburban sections of Montgomery County to Laurel and thence by way of the Baltimore boulevard to Baltimore will be open to motorists.

Bids on the bridge will be opened at noon July 2 and bids on the shoulders will be opened at noon July 1 at the offices of the State Roads Commission in Baltimore.

The Republican State central committee for Montgomery County will meet this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the office of F. Barnard Welsh, Rockville attorney and member of the committee. Plans for the primary and election in the fall will be discussed.

Members of the committee are Paul Sleman, Chevy Chase, chairman; Wilson L. Townsend, Kensington; Mrs. John A. Holmes, Montrose; Simon O Smith and Mr Welsh, of Rockville.

Republican leaders have much confidence in the prospects for the party in the coming elections due to dissension in the Democratic ranks and the waging of a most vigorous campaign by the party.

Prosecutor Faces Disbarment Move

Eleven Counts Are Brought Against Officer of Mineral County.

Keyser, W. Va., June 19.—Proceedings looking to the disbarment of Vernon E. Rankin, prosecuting attorney of Mineral County, were inaugurated in circuit court today.

The accusations involve eleven counts. One is that Rankin approached Justice of the Peace A. F. Ridenour, of Ridgeley, and said that he was authorized by Judge A. Jay Valentine and President George T. Carskadon of the county court to ask for Ridenour's resignation. These officials declare they gave Rankin no such authority. Another is that he was directed by Judge Valentine to secure indictments against Luella Whetzel and Lee Brown in the Fisher malpractice case which resulted in the death of Lottie Muriel Beckone. It is claimed no such orders were given Rankin.

Another charge involved the alleged offer of a bribe of $200 to a witness not to prosecute in a case involving criminal assault, the victim of the assault being a girl under 16.

KEITH HITS DRY LAW IN PRIMARY SPEECH

Candidate for Moore's Seat in Congress Gives Views on Other Subjects.

$1,500 HOME DESTROYED

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

Thomas Randolph Keith, of Fairfax, candidate for the Democratic nomination as representative from the Eighth Congressional District of Virginia, yesterday made public the platform on which he plans to conduct his campaign during the five-cornered race for the nomination. This now leaves Judge Howard W. Smith as the only candidate who has not issued a formal statement dealing directly with the prohibition question.

In the statement Mr. Keith said: "I am convinced that the eighteenth amendment to the Constitution and the labyrinth of penal laws enacted thereunder have gone too far and that we must find a saner basis for dealing with the liquor problem. I favor return to the States of their powers in this connection, but I am unalterably opposed to reestablishment of the saloon and feel assured that this phase of the question may be safeguarded so that all apprehension as to its return may be removed. A State should have the right to remain bone dry if that is the will of the people, but it should also have the right by constructive legislation to establish governmental control similar to that which prevails in a great many countries."

Mr. Keith cited present-day evils of the illicit liquor traffic and in closing stated that "already the laws have gone much further than any one dreamed was contemplated in the beginning and the demand is continued for more laws and serever penalties. I repeat that the time has come when we should get together and make such constitutional and statutory changes as will permit dispensing of liquor under proper governmental control and thereby remove the evils from which we now suffer."

In his stand on the agricultural question Mr. Keith, a successful lawyer, states: "My friends have been largely those who live on farms and I fully appreciate their problems and difficulties. Improvement of agricultural conditions is one of the overshadowing questions of our day. I am satisfied that the tariff bill just enacted will not only benefit farmers but will greatly increase their burden and it is a tragic disregard of assurances given when the extra session of Congress was called." He further states that "the primary obligation of government is regard for the masses of the people and this has too often been ignored with the problems of agricultural and labor. I believe that these great interests should be in every way protected from discrimination and injustice."

"I approve the present policy of our Government, in respect to restriction of immigration," he declared, "and I favor such further extensions of that policy as may be necessary to meet the ends desired."

Commenting on the chain store situation he said: "Something must be done to counteract the effect of concentration of capital and conduct of business in relatively few hands. If the present tendency is not checked, then practically all business will, at no distant day, he conducted by gigantic monopolistic corporations, and instead of local enterprises and ownership, most people will become employes, with the further result that practically all of the profits will go to the large cities instead of remaining in the rural communities and small towns."

Mr. Keith added:

"I hear it said that my candidacy is allied with some of the candidates in the field, and also hear it said that I have entered merely to defeat one or the other of the candidates. With an entirely clear conscience I affirm there is no foundation of fact for these statements. I have entered because of the hope that the things for which I stand may be approved and the belief that the people who entertain views similar to mine desire to give expression to those views.

"With no feeling of personal enmity toward any of the candidates or their friends, I shall devote my time and energies in order to carry to a successful conclusion the campaign now in progress, and trust that the people will concentrate their attention upon the real questions involved and not upon irrelevant matters that simply tend to create friction within the ranks of the Democratic party."

The Matrons and Patrons Association, Order of Eastern Star, met recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dorsey in Vienna. Newly elected officers of the association were installed, namely: Miss Edna McCauley, of Jessica Callahan Chapter, Alexandria, president; Mrs. May Oliver, Harmony Chapter, Vienna, first vice president; Arthur Dorsey, Harmony Chapter, Vienna, second vice president; Mrs. Mary Hudson, Arlington Chapter, Cherrydale, secretary; Mrs. Elsie McGarity, Sharon Chapter, McLean, treasurer; Eber Inbody, Arlington Chapter, Cherrydale, advisor, and Mrs. Nettie Crouch, Herndon Chapter, Herndon, publicity chairman.

Fire caused by a defective chimney yesterday afternoon completely destroyed the home of Charles Brooks, colored, just outside the Town of Vienna. The flames and smoke attracted hundreds of persons from many miles around. The first the family members knew of the fire was when burning embers fell on their heads. The Vienna Fire Department responded to the alarm, but was unable to conquer the blaze. Loss was estimated at about $1,500.

The Royal Ambassadors at Falls Church will meet tomorrow afternoon at the home of T. W. Moffett in West Falls Church. Lawrence Fenwick will act as leader of the meeting.

The Sharon Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, at McLean will give a cabaret supper tomorrow night in the parish hall at McLean for the benefit of the chapter.

ALEXANDRIA COUNCIL HOLDS LONG SESSION

Automobile Association Gets Permission to Put Up Signs in City.

MAY STATEMENT GIVEN

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The city council yesterday afternoon held a lengthy session with a number of matters up for consideration and action. One of the first matters was the petition of Robert F. Downham for permission to erect a gas station for the Standard Oil Co. in the triangle of land at King street and Russell road, just at the entrance to Rosemont, and a number of protests were registered. Attorney Hugh Marsh appeared in the interests of his father, John Marsh, whose home is nearest the lot in question, and as a result Councilman Timberman offered a resolution that the city manager and corporation attorney ascertain the cost of the property from Marsh's line to Washington avenue and King street road, for the purpose of making a park there, and that the property owners and the George Washington National Masonic Memorial Association cooperate in this effort, as the site of the proposed gas station is directly across from the Memorial Temple. Mr. Downham's petition was received and held over.

A petition from Robert S. Barrett was granted, asking that he be permitted to change the first floor of the residence at 1916 Duke street into a store and erect gasoline pumps in the side yard. His reason for asking this was that the property has been vacant and is being destroyed by vandals, as it is not in a situation to rent easily, and by making a business place it will be used and preserved.

Permission was granted the American Automobile Association to put up signs in the town directing tourists to historic places, with the cooperation of the city manager.

$10,000 Appropriation Passed.

The resolution recently introduced that the city appropriate $10,000 for its part of the cost of placing sidewalks in the annexed territory, was passed, this amount to pay one-third of the cost, and the abutting property owners to pay the other two-thirds.

A resolution was introduced and held over that the city purchase an addressograph machine for use in the city offices, at a cost of $1,900.

A resolution was passed appropriating $4,800 for resurfacing certain blocks of streets: Wolfe; South Patrick; Duke, west from West street; North Fairfax, from Princess to the canal basin on Braddock road; Glendale avenue, from Braddock to Russell road; Russell road, from Linden street to Glendale avenue; Mount Vernon avenue, Braddock to Alexandria avenue, and Cameron street, from West to Harvard street.

A resolution to appropriate $35,000 for widening Mount Vernon avenue from Hume station to Four Mile Run, a distance of about 1 mile, was passed.

A resolution was introduced and held over that $2,500 be appropriated for the construction of a combined sewer in Queen street from the river to Fairfax street.

An application received from R. H. Fauntleroy, of Ballston, to construct and operate a miniature golf course on Russell road, between Mount Ida avenue and Cedar street, was denied, as the place is so situated that it would lead to traffic congestion.

The city manager presented the financial statement for May, which was accepted.

The city manager presented a letter from James R. Mansfield, secretary of the Grand Council of Virginia, Order Fraternal Americans, Alexandria Council No. 5, stating that that organization has presented the City of Alexandria with both a United States and Virginia State flag, to be flown over the city hall, which was done for a number of years, but recently has been lacking, and asked that instructions be given the proper party to see that these flags are raised each day. City Manager Wallace Lawrence stated he had answered the communication giving the reason of this omission, in that the flags have been whipped to ribbons by the winds and the city has purchased a new United States flag, and would gladly accept a Virginia State flag from the organization.

Meeting Next Thursday.

A letter was received from Fred Holden, secretary of the Mount Ida Citizens Association setting forth several requests for street improvements, to which the city manager stated he had replied, answering each question.

What is known as the milk ordinance was placed on its first reading.

An ordinance which authorizes a city planning and zoning commission to be appointed by Judge William P. Woolls was placed on its first reading.

The fireworks ordinance adopted at the last meeting of the council was amended to prohibit the use of fireworks on Duke street between Washington and Columbus, and on Columbus between Duke and Prince, in the neighborhood of the Alexandria Hospital.

A communication was received from the Shell Eastern Oil Co. stating they would install a water line from the river to the corner of Montgomery and Lee streets and asking the city to place a fire hydrant at that point, as the fire protection is inadequate. The city manager was instructed to take this matter up with the company.

The council will hold an adjourned regular meeting next Thursday at 8 p. m. to consider the question of delinquent 1929 taxes on real estate in the city.

The funeral of Mrs. Jane Sarah Wedderburn, 81, widow of Alexander J. Wedderburn, who died Wednesday at her home in Washington, will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon from Christ Protestant Episcopal Church, conducted by the Rev. Dr. William J. Morton, the rector. Burial will be in the Methodist Protestant cemetery.

The husband of the deceased, the late Alexander J. Wedderburn, was for many years engaged in newspaper business in Alexandria and Arlington County, and organized what is known as George Washington Park, now a residential section surrounding the George Washington National Masonic Memorial Temple. He was the promoter of many of the Washington birthday celebrations in the past.

Mrs. Adelaide O'Donnell, aged 64 years, widow of John O'Donnell, died Wednesday evening at her home, 125 West Peyton avenue, Del Ray. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. L. M. Brooks, of Kenneta, Pa., and two sons, Norbert Gashel, of Clinton, Md., and Harvey Gashel, of Washington, D. C. The funeral will be held at 9:30 tomorrow morning from St. Rita's Catholic Church, Mount Ida, conducted by the Rev. L. J. Foster.
